Dist. Atty. to Complete Analysis Of Hospital Probe This Week

District Attorney Robert Russel told the Gazette Telegraph Saturday that he expects to complete his analysis of the report on alleged irregularities at Memorial Hospital this week.

Russel emphasized that details of the report of the investigation were being withheld on his request.

"The city council and the hospital's board of trustees have acted in good faith in not releasing details on the investigation. This was on my request. Some people are being made to suffer because of this and I feel this is wrong," Russel told the Gazette Telegraph.

Russel said he has known of the investigation since it began.

"The board of trustees and some members of the council have known about the investigation since its inception and everybody, including the mayor, has tried to cooperate," Russel said.

"They agreed not to release any details until I have had a chance to analyze the complete report," the district attorney said.

He said that he and his staff expect to complete the study this week. At that time, Russel said he would turn the report back to city council.

Russel said he would make his decision then if any action would be taken. He explained

City Council Candidates Are Certified

The Colorado Springs City Council met in special session Saturday morning to certify the seven candidates whose names will appear on the ballot for the April 6 city election.

The meeting was adjourned to 4:30 p.m. April 8. The council will meet then to canvas election returns.

Councilman William S. Roe made a statement at the meeting.

"Since one of the candidates for council has made public statements and published advertisements which are in error I would like to correct the record regarding the proposed charter change in respect to the limit on the bonded indebtedness of the city," Roe began.

Roe linked the proposed debt limit increase to the failure of the city sales tax, saying: "At the time of the public hearings on the sales tax many long delayed capital needs were outlined: parks, drainage, fire stations. Because such needs have been postponed for some time

Klan Charges Bribery Plot in Slaying Probe

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama leaders of the Ku Klux Klan charged Saturday that the FBI had tried to bribe a Klansman charged with conspiracy in the highway slaying of a civil rights worker.

Attorney Matt H. Murphy Jr., Klan lawyer, said at a news conference that the FBI offered Gary Tommy Rowe Jr., 34, of Birmingham, 580 acres of land in Minnesota if he would give them information in the murder case.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Justice Department, when asked about the bribery accusation, would say only: "It wouldn't be proper for the Justice Department to make any comment on a pending case. The correct place to do so is in court."

Rowe was among four Klansmen arrested by the FBI on conspiracy charges in the killing Thursday night of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, white mother of five from Detroit and a participant in a civil rights march.

"The four boys will be exonerated," said Murphy, the son of a onetime candidate for Alabama lieutenant governor. His father ran on the Klan-supported ticket in 1926 with Hugo Black — now a Supreme Court justice — who won a U.S. Senate seat.

At the time Black first joined the court in 1937 there was a furor over reports he had been a Klansman.

In a nationwide broadcast Black replied: "I did join the Ku Klux Klan about 15 years ago. I later resigned. I never rejoined. I have never considered and I do not now consider the unsolicited card given me" as a "membership of any kind in the Ku Klux Klan."

Robert M. Shelton Jr. of Tuscaloosa, imperial wizard of the United Klans, told newsmen that the Klan posted $150,000 bond for three of the men.

"We've had these trumped up charges by the federal government before," said Shelton. He apologized for calling President Johnson "a damned liar" Friday.

Shelton said the Klan regretted the slaying because the order is "not advocating violence in any manner." But he said the President and news media "declared these men guilty before charges were brought."

Everett Ingram, agent in charge of the Birmingham FBI office, said he had no comment on the allegations made by Murphy and Shelton.

Johnson Plans To Ask Stronger Billboard Law

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle that has been simmering for six years at the state and local level is expected to be joined in Congress again within a few days when President Johnson presents his billboard control bill.

The bill is expected to provide the means for strict control of highway signs along new sections of the interstate highway system.

Roads Bureau officials decline to discuss contents of the bill. However, they noted that Johnson has called for a mandatory measure, which outdoor advertising concerns undoubtedly will oppose.

Present legislation is permissive. It does not directly ban any signs from highways; it provides a bonus equal to one-half of one per cent of the construction cost to any state which agrees to control billboards on the interstate mileage in its state.

The federal government provides 90 per cent of the cost of interstate highways and the bonus raises this to 90½ per cent. The new bill is not expected to include any controls over federal highways which are not part of the interstate system.

Bureau officials regard the present legislation, passed in 1958, as a failure. Some 20 states have entered into agreements with the federal government for billboard control but only seven have qualified for payments. The first payment was made in mid-1963 and the

Demonstrators In Selma March On Court House

By JOE ZELLNER

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — More than 200 white and Negro demonstrators, mostly young people, marched to the County Courthouse and to City Hall Saturday to show their resentment over the highway slaying of a white civil rights worker from Detroit.

It was the first street demonstration here since the start of a 50-mile march to Montgomery last Sunday.

Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, was cut down by a sniper's bullet Thursday night while operating a shuttle car to return the marchers from Montgomery to Selma.

At the courthouse Saturday, a minister said in a prayer: "She gave her life that freedom might be saved throughout this land."

A Toronto, Canada, minister, the Rev. Lawrence Duncan Heap, walked at the head of the line from the Browns Chapel A.M.E. church to the courthouse. The quiet, orderly line followed, two abreast, along a route prescribed by U.S. Dist.

ADMIRING HIS NEW FIND — Jim Sloan displays the copper nickel he found Friday in a roll of nickels purchased in a local bank. An amateur coin collector, Sloan says he will add the coin, which may be worth up to $5,000, to his collection for the time being. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Copper Nickel Is Found By Colorado Springs Man

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Jim Sloan, 1711 Clemson Dr., dumped the roll of nickles into the cigar box his family uses for change and found, among the contents of the roll, a copper nickel which may be worth $5,000.

Sloan, a sheet metal worker who collects coins as a hobby, said he could hardly believe his eyes.

"When I cash my check on Fridays," Sload said, explaining how he came across the coin, "I always get some change to put in our cigar box at home. We use it for the kids' lunches, to pay the paper boy and things like that.

"When I opened the roll of nickels and noticed that one, I thought it might be a $2.50 gold piece. They aren't being made anymore but once-in-a-while you hear about someone running across one. Of course, when I looked at it closely, I realized it was a penny slug that had been stamped as a nickel. The date on it says 1962, but it doesn't have any scratches or any signs of wear so I don't think it has been in circulation.

"I weighed it on my gold scales and found it weighs precisely the same as a new penny. In size it is smaller than a nickel but larger than a penny. In fact, it was a little too small for the stamp to bring the whole nickel faces on the sides.

"Well, I showed it to the family but I didn't know exactly what to do about it. I finally called Gretchen Dempster, a friend of mine who has a coin shop in Southgate, and told her about it.

"We got to talking about a story we had seen in the Gazette Telegraph not too long ago about another man who had found one of these. I decided I had better try to locate that old paper."

The search for the article brought Sloan to the G-T newsroom Saturday morning where he was able to locate the article he was looking for. It had appeared on the front page of the paper Jan. 26. The owner is Bernhardt Kottke, a coin collector in Mankato, Minn. Kottke paid a dollar for his coin to add to his counterfeit collection. He claimed to have been offered "close to $5,000" for the mis-stamped nickel — a product of the U. S. Mint in Denver.

Sloan said that for the time being, he simply will add the unusual nickel to his coin collection and enjoy the prestige of "showing it off." He said, however, that he would be willing to part with it, if he were made a "good enough offer."

Wallace Joins Investigation Of Civil Rights Murder

By REX THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — State agents were ordered into round-the-clock action by Gov. George C. Wallace in the highway slaying of a Detroit white woman who joined a civil rights march to the Alabama capital.

FBI agents arrested the four white men on federal charges of conspiracy in the assassination Thursday night of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, who was killed by gunfire from a passing car about 25 miles west of here.

In Washington, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., predicted that the administration's voting rights bill would come out of the Senate Judiciary Committee without major changes.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara thanked the Alabama National Guardsmen and Army regulars called up by the President to patrol the 50-mile march from Selma which was climaxed by the march to the Alabama capital.

Mrs. Liuzzo was among the 25,000 who marched. She was returning to Montgomery for a second group of marchers when a car pulled alongside and bullets raked her car. A slug struck her in the temple. A Negro youth riding with her said he lay on the seat and played dead when the assassins returned to check their work.

Mrs. Liuzzo's death was the third in five weeks of the Alabama drive centered on Negro voting registration. She was the first white woman to die in the nation's civil rights struggle.

Three of the men arrested by the FBI on charges of conspiring to violate the victim's civil rights were free in $50,000 bond each. Bond was arranged by

C. P. Mechling, First National Officer Dies

Funeral Services will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the First Presbyterian Church for Carl P. Mechling, 18 E. Espanola St., former vice president and trust officer of the First National Bank. Mr. Mechling died Saturday.

Mr. Mechling was born in Mount Pleasant, Pa., and came to Colorado Springs in 1912. He worked in the office of the old Cripple Creek Short Line Railroad before becoming employed by the First National Bank in 1916. In 1935 he was made trust officer of the bank, and was named trust officer and vice-president in 1951. He was elected to the board of directors of the bank in 1955. He was associated with the bank continuously for 48 years.

He was a member of the Rotary Club and of the Chamber of Commerce, the Winter Night Club, El Paso Lodge No. 13, AF and AM, and the First Presbyterian Church, of which he was treasurer.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel Mechling.

World Powers Build Up Chemical War Arsenal

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tear and nauseating gases, like those used in Viet Nam with an ensuing worldwide clamor, are only a mild and minor portion of the chemical arsenal possessed by Communist and non-Communist powers.

They make you cry and vomit, incapacitate you for a few minutes or hours. But compared with other weapons in the Chemical Biological Radiological — CBR — arsenals, they are almost benign.

Some of the others can kill almost instantly or bring a slow and strangling death.

Even those not fatally toxic, some psychochemical compounds, can reduce men temporarily to something approaching idiocy or produce an anasthetized sleep.

Among the powers, the United States, Soviet Union and Red China have some or many of these types.

They were spawned first in Germany, which developed mustard, phosgene and chlorine toxic gases and used them on Allied forces in World War I.

From World War II, German laboratories came the first compounds for today's nerve gases.

They were not used in that war. But when the Nazi forces were defeated, the data and

Illegal Arms Cache Seized In California

By STRATFORD C. JONES

INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Machine pistols and records of their manufacture seized at an arms factory were held for examination Saturday by federal, state and local authorities who believe they were destined for use by extremist groups. The plant operator denies it.

The 373 weapons, 100,000 rounds of ammunition and three silencers used for testing the guns were confiscated at the Erquiaga Arms Co. on Friday by 30 officers armed with a search warrant.

Said State Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch: "Our office has definite information that some of these illegal weapons were intended

Space Sleuths to Detect Sneaky, Silent Satellites

By C. YATES MCDANIEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. space sleuths are working to make it harder for any silent satellite to sneak into unspotted orbit over North America.

The Naval Research Laboratory reported this Saturday in giving some details of a partly secret project on the Navy section of the space surveillance system.

The idea behind doubling the power of some receivers along the transcontinental "electronic fence" and building a short, parallel line in southern Texas, the Navy said, is to provide the system serving all of North America with rapid computations of the speed of any object which accidentally or by design fails to emit identifying signals.

Since picking up its first voiceless space object in 1958, the system has tracked hundreds of man-created pieces of matter, ranging in size from burned-out rocket booster shells to tiny bits shorn off orbiting satellites.

For reasons of military security, the Navy and the other defense and civilian agencies involved do not say how far they can detect tiny things in space. But the naval laboratory places the distance at "thousands of miles."

The network stretching from the southern Pacific to the southern Atlantic coast includes high-powered receivers and transmitters. The latter continuously throw up fan-shaped fences of electromagnetic energy.

An orbiting object passing through the fences bounces back some of this energy which is picked up by ground receivers. Angle computations made from two or more receivers on successive passes tell much about the object's course.

The south Texas addition, from Roma to near Raymondville, will roughly parallel the transcontinental fence farther north.

The Navy expects its $12-million improvement job to be completed this summer or by early fall.

County Demos Urged to Boost Frank Evans

The speaker was Bill Grant, Denver, newly - elected state chairman of the Democratic Party. He spoke at the March meeting of the county Democratic Forum.

Grant said that Evans has the potential to become one of the great leaders in the U. S. House — to be among those who go down in the history books as having helped guide the destiny of this nation.

Vaccine for Leukemia Is Reported

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A tentative and experimental vaccine against leukemia has been developed and is being tried on humans, a researcher reported Saturday.

But he emphasized that he has no results as yet and his work is strictly experimental. Leukemia is the so-far incurable cancer of the blood and blood-forming organs.

The researcher is Dr. James T. Grace of Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

The possibility of a vaccine against leukemia arose from studies in mice, the relatively new-found ability to grow human leukemia cells, and the discovery in those diseased cells of particles that look like viruses.

Russian Peasants May Be Given Individual Farms

By STANLEY JOHNSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev hints that the Soviet Union may break up its collective farms into individual units in the future.

He also pledged that today's collectives will not be over-enlarged nor will they be united any time soon into so-called state farms where the farm family is stripped of property rights and its members made landless state employes. He said some had become so big they were "unmanageable."

Brezhnev's pledge reverses the policies of Stalin and Khrushchev. With other promises, published around the world by Tass today, it goes a long way to meet the depressed peasants' demand for more individual control of farm production.

He also gave farmers a chance to start his program with a clean slate by writing off all debts unsuccessful collectives may owe.

But any breakup of the collectives would be the biggest revolution in the Soviet Union since the Bolsheviks seized power.

Brezhnev was the first Soviet official to admit it was even under discussion since Stalin began collectivization in 1928. It cost over 15 million lives to carry out the process which has since been hailed as the foundation of communism as practiced in the Soviet Union.

In a speech to the Communist party Central Committee in Moscow Wednesday, published today, Brezhnev declared problems in the countryside cannot be decided on a crash basis.

"One should bear in mind," he said, "that they involve the vital interests of millions of Soviet people and therefore constitute problems of policy that must be decided after thorough consideration, without haste, as economic conditions become ripe.

"At the same time, it would be as rash to display haste in deciding to break up the collective farms into smaller units again."

This was the first indication that anyone — except the millions of farmers — had given any thought to the subject.

Most observers thought, however, that the ideological consequences and administrative difficulties meant any such move was far off.

In the meantime, Brezhnev's program seemed designed to soothe many of the discontents and counterpart government mismanagement that have kept Soviet peasants unproductive and agricultural output low.

Collective and state farms both exist, he said, and "presumably these two types of social economy will exist and develop for a long time to come. At the present stage, our duty is not to accelerate the transformation of one form into another, but to contribute in every way towards the development and prospering of both types of social economy."

Dr. Ulam Among Seven New Faculty Members at CU

Dr. Stanislaw M. Ulam, one of the nation's foresmost mathematicians, has been appointed professor of computing science and mathematics at the University of Colorado.

Ulam is one of seven new Boulder faculty members whose appointments were approved Wednesday (March 24) by the Board of Regents. All will join CU next September.

Dr. Thurston E. Manning, CU vice president and dean of the faculties, termed Ulam "one of the most outstanding figures in the field of mathematics and its applications to physical problems.

"His joining the University of Colorado faculty will greatly strengthen our teaching and research activities in the sciences," Manning said. "In addition, his decision to accept an appointment at Colorado is another indication of the growing respect the University has earned among the scientific community."

Dr. Walter Macintyre, director of CU's Computing Center, said Ulam's presence "will stimulate some quite original thinking in the applications of computers to the physical and biological sciences."

Ulam has been a staff member of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory since 1943. He was born in Poland, took his degrees at the Polytech Institute in Lvov and came to the U.S. in 1936 as a visiting member of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, N.J.

He was a fellow and later a lecturer at Harvard and he also has taught at the University of Wisconsin and the University of Southern California. Ulam was a visiting professor at Colorado in 1961 when CU was just beginning to acquire modern computing eequipment.

Ulam is a cnnsultant to President Johnson's Scientific Advisory Committee.

Other new appointees, all to be associate professers, are:

Dr. J. C. Harrison, geology; Dr. John E. Harvey, French; Dr. Charles L. Hinkle, marketing; Dr. Harold L. Klagstad Jr., Slavic and Eastern languages; Dr. Gerald E. McClearn, psychology, and Dr. Luigi Romeo, Italian.

Harrison has been at UCLA since 1957, first as an associate research geophysicist and since 1961 as a member of the technical staff of the theoretical studies department. A native of England, he is a graduate of Cambridge and a former instructor in the British Navy.

Harvey has been at Smith College since 1962 and before that he taught at the University of Massachusetts. He is the author of "Anouilh, a Study in Theatrics," published by the Yale University Press, and he also translated "Episode from an Authors Life" by Jean Anouilh. He is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and has a doctorate from Yale.

Hinkle will be assigned to CU's Colorado Springs Center, where he will help plan the School of Business graduate program there. Heis a graduate of Baylor and has a Ph.D. from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He has lectured at Boston and Northeastern Universities and from 1948 to 1961 he was general manager of a radio and TV station in Waco, Tex.

Klagstad has been on the faculty of Indiana University for 10 years and he also has taught at the Massachusetts Institute of Tehnology and the University of Florida. He holds bachelor's, masters and doctorate degrees from Harvard. Klagstad has participated in the last two international congresses of Slavists in Russia and Yugoslavia.

McClearn, who has been at (Berkely) for nine years, is a specialist in genetics. He has done extensive research on the effects of alcohol on mice. McClearn also has taught at Allegheny College and Yale University. He holds degrees from Allegheny and the University of Wisconsin.

Romeo has been on the faculty of the University of Toronto since 1961 and he also has taught at the University of Washington. He was born in Italy and is now an American citizen. Romeo is a graduate of Washington State University, with master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Washington.

30 Initiated Into Junior High Society

The North Junior Belt and Buckler Society recently honored 30 initiates and their parents at a reception. Dr. Richard C. Bradely, Colorado College professor of physics was the guest speaker.

The Belt and Buckler is the North Junior chapter of the National Junior Honor Society. Students are elected to membership by the faculty on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership, and service. Only students with no grade below a B are eligible.

New members honored at the reception are:

CC Promotes 12 Faculty Members

Colorado College today announced that 12 faculty members have received promotions effective in September.

Among the promotions were two full professors, seven associate professors and three assistant professors. The promotions were approved earlier this month by the college's Board of Trustees.

Two were promoted from associate professor to full professor. They are George F. Simmons, professor of mathematics, and William R. Hochman, chairman of the education department and professor of history.

The new associate professors are Alvin Boderman of sociology, William C. Champion of chemistry, Carleton E. Gamer of music, Herving Madruga of French, Alexey N. Malyshev of Russian, Margaret C. Saunders of education, and Donald W. Shearn of psychology.

Promoted from instructor to assistant professor were Robert H. Adams of English, David D. Finley of political science, and Thomas K. Mauch of English.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

I would like to know who it was I wrote up several times as an expert with wild animals.

C. S. DUDLEY

It was someone on the sheriff's force, but I cannot for the life of me remember who. I have asked Roy C. Glasier, who was undersheriff during Sheriff Sam Deal's terms, but he doesn't seem to remember the person to whom I allude.

I have asked Dewey Deflon, who was undersheriff with Sheriff Robert M. Jackson. No more did he remember. It may have been Ivor B. Remington, now a rancher in the Castle Rock area. I don't know.

Anyway the first story of the kind that I wrote about this deputy sheriff concerned a time when he was sent to a home in Broadmoor when a frantic call for help was received. A rattlesnake was found in the fireplace, coiled and rattling menacingly. Occupants of the house were in terror.

The deputy sheriff asked for a long pole. When this was brought to him he rigged a loop of light rope on one end of it, the free end of the rope extending to the other end of the pole. With this contraption he lassoed the snake and carried it, wriggling, into the back yard where he killed in with another stick.

That was a good newspaper story, but was less exciting then when a report came to the sheriff's office that there was a black bear in a tree on Colorado Avenue, between Colorado Springs and Manitou Springs. The snake lassoer was sent to capture it. As a crowd of people stood at a respectful distance he managed to get the bear out of the tree, but it escaped from him and made for the mountains.

This brings me to something that the late Charlie Smith, founder of Smiths Packing Co., told me one night as we were riding to our homes in Manitou on the last street car, at midnight. His office was in Colorado Springs and I was working on the old morning Colorado Springs Gazette. He said that on the occasion he mentioned as he left the street car at the Mansions Hotel to cross a bridge over Ruxton Creek to walk to his home he heard what he took to be a child crying. He stepped down to the level of the creek and looked underneath the bridge. What he saw was two fiery eyes looking at him. Then he remembered that he had heard mountain lions come down the canyon back of the hotel nights to plunder the garbage cans. He made no further investigation, but hurried on home.

When he told me of this experience I remembered that when as a child I visited my Grandmother, Mrs. Mary Spencer, on Canon Avenue, Manitou, she told me I could climb the mountain across the street from her home, but cautioned me not to go over the top, as she said there were mountain lions in the canyon there. This would be the canyon the mouth of which was back of the Mansions Hotel. I used to think that she told me this so I would not walk too far and get lost. But she must have heard of mountain lions in that canyon.

Plane Crash Kills 22 in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A Pakistan International Airlines plane crashed in a pass about 1,000 miles north of here Friday, killing 22 of the 26 persons on board, an airline spokesman announced.

The plane, with 22 passengers and four crewmen aboard, was on a regular flight from Peshawar to Chitral, a mountain-locked state at the northern tip of Pakistan adjoining the Soviet border.

The spokesman said the plane crashed in Lowary Pass, at an altitude of 9,000 feet.

Registration Continues For SCSC Evening Classes

Registration for spring quarter Evening College classes at Southern Colorado State College will continue until April 5. Director of the evening college program at SCSC, Harold A. Hoeglund, said the early registration has received good response for the spring quarter offerings.

Students who cannot register early may do so on March 31 for Monday and Wednesday evening classes and on April 1 for Tuesday and Thursday evening classes. Students registering for trade-technical courses will do so in the Vocational-Technical Building while those who register for academic courses will complete registration in the Arts Building. Evening College classes will begin Monday, April 5.

The SCSC Evening College will offer 100 academic courses and 45 trade-technical courses during spring quarter. Thirty-three of the courses to be offered during spring quarter will be new. Information may be obtained on all courses at the adult educational office in the Arts Building and at the Evening College office in the Vocational-Technical Building on the SCSC campus.

Academic courses to be offered during spring quarter will be in the areas of: Business and Economics, Community Service Courses, Drama, Education, Engineering, Englisy, Fine Arts, General Subjects, History and Social Science, Home Economics, Mathematics, Modern Languages, Music, Philosophy, Psychology, Science, and Speech.

Trade and technical courses to be offered are as follows: Air Conditioning and Refrigeration, Apprentice, Auto Mechanics, Blueprint Reading for the following trades (electrical, machine, building, welding), Diesel, Electronics, Machine Shop, Welding, and Woodworking and Building Construction.

Ball Planning Talks in Paris

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball will fly to Paris next week to discuss the Vietnamese war with America's North Atlantic Treaty Organization partners, informed NATO sources said Friday.

Ball will attend the regular meeting Wednesday of NATO permanent council and a special meeting Thursday.

Parents: Junior Will Cost You $22,400 by Age 18!

What is the price tag on the average 18-year-old youngster in El Paso County? How much have his parents spent over the years in the process of transforming him from a gurgling infant to a young adult?

Very few parents have any idea of what the cost has been. They have never thought of their children in terms of dollars and cents.

Had they paused along the line

Had they paused along the line, however, to tally up the bill, they would have been staggered. The cost of raising a child to age 18 runs well into five figures. Fortunately, it is spread out over the 18 years and is on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Economic studies into the financial costs of parenthood have been made by the Department of Agriculture, the New York Community Council and others.

They show that there is a great divergence, from family to family, in how much is spent. For the most part, income is the determining factor.

Where net income per family is between $6,000 and $8,000, as is the average in El Paso County, the outlay per child is approximately $22,400 to age 18.

The biggest part of it is for food. The figures show that a girl consumes about $8,200 worth and that a boy will outeat her by at least $500 over the period.

This is a cost that is distributed over the 18 years. Some costs, on the other hand, must be handled as they arise.

The initial expenditures, for example, in connection with the birth of the child. Medical fees, hospital bills and baby equipment call for an outlay of $650, on the average.

Afterward, in the course of his 18 years, a boy will use $2,400 worth of clothing and a girl, $2,900 worth. Dental and medical expenditures for the normal child are figured at about $1,000.

Other items listed are the portion of housing and transportation child as well as the many incidental expenses, ranging from dolls to baseball bats and from lipsticks to bicycles.

What has been the overall amount spent on the 2,721 boys and girls in El Paso County who are reaching 18 this year?

Based on the average expenditure per child locally, a grand total of $60,950,000. And that is before any consideration of college costs, for those who are going there.

Two Florence Teachers Get Study Grants

Two Florence teachers have been notified that they have been awarded special study grants for summer study in their fields, it was reported this week by Barto Babitz, superintendent of schools.

Jack Fish, junior high school instructor, has been awarded a grant of $920 to attend a science institute at San Diego State college at San Diego, Calif., for a period of eight weeks extending from June 28 to Aug. 20. His field of study will be astronomy and geology. Fish received his grant through the National Science Foundation.

Ben Zamarripa, an instructor in special education, has been awarded a grant of $750 plus tuition and fees at Western State College at Gunnison. He will study for a period of ten weeks, June 14 to Aug. 20.

The grant, made possible through the state department of education, will enable Zamarripa to take education courses especially related to his work in the field of special education. Zamarripa has been a member of the local teaching staff since 1959 and after choosing to enter the field of special education, has worked in that area for the past two years.

Palmer Teacher Candidate for State Honors

The competition is sponsored by the National Association of Biology Teachers. Nominations are made by principals and superintendents for 260 Colorado secondary schools.

Selection of the state winner will be announced Apr. 15, according to Professor Ivo Lindauer of Colorado State College and chairman of the event.

Security to Get Non-credit Courses

Plans are underway for two non-credit classes to the offered to Security residents this Spring. Mrs. Zoe Bechtol, coordinator of the University of Colorado's non-credit programs, stated that the C. U. Center and School District 3 are cooperating to offer courses in speech and writing and in interior decorating, beginning the week of April 12.

Inez Hunt, local author and lecturer, will teach "Techniques in Speech and Writing" on Mondays from 1 to 3 p.m. Vivian Novis of the Novis Art-Fram Gallery will teach "Design for home Living" on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to noon. Both classes, lasting for 8 weeks, will be held in the curriculum library of District 3 School Administration Building. Further details regarding fees and registration dates will be announced later by the C.U. offices 1105 North Nevada Ave.

Do You Know Words to Civil Rights Song?

The song, "We Shall Overcome," seems to hhe primary hymn of the present civil rights drive in the United States.

You can read in a report of a civil rights event that the song was sung, and you can hear snatches of it on TV, but who knows what the words really are?

Following are the words of the song, as supplied by the local sociation for the Advancement of Colorado People (NAACP).

"We shall overcome
"We shall overcome
"We shall overcome some day.
'If in my heart, I do believe
"We shall overcome some day.
"God is on our side
"God is on our side
"God is on our side today.
"If in my heart, I do believe
"We shall overcome some day.
"We are not afraid
"We are not afraid
"We are not afraid today.
"If in my heart, I do believe
"We shall overcome some day."

Fountain-Carson High News

By LINDA LAUGHLIN

Report cards were mailed home to the parents and guardians of students. These report cards showed the scholastic progress of the students.

The fall Parent-Teacher Conferences will take place on Wednesday, March 31. At this time parents will have a chance to confer with the teachers on the student's progress in school.

School will not be in session at this time.

FHA members will attend district meeting on April 2-3 in Colorado Springs and Glenwood Springs.

The monthly FTA meeting was held Thursday, March 25. At this meeting prospective club officers for next year gave their nomination acceptance speech.

Members of the Cadet Teaching Program gave speeches on their student teaching experiences.

Members of the Cadet Teaching Program of the FTA are now being engaged as teacher's helpers in the high school. By doing this the students are being given a chance to experience teaching first hand.

Members of the faculty were given the chance to look at maps and view various visual aids which they might order for next year on Monday, March 22. At this time they were also given estimates on the prices of the teaching aids.

Former Policeman Faces New Charges

PUEBLO(AP) — A former Denver policeman, acquitted on murder charges by reason of insanity 19 years ago, has been accused of running a confidence game as the representative of a Pueblo business college.

Frank D. Cowgill, 55, was cited in a warrant issued in Santa Fe, N.M., alleging he took $2,000 from three New Mexico residents and failed to provide promised business college training.

Cowgill was charged in June, 1946, with the fatal shooting of a friend William L. Cross, during a drinking spree.

After being found innocent by reason of insanity in October, 1946, Cowgill was committed to the State Hospital, from where he was discharged July 27, 1953.

Transmission Line Plans Approved

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Public Utilities Commission has approved four substations and connecting transmission lines proposed by Colorado-Ute Electric Association of Montrose.

Authority was granted to build:

Three Themes to Keynote Crusade Against Cancer

Against Cancer in April, Cancer Control Month, the American Cancer Society will stress three themes.

"All are especially important and vital in helping save lives from cancer," according to Bernard L. Trott, president of the local Cancer Unit's board of directors.

They are:

1. "Tell your Neighbor." This means passing on to neighbors facts about cancer that everyone should know about such as early diagnosis and prompt treatment as a precaution against death.

2. "To Help Cure More, Give More." There are about 1,300,000 Americans now alive, cured of cancer. A large contributing factor has been broad public and professional education programs and research efforts. The American Cancer Society needs more money to help carry on a expand these programs.

3. "Fight Cancer With a Check and a Checkup." Many die from cancer today because they do not have an annual health check-up which can usually reveal the disease in its early stage and most curable. Early diagnosis and prompt treatment is the difference between one out of two saved instead of one out of three — the number now being saved.

BERNARD L. TROTT

The check is self - evident: without finances for important furture research we cannot hope to save half of those who develop cancer.

"We have just begun one of the most important aspects of our Independent Crusade Against Cancer," Trott said. "..... the Neigtor to Heighbor Drive. Our Block volunteers accept a great responsibility for the success of the Cancer Crusade. We hope for the cooperation and goodwill of all the citizens of our community," the cancer leader said.

"The effectiveness of the three themes of our 1965 Crusade," Trott said, "depends on the public's response to them. They are meaningful because anything that helps save lives has great meaning."

'Teahouse' Set By AFA Players

What happens when superior American technology and democracy meet Oriental feudalism? Democracy and technology triumph, of course.

Or do they?

In the hilarious play, "Teahouse of the August Moon", author John Patrick provides the answer in 150 minutes of laughter and thought provoking comedy.

Patrick's play, based on the novel by Vern Sneider, will be presented by the Academy Players April 1,2, and 3 in lecture hall, F-1, Fairchild Hall.

All performances, beginning each evening at 8:15 p.m., are open to the public. Tickets for the public will be available at the door. A donation of $1 for adults and 50 cents for children is requested.

Featured in the large cast are Capt. W. F. Dater as Capt. Frisby, the man charged with bringing the wonders of democracy to a small Okinawa village; SMSgt. John Dill as the pompous Col. Purdy; Donna Gatlin as the lovely Lotus Blossom; Gary Grant as the wily Okinawan interpreter Sakini; and Bonnie Graves as Miss Higa-Jiga, Okinawa's answer to the suffragette movement.

TRANSPLANT

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Dr. Fernando Coronil of Caracas Hospital Jose Maria Vargas, told the National Surgeons Congress he transplanted the head of one dog on the body of another and kept it alive 14 hours in experiments to facilitate transplants of vital organs in human beings. He said the dog's bark was lost in the transplanting.

New Aerospace Program Slated By Explorers

Explorer Squadron 1 will host a special series of programs as they start the new Explorer Aero Space program of the Boy Scouts of America. The first program will be a presentation by Commander G. K. Ebbe, Naval Forces Continental Air Defense next Monday evening, March 29 at 7 p.m. at the Wayne Building on East Bijou Street.

This is the first of a series of special subjects which will be covered in the new Aero Space program of Squadron 1, under the leadership of their recently named Squadron Advisor First Lt. Irving Tracey.

The Squadron has been selected by the Exploring Service of the Boy Scouts of America to serve as a pilot group in the new Aero Space program, which has recently been developed by the Air Force and the Boy Scout organization, according to Col. Howard Cloud Jr., who is serving as Council President of the Boy Scouts as well as Commanding Officer of Ent Air Force Base.

Col. Cloud has named Col. Joseph Maddalena to head the committee of the recently reorganized Squadron 1.

All young men 14 years of age and older are invited to hear the series of special programs. Col. Maddalena stated that they do not have to be members of the Boy Scouts or members of Squadron 1 Explorers to enjoy these presentations on the Aero Space age.

Demonstrators In Selma March On Court House

About 125 of the 200 who left the church were Negroes. A motorcycle policeman and a state trooper car moved along the street with the marchers. A few white spectators stood along the 10-block route to the courthouse.

Speaking from the steps of the courthouse, James Orange, a Negro active in the civil rights drive, said: "We are gathered here for a few facts. We don't like what happened here the other night."

Orange, a huge man, recalled the deaths of two others in the Alabama racial struggle — the Rev. James J. Reeb, a Boston white minister fatally clubbed by white men here; and Jimmie Lee Jackson,, a Negro who died of a gunshot wound suffered in nearby Marion.

A Roman Catholic priest said a prayer and Heap prayed "for all the people of Selma, high and low."

Many of the marchers wore skullcaps as a sign of mourning.

After 12 minutes at the courthouse, the marchers crossed the street and walked back in the direction of the church, some of them humming.

After three blocks the marchers halted at the City Hall About 40 more Negroes joined them.

Orange also told the group: "When Col. Lingo starts ripping heads again, he's going to have a lot of heads to beat. The Negro people of Selma are not going to take any more beatings. But, if we get beat, we're not going to hit back."

Col. Al Lingo is head of the state troopers. It was troopers who turned back a planned march on March 7 with tear gas and billy clubs.

Fay Says No Decision on New Jail Expected Until After First of Year

By ED COOK
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

El Paso County Commissioner Rodger M. Fay told member and guests of the Farmers Luncheon Club Saturday that "without a doubt we need a new jail, newjail facilities, but we can't decide on a location until we know what we're going to do with the courthouse."

The countyroad commissioner said action on a decision concerning the future of the court facility probably would come after the first of the year.

District Court Judge William G. Gobin of La Junta ruled in December that El Paso County is the owner of Alamo Park on which the present courthouse stands. He also ruled that if the county ceases to use it as a park or courthouse it will revert to the city.

"We can use it for anything as long as it's used for county purposes," Fay said Saturday in the Swiss Chalet.

A fact -finding committee, comprised of about 35 civil leaders, is to advise commissioners and make recommendations for use of the courthouse, Fay said. The committee's report is yet to come, he added.

The decision by Judge Gobin was the result of a suit brought by the county commissioners against the Colorado Springs Co. and the City of Colorado Springs.

The El Paso County Public Works Committee recommended clearing title to the land where the courthouse stands. The committee was named after the commissioners authorized a three -mill levy to finance remodeling or construction of the courthouse and county jail.

The Building Committee has recommended that commissioners hire an architect and engineers if needed, Fay said.

"Space is needed and we need more room for courts," the road commissioner said, adding that there may come a time when two more floors will be added to the County Office Building, which is five stories high, but was designed for seven.

The fifth-floor Wedfare Department already is expanding. Plans call for 12 additional offices, by dividing the main reception room and small auditorium, according to Director Vard V. Gray.

Commissioner Fay said one of the biggest problems the board has is determining which roads in the county fall under its jurisdiction. Many of the roads have been deeded to the county, but have not been accepted because they do not meet certain standards, he said.

"You find so many people who call up and ask why we don't take care of their road. That's just it; it's their road," Fay said.

A task the Road and Bridge Department has is meeting the needs of rapidly growing El Paso County, Fay said.

"The needs are more and more all the time and people are wanting more services. Some don't want to put up with any inconvenience," he remarked.

The county road system rapidly is approaching 2,800 miles and more is added to the system all the time, resulting in a "stretch" of funds available for maintenance, Fay said.

Money allocated to the Road Department must be divided between salaries and machinery and other costs, he said. The commissioner explained that 28 "blades" now are in use throughout the county to clear roads, "but it's hard for those boys to keep up," with the ever-growing road system.

The county last week purchased two pick - up trucks and an aerial vehicle. Fay said "you would be surprised" how much the aerial truck is needed to service lights in the county.

He also cited the county's pop-200,000, as a factor in the growing problems of maintaining roads, which are added according to the population increase.

Projects underway by the county, Fay said, include:

—Mayhurst Bridge in Ivywild will be repaired.

—Garden of the Gods road west from Highway 25 will be divided into four - lanes.

—Portion of North 30th St. extension will be replaced and paved.

—Blacktop on 3.8 miles of Hancock Expressway will be laid as soon as weather permits.

—Maintenance of roads in northeast section of county will be continued according to schedule. Commissioners were commended for their work in the area.

Guest speaker at the April 10 meeting of the club will be Congressman Frank E. Evans, Democratic representative from the Third District.

the council felt the present three per cent limitation was not realistic.

"The nature of the delayed projects, the possibilities of long-term financing by bond issues and the steady increase of construction costs make the present three per cent figure obsolete.

"Ten per cent is much nearer what is acceptable for communities of this size.

"This decision was not made in 'secret session' by an arrogant council. It has been the subject of public discussion for years, was discussed at the sales tax hearings and has been recommended by civic groups.

County Demos Urged to Boost Frank Evans

the nation's outstanding leaders," Grant said.

"The act of governing ourselves is the highest form of human activity," Grant declared, and added, "participation in government is the highest form of civic service."

Grant also urged more partisanship in local politics.

"As far as I know you do not have a local party platform. We don't have one in Denver, and there is none in Ft. Collins or Pueblo," he said.

"We need partisanship in local government," he stated, and pointed out that the various forms of civil service employment in government from local municipalities up through state government have taken the potential for evil that exists in patronage out of the political arena.

With that potential evil gone, Grant declared, there is room in local politics for partisan activity.

"It is regretful that we have not had local platforms for local issues in the state," he said.

"Until you debate the issues and adopt a platform, no one has done all that he can for local government," he said.

On the state level, Grant said that the division in the state government makes it easy for people who don't want anything to be done to achieve their aim.

He was referring to the fact that the governorship is held by the Republicans, the control of the state Senate is in the hands of the Republicans, but control of the state House is in the hands of the Democrats.

Grant said that he has seen signs that indicate Gov. John A. Love may be backing away from his earlier goal of raising more funds for the state institutions.

"If this is so, the state may have to go on two more years with out sufficient money for its institutions," he stated.

Should the governor retreat from his position under the force of the opposition to his plan from his own party, "I am not sure what we as Democrats can do about it," Grant said.

He did not predict what the legislature or the governor would eventually do on the issue.

Grant also briefly discussed the sub-districting issue now before the legislatur.

He was referring to reapportionment within the state so far as it pertains to election of members of the state legislature.

He said that some people elected to the assembly last year might not have been elected had districting not been in effect. El Paso County was divided into three Senatorial Districts and five Representative Districts in accordance with U. S. Supreme Court decisions.

The subdistricting was done last summer before the primary election,, but since then the state Supreme Court has ruled that sub-districting within a county is in violation of the Colorado Constitution.

At this time, none seems quite sure how the next election, in 1966, will be conducted.

Before last year, El Paso County had three Representatives and two Senators, all elected at large.

Grant pointed out that some legislators support the U. S. Supreme Court theory of one man — one vote, while others are not sure that the rights of people from sparsely populated areas will be properly served under the Supreme Court rule.

Grant said that it is easy to criticize, but that the problem is more difficult for the people involved in finding an answer. He said that he believed the legislators were working conscientiously to find an answer to the problem.

Husband Booked In Disturbance Investigation

Don Chesebro, 31, 3700 N. Nevada Ave. was booked into county jail late Friday night following a signed complaint alleging disturbance, the sheriff's office reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune, Chesebro came home and told his wife June that he expected his supper to be on the table the moment he walked through the door. The report continues saying he then threw his coat and a lighted cigarette at her, and pulled her hair and struck her.

Mrs. Chesebro ran out of the iff's office and then signed the complaint.

Dist. Attorney Works on Hospital Probe

that he had two avenues open to him — if any criminal action is involved, he could file charges himself or turn the matter over to the Grand Jury which is scheduled to meet April 6, municipal election day.

"I assure you," Russel told the Gazette, "that I have no intention of withholding this information until after the election."

He commended council for "keeping good faith with me" and for initiating the investigation.

Russel also said he could not say at this time if the matter would be turned over for grand jury action.

In the meantime, City Attorney Frederick Henry told the Gazette Telegraph Saturday that the City council gave "informal" approval to the Hospital board of trustees investigation into the alleged irregularities.

He said that to the best of his knowledge, council did not meet in formal public session to give the go-ahead to the board's probe.

"I realize that this may give rise to more rash charges of "secret sessions," Henry said, "but as far as I know, it was strictly informal."

Henry pointed out that the investigation into the operations of the hospital was conducted by the board of trustees and not the city council.

"In my opinion they had the legal right to have such an iinvestigation," Henry said.

He said that City council could not release the details of the report submitted to the District Attorney.

"It is up to the District Attorney to release this information when and if he sees fit. It is ont of the council's hands," Henry told the Gazette Telegraph.

Meanwhile, the Gazette Telegraph learned Saturday that six employes of the Hospital had been questioned by the Board of Trustees. At least one of the six is no longer employed by the hospital.

Floyd A. Gephart, 2424½ E. Monument St., a supervisor at the hospital, said he was questioned by "someone hired by the board of trustees." He said he did not appear before the trustees during the investigation.

"We were more or less told not to talk about it," he said. Other employes told similar stories.

Trustees released a statement Friday admitting that an investigation of the hospital started "several months" ago. They said the investigation involved "certain transactions practices and procedures at the hospital."

A bulky report on the investigation was turned over to District Atorney Russel last Thursday.

Last Feb. 7 the city releas ed a report that the City Council was reviewing some of the hospital's "policies."

In that announcement, Mayor Harry Hoth said the council felt "it should concern itself more with the affairs of the hospital, including the nursing school operation."

A new nursing school class was not admitted last year. For the past several years the hospital has operated in the black, according to a city news release, except for money for bond retirement and some capital outlay. This year's capital outlay is $26,000 and bond retirement is about $66,000.

J. B. Williams was named acting director of the hospital Feb. 17. He will serve until a new executive director is appointed by hospital trustees to replace C. Franklin Fielden Jr. whose resignation was effective Monday.

Fielden's resignation was announced Feb. 13. At that time Mayor Harry Hoth said closer cooperation was needed between trustees of the hospital and the City Council.

Robert W. Hendee, chairman of the hospital board of trustees, said there was no connection between Fielden's resignation and the City Council's interest in the hospital's operations.

The hospital was started by a Methodist organization in 1900, the National Deaconess Sanitorium and Hospital Society.

There were many changes in organization, location and facilities until 1949 when a special city election was held to determine if the hospital should be operated by the city.

City funds have been used to make up budget deficits at the hospital and provide for capital construction.

An example was in April 1956 when the City Council approved a $600,000 bond issue for improvements, including a 60-bed addition.

In August 1950 the council authorized a $427,456 addition to the hospital. This was $27,456 over the $400,000 bond issue voted by the people. The difference was made up in a general appropriation in the city budget. The city code allows a special tax to be levied for support of the hospital.

The hospital superintendent is selected by the board of trustees and is directly responsible to the board. The City Council and manager still have general responsibility.

Throughout the years, various camplaints have been brought to the council regarding the hospital. One was in January 1962 when the council investigated the cost of aspirin at Memorial after Council Harold Hawks said he heard reports of a 50-cent aspirin charge. The council was told the basic cost, in some cases, was $1.50 for 12 tablets.

World Powers Build Up Gas War Arsenal

production equipment fell into the hands of the victors, including the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Soviet Union passed along to Red China supplies and help in setting up the Chinese Communists for production of their own material. The Chinese Reds also may have captured some gas warfare material from the Japanese as World War II ended.

As both Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have been emphasizing, the stuff used in Viet Nam was the least harmful of any of the CBR family of compounds. They are the tear and vomiting gases which McNamara says both police and military forces of the world use as riot control agents and which produce temporary effects ranging from three minutes up to two hours. They can be purchased commercially by anyone.

They were supplied to the South Vietnamese in the summer of 1962, but not used until last January, then again on two subsequent occasions.

One of the disadvantages of tear or nauseating gas is its limited persistency. It dissipates quickly into the atmosphere. If an oil base were added to make the material linger in an area, it would settle on the ground or objects and become useful only as an irritant upon contact with the skin.

CBR, nonlethal or lethal, may tant upon contact with the skin.

for private armies in California."

A spokesman for the attorney general's office later identified the "private armies" as — among others — the Minutemen and Rangers.

"This talk of our making guns for private armies is a lot of hogwash," Lowell Knudson, head of Knudson Mfg. Co. and operator of the Erquiaga Arms Co. told newsmen.

"We have a purchase order from the Costa Rica government for 500 automatic machine pistols, which we are filling..

"We are licensed by the Internal Revenue Service and working with the approval of the U.S. State Department in making these machine guns, which we understand are to be used by Cubans in fighting Castro," Knudson said.

Sheriff's Lt. E. D. Villines, who led the raid, acknowledged that the firm has a federal license to make the weapons, but said it lacks state authorization for manufacture, possession,, sale or transportation of such weapons. On these grounds, Citrus Municipal Court issued the search warrant.

U.N. Muddled Over Dispute Of Finances

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A wrangle over Soviet charges that the United States is waging poison gas warfare in Viet Nam has muddled efforts by the U.N. to straighten out its peacekeeping finances.

Fedorenko accused the United States of using "poison gas" in Viet Nam and declared such an act was "a crime against mankind."

Plimpton accused the Russians of injecting "a discordant, irrelevant and cold war propagandistic note" into a debate intended to deal with the U.N.'s financial problems.

Plimpton charged that the real aggressor in Viet Nam was the Communist northern regime which he said seeks by "violence and terror" to destroy the Saigon government.

He said the United States sought "no wider conflict — only the termination of aggression." It was not embarking upon gas warfare, he said, but only used nonlethal riot control gas.

Fedorenko told the U.N. committee the Congo and Middle East operations had violated the U.N. Charter. He said that before tackling present U.N. financial difficulties, the committee should adopt measures to insure that future peacekeeping operations adhere to the charter.

He insisted that the establishment, direction and financing of all future U.N. forces should be left to the Security Council where there is a big power veto.

Plimpton said the committee's first problem was to assure U.N. solvency — threatened by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and others to pay peacekeeping assessments.

Plimpton charged that the Soviet Union wants a "perpetual veto" over peacekeeping and therefore insists that the assembly "has no right whatsoever as to the keeping of the peace or its financing."

Protest Against Chain Food Stores Voiced

DENVER(AP)—Letters inviting all 49 other states to petition Congress against some chain store food marketing practices were sent out today by Rep. John Baer Jr., D-Lowma. Baer and Rep. Hiram McNeil, D - Montrose, were principal sponsors of a memorial passed by the Colorado Legislature.

Baer enclosed a copy of the memorial in letters sent to all governors, speakers of houses of representatives and presidents of senates of the other states.

The Colorado Memorial says many persons believe practices objected to are in restraint of trade.

He also asks for an expression of views from other legislatures.

Measle Cures Are as Old as Man; Disease Is More Deadly Than Polio

The average parents who thinks of measles as a simple disease causing a rash and sore eyes, a disease that every child "catches" sooner or later — and better sooner — is wrong on every count. But he (and more often she) has a sound historical base for the error.

Measles is a complex disease, not simple. It produces serious illness, and complications as dreadful as encephalitis. It causes more deaths each year than polio did even before polio vaccines. It can cause physical crippling and mental retardation. Measles has been for centuries a harbinger of tragedy. Today it can be prevented by new vaccines, which, if widely used, promise its elimination.

Arabian physicians first recorded measles "scientifically" in the ninth or tenth century, but confused it with smallpox, a mistake that persisted in some medical texts until recently.

But far more anciently Chinese and East Indian texts described the disease and provided magical or religious measures for its allevation. The ill of both peoples propitiated smallpox-measles divinities, and may still do so, according to an article published in 1960 by the "Bulletin of Medical History."

Many ancient peoples assumed that woman is evil, and is purged by menstruation. This belief provided a rationale for measles and other exanthematous diseases of childhood for generations, and has not yet wholly died out.

Anathema a curse, and especially one pronounced by an ecclesiatic person, is believed by an ecclesiastic person, is believed by some students of medical history to relate the female "curse," menstruation, to measles and similar diseases. According to this theory, pregnancy prevents the proper periodic blood cleansing while the developing child, enclosed in the womb, absorbs the mother's cumulative anathemas. Thus, inevitably, the infant is cleansed through the "exanthemata" — the name given all infant afflictions which produce skin eruptions.

Even in recent years among southern slavic families, it is said that an infant must "clear itself" of the impurities it absorbed in the womb, so dismissing the skin eruptions of early life as a natural form of purification.

The concept that such diseases are not only inevitable but desirable has support among many modern parents and physicians, and is buttressed by evidence that German measles, or rubella, if contracted by a woman in the first trimester of pregnancy can damage the fetus. There is no doubt, therefore, that German measles is "good" for the pre-pubescent girl.

In the times when measles could not be prevented, it was also truly well for all children beyond early infancy to have the disease and "get it over with." Measles "go hard" with adults — as do mumps, another childhood disease.

Many of the older remedies, quite naturally, were designed to encourage the eruption of measles spots.

Warmth is a favored remedy of the past and present to encourage eruption. Brandy and warm tea was, and still may be, a Slovakian measure. Romanian children get brandy with saffron. Hot toddy is an old American device to drive the measles out.

The shepherd folk of western Europe concocted a variety of "nanny berry" teas, of which lamb or sheep dung, or even fruit resembling the small, round, black balls of sheep excreta, was the essential ingredient.

In Germany and England and Spain and in the United States in Pennsylvania, Maine, Iowa, the Carolinas, this "tea" was brewed with wine or milk or ale, or simply water, strained and given to the sick. The same remedy has been found among the Navajo Indians who acquired it, as they did their sheep and no doubt their measles, too, from the Spaniards.

Even more magical remedies and some perhaps less appetizing are recorded: mice, cooked; bezoar stone, powdered — bezoar stone being by repute an intestinal calculus of a Persian wild goat; Hungary stone, a mixture of powdered precious stones and exotic botanicals.

such as lemon peel, sorrel — or anything red — was another widespread remedy being recorded from China and Japan, Egypt, and many parts of Europe where, like the bezoar stone and many other medicines, it was probably introduced by the Arabs.

Preventive medicine designed to keep other children (and adults, too) at more than arm's length was also practiced. Bags of asafoetida, garlic, brimstone, sulphur or other noxisious substances were hung in bags about the neck.

Thankfully, prevention is now much more acceptable and effective. The first measles vaccine was made available in early 1963.

Since then it has been possible to confer measles immunity with three injections of killed-virus vaccine, or with various combinations of killed and live-virus vaccines, or with live vaccines alone or with gamma globulin. (This last, called GG, is the fraction of human blood serum which contains antibodies. It is given as a separate, simultaneous injection with live-virus vaccines, or with live measles-like reactions of fever and rash.)

Now a new truly one-shot, vaccine made from live measles virus further attenuated than that used to make earlier vaccines is available. Called the Schwarz or Schwarz-strain vaccine, it is given without gamma globulin. A large-scale study by the Chicago Department of Health has established that it causes mild rash and low fever in only a small percentage of children. Yet its effectiveness rate is 99 per cent.

Called Lirugen, the new Schwarz vaccine was developed and is produced by the Pitman-Moore Division of The Dow Chemical Company Indianapolis. Even before its general availability was announced, Dr. Saul Krugman, chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at New York University School of Medicine told the "Journal of the American Medical Association." "The use of further attentuated virus vaccine will probably replace attenticipated virus vaccine given with gamma globulin. . ."

Dust Can be a Vicious Culprit, Destroying Lungs

Germs are the most popularly known cause of disease, but plain dust can be a threat to the human lungs — some kinds of dust can even cause death.

One of the primary objectives of the Tuberculosis Association is to determine the cause of lung disorders, and dust has been found to be a substantial threat to many. Research, aided through the sale of Christmas Seals, goes on continually in the Webb - Waring Institute at Denver.

The most commonly known disease of the lungs in which no germ or organism is regularly found is emphysema — the lungs simply turn lifeless, and the rich salmon pink color of the normal lung is replaced with a transparent mass of what appear to be tiny bubbles.

Dust is an irritant. In the same way, tobacco smoke acts to put stresses on the lung tissue which may break down the lung health to a dangerous or even fatal point. The irritation can be either chemical or physical or both.

One of the most famous dust diseases is silicosis. The result of inhaling silica, or quartz dust into the lungs, silicosis is a killer, and it has been since man first mined or worked in stone. All types of mining in which the ore sought is found in quartz offers a silicosis threat. This includes mining gold, lead lead, zinc, iron and copper. Most doctors believe that silica slowly dissolves within the lungs and produces a chemical reaction that poisons the cells. Scar tissue develops, and after that the vicitim is wide open for an attack of tuberculosis or emphysema.

Prevention is the secret. Men working in any area where there is chemical or mineral dust should be fully protected. Dust from iron ore in arc-welding fumes, can result in a disease called siderosis. There are many others. The lungs, once damaged, are difficult to treat —guard them.

RAMBLES BACK—Ramblin' Ray Rose, above with a vintage car that is as old as some of the classic songs he plays, is tinkling the ivories in a return engagement in the Golden Bee in the Broadmoor International Center. The popular ragtime entertainer has delighted Colorado Springs patrons with his old-time tunes and songs sung in a "bourbon baritone" and with his recitations such as "The Face On the Barroom Floor," "He Ain't Done Right By Nell," and "The Cremation of Sam McGee." Rose was born in Lamar, Missouri, and his first job was playing for a medicine show when he was 11 years old. For 15 years, Rose has been traveling throughout the United States and Canada entertaining customers and after he completes a tour he now returns to a recently purchased 14 room home that used to be an old stage coach stop. Ramblin' Ray plays nightly in the Golden Bee except Sunday and will be featured there for the next few weeks.

Questions and Answers on Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, the Gazette Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism, Inc.

1 Q. If there is total abstinence, how would there be any Alchoholism?

A Total abstinence certainly could not create Alcoholism but since social drinking is part of our culture and all persons are not afflicted with an adverse reaction, it is unlikely that it is necessary for everyone to abstain. Latest figures indicate one out of 13 social drinkers becomes an alcoholic. Prohibition apparently wasn't the anszer — Alcohol Education giving facts and knowledge appears to be action program available.

2. Q. How does a Company Program for Alcoholism work?

A. Over 80 leading companies have programs to fit their needs. For instance, E. I. du Pont's (one of the first) encourages an employee to visit the company physician when he realizes he has an uncontrollable problem in alcohol. He learns about Alcoholics Anonymous. In fact the home office Medical Staff includes a member of A.A. who aids the victims and helps set up A.A. Groups at other company locations. Another large choice of media of recovery but the employee must do some thing. The company does not fire them for Alcoholism but seperates them for doing nothing about it.

3. Q. Do all large companies have some Alcoholics?

A. "A company that says it doesn't have any problem with Alcoholism among its employees doesn't know what it is talking about", says Dr. John L. Nonnis, Medical Director of Eastman Kodak Company. Recent statistics indicate 1 out of every 33 eemployees who drink will become an alcoholic.

4. Q. Are there company-community programming for Alcoholism?

A. Yes, a number of cities have outstanding community-wide programs in which business and industry play an important cooperative role. Rochester, New York, with a metropolitan population of nearly one-half million, has one of the best. All hospitals there will accept cases of acute alcohol intoxication.

5. Q. My father stopped drinking through A.A. but my Mother won't stop or go to A.A. What can we do about it?

A While A.A. is one of the most successful media of recovery perhaps your Mother cannot accept it at the present time. Discuss the problem with your family physician, spiritual advisor or a professional consultant. Motivation techniques can be acquired, such as creating a family crisis.

6. Q. Our Sociology Professor says excessive drinking is a behavioral pattern, not a disease. Is this true?

A. The stigma clinging to the illness is probably the result of a behavioral pattern but the A.M.A. describes it as a disease. Modernly trained Sociologists are now understanding the illness aspect and are contributing much in the field. Possibly your Professor is of the old school of thought on this matter. He may not be familiar with development in this field in the past 15 years; or he may still stick to his own opinion. Never the less, it ranks as one of the four major health problems of this country.

SEE NEXT COLUMN: My church used to preach total abstinence. Now they seem to be changing their attitude—Why?

Soviets Hurried Into War, Truman Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman says Soviet reluctance to open a front in Manchuria vanished after an atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima in the closing stages of World War II.

Truman said on a television program Friday night it appeared at first that Stalin was "stalling, that he didn't really intend to enter the war at all, except on is own terms."

After the bomb, said Truman, "the Soviets hurried into the war as if they were going to miss a party if they weren't there on time."

Man Pleads Guilty After 44 Years

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Free for 44 years despite a first-degree murder conviction, LeRoy Dunlap, 64, might well have gone free gor good but for the plea he entered at his new trial Friday.

However, Dunlap pleaded guilty of first - degree manslaughter.

He learns Tuesday whether he'll get 1 to 20 years' imprisonment or wins the probation he asks.

"I didn't have the evidence, witnesses — nothing for a first-degree murder conviction and I would have had to recommend letting the old guy go free," Summit County Prosecutor James V. Barbuto said in an interview after Friday's developments.

Dunlap, a grandfather who has spent more than two-thirds of his life running from the law, was convicted in absentia of the 1920 holdup-slaying, with four accomplices, of waiter Steve Bossos in Akron.

He escaped during the trial and the jury returned a guilty verdict without a recommendation for mercy, making the death penalty mandatory.

Last October, Dunlap was arrested at a soldiers' home in Washington, D.C., where he had been living since retirement from the Air Force in 1959.

Friday's trial was supposed to have been a retrial of the old murder charge. All transcripts of the original trial had been destroyed and the witnesses who could be located had hazy memories.

Barbuto told the court in his opening statement he could prove Dunlap had a gun when he went into the restaurant with four other men. But the prosecutor said he could not prove that the killing occurred during an attempted robbery.

Dunlap used the name Harry Walker in the Air Force. He has a wife,a son and two grandchildren living in St.Louis.

CUTTING COST OF WATER DESALTING

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two University of Toronto chemical engineers told a meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers here they can cut the cost of desalting seawater one-fourth below any currently used process.

The pair, Dr. I. H. Spinner and Dr. R. L. Hummel, reported on two advances accomplished said, enables "hardness" to be removed, using only one-hundreth of the "softener" normally required for the process; the second speeds up the boiling process so that 50 per cent less fuel is required for distillation.

Record Years May Be Changed

DENVER (AP) — A bill that would nullify a law passed in 1964 requiring school districts to operate their finances on a calendar year basis won preliminary approval Friday in the House.

Rep. John R. Mackie, R-Longmont, a backer of the bill, said that to require districts to move to a calendar year would force them to borrow large amounts of money and would create hardships. Many districts operate on a fiscal year basis from July 1 to June 30 of the following year.

Rep. Kenneth Monfort, D-Greeley, said that the Greeley school districts would have to boost tax levies 8 to 10 mills in one year to change to a calendar year and the same thing would happen to other districts in Weld County. He said if the bill didn't pass he and his two fellow Weld County Democrats might not return to the House.

Council Candidates File Answers To Charter Group Questionnaire

City Council candidates have taken positions on 14 local issues in reply to a questionnaire from the Colorado Springs Charter Association.

Harry Hoth and Ben Langella seek the one two-year term. In the race for three six-year terms are: Andrew Marshall, Jr., T. Eugene McCleary, Oscar Watson, Charles H. Guy and James K. Johnson.

Here are the questions and answers:

(1) Are you in favor of the proposed city ordinance prohibiting billboards within 660 feet of controlled access highways? Watson, "No." Langella, Marshall, Guy, "Yes." Hoth, "The state legislature has several bills pending. . .we should wait to see how this legislation develops." Johnson and McCleary took the same position as Hoth. "I believe the sign industry has a place," McCleary added.

(2) Do you favor election of councilmen by districts? McCleary, Watson, "No." Johnson and Marshall, more study needed on problem. Langella, "Some 65 per cent of our population is without neighborhood representation." He suggested electing four or five councilmen by districts and the rest at large. Guy had the same idea. Hoth said this was a question of "apportionment" and added that the city's election method supports "to the maximum degree the one-man one-vote principle."

(3) Do you favor increasing the city's bonded indebtedness limit from 3 to 10 per cent of assessed valuation? Guy, "No." McCleary, Johnson, Watson, "Yes." Marshall, "It should be increased, but I am not sure that 10 per cent is the best amount." Langella, more time for study because the question has "been discussed in 'secret executive sessions' or the council has had only a few days to decide on the question. Hoth noted that the people would vote on the issue April 6 and any bond issues.

(4) Do you favor proposed state legislation to facilitate annexation by cities of contiguous and surrounded areas? Watson, "No." Other candidates, "Yes."

(5) Do you favor a "Green River Ordinance" (prohibiting door-to-door solicitation) for Colorado Springs? Johnson and Hoth, the people should decide. Other candidates, "yes."

(6) Do you favor increasing the size of the Memorial Hospital Board from 5 to 15 members: Watson, "No." Other candidates, "Yes." Hoth added, "It is unfair to ask just a few men to serve on this board when there is so much work to be undertaken."

(7) Should the city acquire more land for park and recreation sites? How do you pay for this? Guy "Yes," city income tax. Hoth, "Yes." "Financing should be handled in two ways, one by direction of the City Council, and the other by a vote of the people for bond issues." Johnson, "land is not the problem, financing is." He said developers contribute enough park land under the present plan. Langella suggested a cooperative plan with the school district to provide play areas using equipment now on elementary school playgrounds. Marshall, "Yes, the method of financing parks is only one part of the larger question of city finances in general." McCleary, "Only after present sites and existing parks and improved to the fullest extent. Then I would favor further acquisition only through bond issue submitted to voters." Watson, "No."
All candidates, "Yes."

(8) Do you favor the council-manager form of government?

(9) Do you favor implementing the City Charter provision requiring a school of nursing at Memorial Hospital? Marshall, "I don't know enough about this question to answer it intelligently." Langella, "Before this charter provision is implemented a careful study must be made to determine the need, cost and available facilities." Other candidates, "Yes."

(10) Do you favor city-county consolidation or formation of a metropolitan county if there is not cooperation and coordination of city and county functions in other ways? Guy "No . . .It would be a complete repudiation of the council-manager form." Hoth, "the City Council is non-partisan, and the county government partisan. . . I do not think this can be settled in the immediate future." Johnson, "City-county cooperation and coordination is almost always possible. Consolidation has lots of good points." Other candidates, "Ye."

(11) What qualities would you look for if a new city manager were chosen? Guy, "humility, character, integrity, prudence, background, experience." Business and engineering knowledge would be helpful, he added. Hoth said he would use his knowledge from serving on the planning commission and council in selecting a manager. Johnson, "some knowledge of economics, planning, engineering personnel and organization." Langella, "highly qualified, working experience as a manager, working at present in an area of rapid growth, man from outside our area to free him from any conflict or interest, hired on short term contract renewable on merit basis." Marshall, "character and leadership, professional training in city management, experience, a period of non-governmental business experience." McCleary, "experience in municipal government, educational background, good leader able to speak well in public maintain good public relations with public." Watson, "background experience in city administration, well qualified, proven ability."

(12) Do you favor a city sales tax. How can the city raise additional revenues? Guy, city income tax. A sales tax would be "regressive. . .it takes a larger portion of the poor man's income than it does of the rich man's income." Hoth, "The city's financial position is serious. A sales tax would have to have the consent of the people of the community either by a regular election or a special election." Johnson, "I was in favor of the sales tax. The legality of the sales tax has not been handed down yet by the State Supreme Court." Langella, "with the present geographical make-up of Colorado Springs and the surrounding area I would at this time be opposed to a city sales tax. A detailed study. . .our future needs and the expresion of the public wishes could at a later date change my position." Marshall, "I would like to form a citizen's committee to explore the question of raising additional capital and operating funds required by the city's phenomenal growth." I feel that state legislation to permit a county-wide sales tax is important, if the sales tax appears to be the best solution." McCleary, "Many various ways if financing have been studied. The most equitable seems to be the sales tax. I am in favor of a sales tax if it is tied definitely to reduction or elimination of the property tax. I would much prefer the tax on a county wide basis. This should be submitted to the people for a vote." Watson, "I believe the sales tax issue should be put to the vote of the people."

(13) How can the City Council stimulate interest and participation of the people in city government? Guy, "We shall have better government only as the result of higher political ideals in the great mass of people." Hoth, "This has been tried through the public information project which publishes the agenda of the council meetings and other facts on city business." Johnson, "People only seem interested when something affects them personally. Some godd suggestions would be appreciated." Langella "Greater interest in city government by the public could be developed by making government available to the public. Marshall, "Periodic special meetings of the council in each major sect on of the city." He said these would not be legislative sessions. McCleary, "I believe that all the information possible should be given to the public." Watson, "No."

(15) List, in order of importance, criteria which which would guide your decisions of rezoning of residential properties for other uses? Guy, a "rezoning law must reasonably promote health, morals safety or welfare of the citizens." Hoth, "Any rezoning should be guided by consideration of the overall plan of the city." Johnson, "I am not in favor of spot zoning." Langella, "public interest, immediate and future affects on people in the area, public interest." Marshall "I follow the rezoning check sheet as drawn up by the planning engineer for use by the planning commission. The order of importance is not the same in every case." McCleary, "actual need, how near an area is to an expanding commercial zone, type of housing and residents in area, wishes of residents and effect on their investment." Watson, "For the best interest of the citizens."

Federal Office Calls Off Probe Of 'Minds'

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has promised to call off tests that probe its employes' minds and sex life.

The decision was relayed by Rep. Cornelius Gallagher, D-N.J., who had planned a special investigation into "an insidious and illegal search of the human mind."

A State Department letter promising an end to such psychological tests came, Gallagher said after he announced his planned probe.

Gallagher listed these as some of the questions employes were supposed to mark off as true or false:

My father was a good man.
My sex life is satisfactory.
I enjoy reading love stories.
I believe in the second coming of Christ.
I believe women ought to have as much sexual freedom as men.
I loved my mother.
I believe there is a God.
Once in a while I laugh at a dirty joke.
I wish I were not bothered by thoughts about sex.

And so on for 566 such questions, said Gallagher.

In addition, he added, the employes — in other agencies as well as the State Department — have been asked to give written answers to such questions as whether they are "troubled" by: deciding whether I'm really in love; in love with someone of a different religion; too deeply involved in a love affair; being too inhibited in sex matters.

William J. Crockett, deputy undersecretary of state for administration, explained that in medical examinations "we have had a policy of using various types of psychological testing wherever it is indicated this testing might assist in reaching the correct diagnosis and in determining the proper treatment for the individual."

Crockett noted there have been a lot of questions raised as to whether "this requirement was an appropriate one for a government agency to impose upon its personnel.

The State Department apparently decided it wasn't, for Corckett promised that "effective immediately we have discontinued this policy."

Instead, he said, the department will require employes that appear to need such help to get psychiatric counseling.

Your Outdoors

By MARY SHIRER
For the Pikes Peak Group of the Colorado Mountain Club

There are terrifying experiences which strike this earth of ours. Volcanic eruptions which some prats of the world expri-ence, is something most distressing. Hurricanes and cyclones we wish to avoid, but whatever strikes the earth, we have great silence probably after the terrible disturbance. Sometimes it coms on suddenly as th terrible disaster. Perhaps after some great catastrophe, where there has been a great loss of life and property, a silence seems to reign over all the destruction as though nature was just tired after all the disturbance and would care to be left alone and rest. You move about quietly as though you were the only one in the whole community who was awake. In the stillness of the night the stream runs softly and there is no rustle of branches of the trees. The mountains stand like sentinels. All the animals have sought their quarters. The birds of the air find their resting places.

All hope, fear and sorrow and aching hearts, the restless unsatisfied longing ceases for awhile in the silence of the night. At the break of day new hopes seem to steal in and peace seems to reign over hill and dale and echoes through the forest and comes floating down over all who dwell below. Sometimes during the throb of the large city, there comes a second of silence of during the din of a great battle, there comes a lull for a moment. In some large building where thousands of people have gathered to hear an eloquent speaker, there comes an unbelievable silence. We wonder how it could ever be.

When we think of the many planets and how the earth revolves, there might be many disturbances and that there could scarcely be any silence in the universe. Astronomy is our oldest science and people in the early ages turned their attention to the heavens and they were much more dependent upon weather than we are today. All the bounties of nature proceeded from heavens. When we gaze on the star - lit skies at night, there is great brilliance but all is quiet there. And we marvel at it all. In the woodland places on the mountain and on the summits of high peaks, there is a silence that is impressive. The flyer loves the silence in the great heights of the sky. The captain of the ship loves it as he sails the mightly waters. To sit on the rocks and look across from peak to peak or to trace the forest's shady scene or climb the trackless mountain, the high - floating clouds, the life - giving sunlight and shifting winds makes for peace and quiet and gives us life. The birds come close and have learned not to fear man, cottontails peer at you from the thicket and the deer leap before you. As the poet said, "Silence is more musical than any song." It is unspoken, yet profound, so loud and so far it thrills you, so soft and as fair as a star.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Finishing her shower, a hotel guest started to turn off the water. But she lost her footing, skidded, and hit the tile floor with a thud. Battered and bruised, she later sued the hotel for damages.

"That tile was slippery," she complained in court. "Why didn't they furnish a rubber mat for safety? As a guest of the hotel, I was entitled to every possible protection."

But the court denied her claim, finding no fault on the part of the management. The judge said the danger of slipping in such circumstances ought to be obvious to everyone who ever has taken a shower.

Much of our hotel law dates back to the Middle Ages, when thieves and ruffians (and Robin Hood) roamed the roads of England. A high degree of responsibility was imposed on the owners of inns, which were a sort of safety zone for the anxious traveller.

However, the emphasis was on his belongings rather than his personal safety. Thus, this strict rule never applied to hazards from the accommodations themselves — the furnishings and appliances used by the guest.

In that respect the hotel's responsibility has always been, and still is, merely to use "reasonable care" — much like the responsibility of a store toward its customers.

What care is "reasonable?" Of course, circumstances differ in each case. However, a few examples will give you a rough guide:

A hotel was held liable to a guest who stepped on a needle, where evidence showed that the room had not been properly cleaned for her arrival.

And a hotel was held liable to a guest who got a shock from turning on the light, where the management had allowed the wiring to fall into dangerous disrepair.

But a hotel was held not liable to a guest bitten by an insect, where there was nothing to indicate that the hotel could have prevented the mishap.

And a hotel was held not liable to a guest injured when a bench cracked under her weight, where there was a defect in the wood not discoverable by any normal precautions.

"A hotel," said the court, "is not an insurer against accidents."

Value of Oswald's Rifle $10,000

DALLAS (AP) — Court-appointed appraisers put a $10,000 value on the mail order rifle Lee Harvey Oswald used to kill President Kennedy and the pistol he carried at the same time.

A bullet from the pistol killed city policeman J. D. Tippit as he sought to arrest Oswald.

Probate Judge F. W. Bartlett Jr. accepted the valuation and appointed Mrs. Marina Oswald, the assassin's widow, community administrator of the property Friday.

An assistant of Bartlett, Harry McKay, said he understood from counsel for Mrs. Oswald that a gun collector had offered $10,000 for the two guns. The rifle cost Oswald $12.95.

William Blalock, Mrs. Oswald's lawyer, said he felt the Justice Department should relinquish the weapons but he didn't know what would be done to bring this about.

CU Gets Large Bequest From Shaw Estate

The University of Colorado has received a bequest of $100,000 from the late Florence B. Shaw in memory of her husband, George H. Shaw, who died in 1956.

University officials said the funds will be used to establish the "George H. Shaw Scholarship and Loan Fund."

Shaw was graduated from CU in 1913 and took a law degree here two years later. He practice law in Ft. Collins for several years and about 1925 he moved to Denver, where he was counsel for the Public Service Company.

He was the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1930, but was defeated in the general election. A few years later Shaw moved to Kansas City and then to New York City, where he was vice president and general counsel for the Cities Service Co.

Mrs. Shaw, who died a year and a half ago, had no connection with the University of Colorado, but she wished to perpetuate her husband's memory at CU.

El Dorado Oil Field Notes 50th Anniversary

EL DORADO, Kan. (UPI) — The Kansas oil industry Friday marked the 50th anniversary of discovery of the rich El Dorado oil field in a day - long celebration at the site of the "No. 1 Stapleton."

The 260 million barrel well, which still is producing, was the center of ceremonies at the site northwest of El Dorado.

J. C. McCay, who dedicated a monument at the spot 25 years ago, re-dedicated it Friday.

McCay recalled that peak production of the El Dorado field occurred in 1918, when its output was 28,870,000 barrels. It was the largest field in the United States and the largest source of oil available to the Allies during World War I, he said.

El Dorado boomed with the impact of the oil discovery. Its population zoomed from 4,000 to 16,000 in four years.

At present the El Dorado field has 1,383 producing wells on 25,000 acres.

Two Wasson Teachers Get Shell Merit Fellowships

John M. Akey, 1321 Delaware Drive, and Charles E. Reser, 1401 Kingsley, teachers at Wasson High School, have been awarded Shell Merit Fellowships for advanced study at Stanford University from June 21 to August 14 of this year.

W. A. Alexander, in making the announcement, said Akey and Reser are two of 100 outstanding high school science and mathematics teachers from the United States and Canada selected to attend the 1965 graduate-level seminars at Stanford and Cornell Universities. Fifty teachers attend each school.

Both universities made their selections on the basis of merit and leadership qualities from approximately 2,000 applicants. The seminars were established ten years ago by the Shell Companies Foundation, Incorporated, to help maintain the quality of the nation's scientific effort. Including this year's award winners, 950 teaches will have attended the seminars since the program was started.

The educators selected to attend the seminars will receive a travel allowance, tuition costs, living expenses, and $500 additional cash to offset loss of potential summer earnings, Alexander said.

Akey, a chemistry teacher at Wasson, was awarded his B.S. degree at Colorado State University in May 1955 and received his M.S. at Oklahoma State, Stillwater, Okla., in 1961. Subsequent fellowships enabled him to take further work at Syracuse University and later Oklahome State. He taught at Eckley and Wray, Colorado, high schools before coming to Wasson in 1961.

Reser, a physics instructor, achieved his A. B. degree in 1951 and his M. A. in 1959 at Colorado State College, Greeley. National Science Foundation grants enabled him to take additional work at Colorado College in 1961-62 and at the University of California (Berkeley) in 1964. He taught at Crawford and Gering, Neb., High Schools and at North Junior High here before starting at Wasson in 1960.

Akey and Reser have worked closely together on science fair activities, and beginning with the 1965-66 school year will cooperate in teaching a two-year course combining high school chemistry and physics on an experimental basis.

While at Stanford, these teachers will receive advanced training in mathematics, chemistry and physics as well as training in new educational knowledge of applications of science and mathematics in industrial plants are included in the seminar program.

Akey and Reser also will be encouraged to devote time to any phase of their work at Wasson High School which they feel requires special research or attention.

The Merit Fellowship program is one of a number of aid - to - education programs sponsored by the Shell Foundation. The Foundation was created in 1953 and by the end of this year, it will have donated approximately $9,307,000 in support of education.

Car Salesman Was Famed Band Leader

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 65-year-old Salt Lake City car salesman who died Thursday was revealed today to have been a nationally known band leader of the 1920s and 30s.

Getting his start with a combo on "The Vagabond Hour," a local radio program, Taggart in 1927 took a song that a friend, Robert Sauer, had written and zoomed into the nation's limelight.

The song: "Springtime in the Rockies."

It became his theme song as he toured leading hotels and ballrooms of the U.S.

During his 20 years of leading bands, Taggart composed or collaborated on more than 100 songs. Among them were "When the Wild, Wild Roses Bloom Again," "Starlight and You," "Colorado Skies" and "Cindy Lou."

Taggart had worked as an auto salesman since his retirement from music in 1940.

He is survived by his widow, Blanche, two sons and a daughter. Services were set for Monday at the Marlborough Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Bag Did Not Carry Payroll for Plant

BOSTON (AP) — Two men jumped into a draftman's car apparently thinking a paper bag he was carrying contained the payroll of the New England Structures, Inc.

It didn't. It contained clam chowder and a sundae.

William Di Bartoliomere, 25, of Revere, a structural draftsman at the company, said the two men were so annoyed Friday when they found no payroll that they took $71 from his wallet and stole his car.

The car was recovered about a mile away.

College Housing Administrators To Meet at CU

About 50 administrators and employes of student housing programs will be at the University of Colorado Wednesday and Thursday for a conference.

It will be the 10th annual meeting of the Intermountain Housing Officers and it will be attended by representatives of colleges and universities from seven states in the Rocky Mountain region.

Highlights of the two - day meetings will include a talk March 31 by Dr. Ralph Wilson director of Denver University's School of Hotel and Restaurant Management. He will speak on "The Role of Housing and Food Service in Higher Education."

Also on the program will be a panel discussion by Clifford Yoder, director of CU student residences.

Hobart D. Wagener, Boulder architect, and Robert Brooks of CU's Kittredge Residence Halls. They will discuss the planning and building of a new residence hall.

Oden to Speak At National Conference

Donald A. Oden, director of Rastall Center at Colorado College, will be one of the featured speakers at the 42nd annual conference of the Association of College Unions April 4-7 in San Francisco.

Oden will speak at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 6, about "Technology and Its Impact on Programming" for college and university student unions.

College and university officers and staff members who are responsible for the operation of some 900 college unions in North America and 250 overseas as cultural, educational and recreational centers for the campus community will attend the convention.

Oden, who has been director of the Colorado College student union for the past year and a half, previously was director of Slocum Hall and student activities adviser.

Before that he was assistant program director at Indiana University's Indiana Memorial Union.

Oden holds a bachelor's degree from Utah State University and a master's degree from Indiana. He also has attended Drake University.

Aspen School Superintendent Resigns Post

ASPEN (UPI)—The resignation of Earl J. Kelly, school superintendent, has been accepted by the Aspen school board effective July 1.

Kelly had submitted his resignation March 5 but the board commended Kelly "for a job well done" and withheld formal acceptance. Kelly quit because of "harassment." He said in a letter to the board he had a growing desire to leave the job.

William Clark, president, said the school board accepted the resignation reluctantly. He said pressure against Kelly centered on his relative weak emphasis on athletics.

A petition with 70 signatures asked Kelly's resignation, Clark said. But 270 other townspeople petitioned the board to refuse to release Kelly from a three year contract. He was in the first year of a new $10,500 a year superintendent's contract. Kelly had come to Aspen in 1960.

Clark said the harassment no longer involved allegations of terrorism among Aspen students. One mother had charged her daughter was mistreated because of weak school discipline of other students.

The school board president described Kelly as "a case of a man who has been instrumental in implementing a new program in the town."

Three Schools Receive Grants

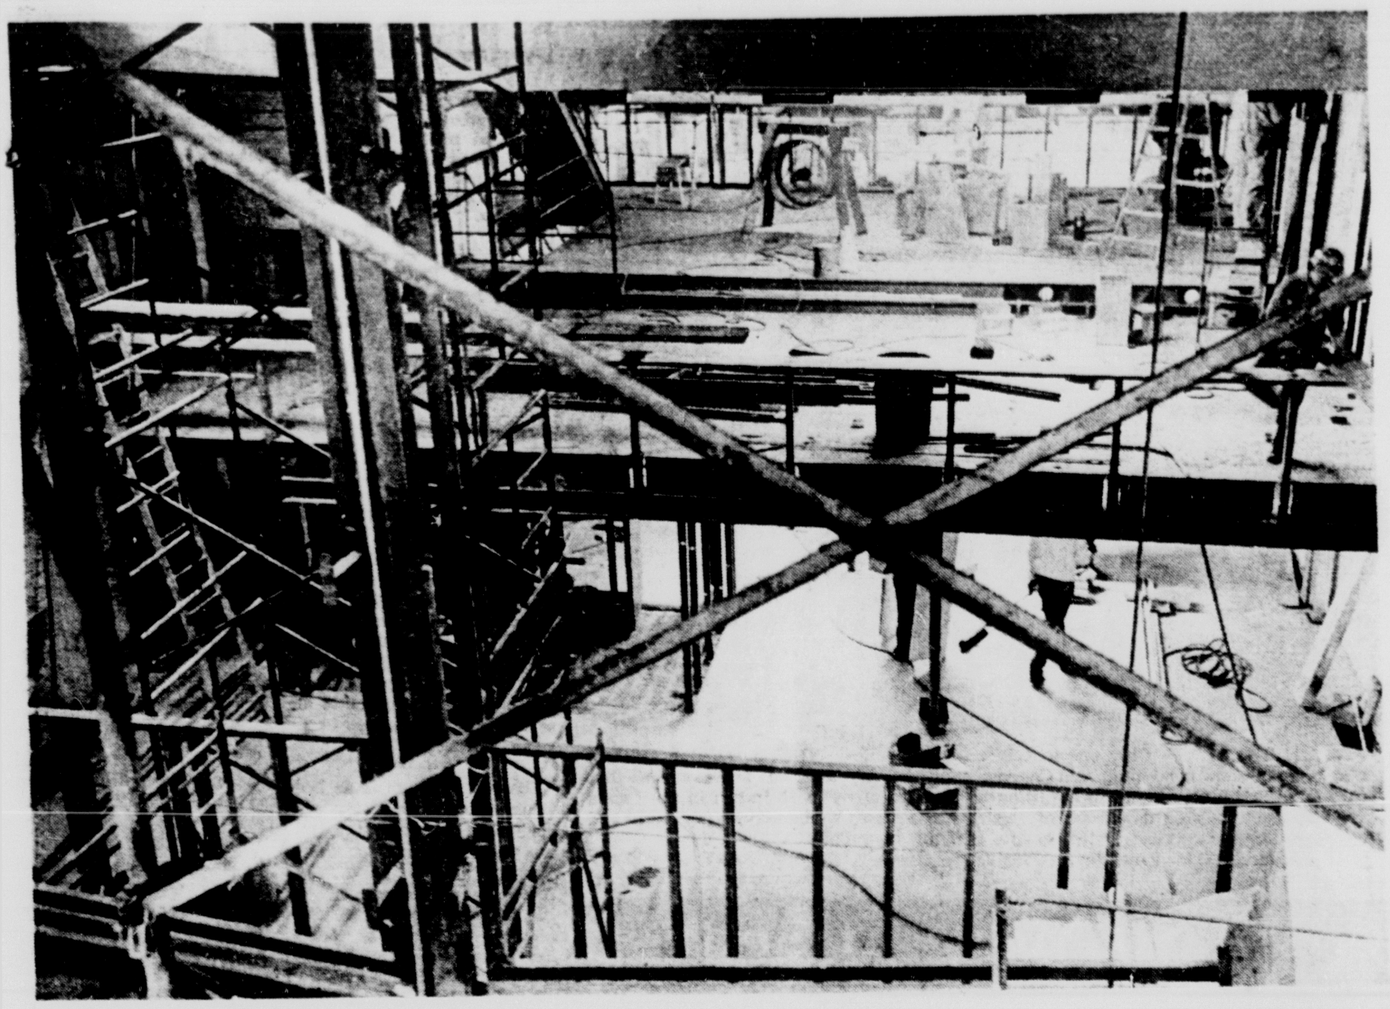
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Colorado's two Republican senators were notified Friday that grants for the training of speech correctionists have been made to three Colorado universities.

Sens. Peter H. Dominick and Gordon Allott said the grants were from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

One will go to Colorado State University for work directed by Dr. William Leither, assistant professor of speech pathology. Amount of the grant is $22,4[illegible].

The University of Colorado is to receive $11,200. Ned W. Bowler, director of the Speech and Hearing Clinic, was named recipient.

The University of Denver was also given $11,200, for a project under the direction of Dr. Ruth M. Clark, professor of speech



Hardsite Is 90 Per Cent Complete; Air Force To Take Over in January

Work on the North American Air Defense Command's $88 million dollar hole in Cheyenne Mountain is 90 per cent complete.

But it is no longer just "a hole" in the mountain; it is no longer a dwelling place of steel skeletons bathed in weak artificial light.

The hole is rapidly taking on all the aspects of the Steel City it is to be. All of the buildings are enclosed now and most of the interior work is completed.

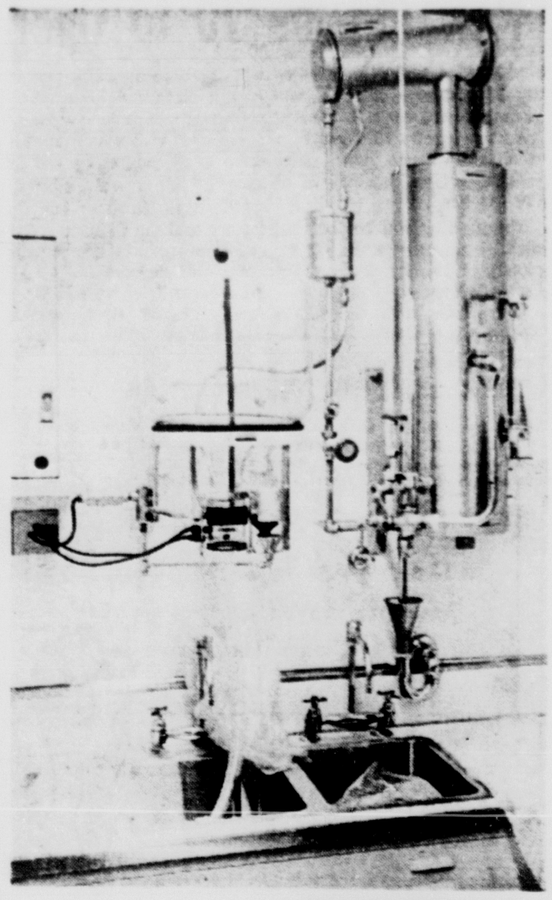
It is a complex of vinyl floors and plaster walls, of indirect lighting and miles of corridors; it has huge cafeterias to be served from sparkling kitchens filled with equipment; it has countless offices and computor rooms and dormitories and storage chambers; it has its own hospital, complete with operating rooms; it's own dental clinic and its own source of power, air and water.

In May, technicians will begin installing row on row of computers; in June, the Command Post will be installed and in January of 1966, the Hardsite will become the Combat Operations Center of the North American Continent and perhaps the safest place on earth in event of a nuclear attack.

Workman are now installing the huge blast doors which will be sealed in event of such an attack; others are busy installing countless communications cables which will connect the COC with the outside world; others are completing the steel structure work for the COC itself.

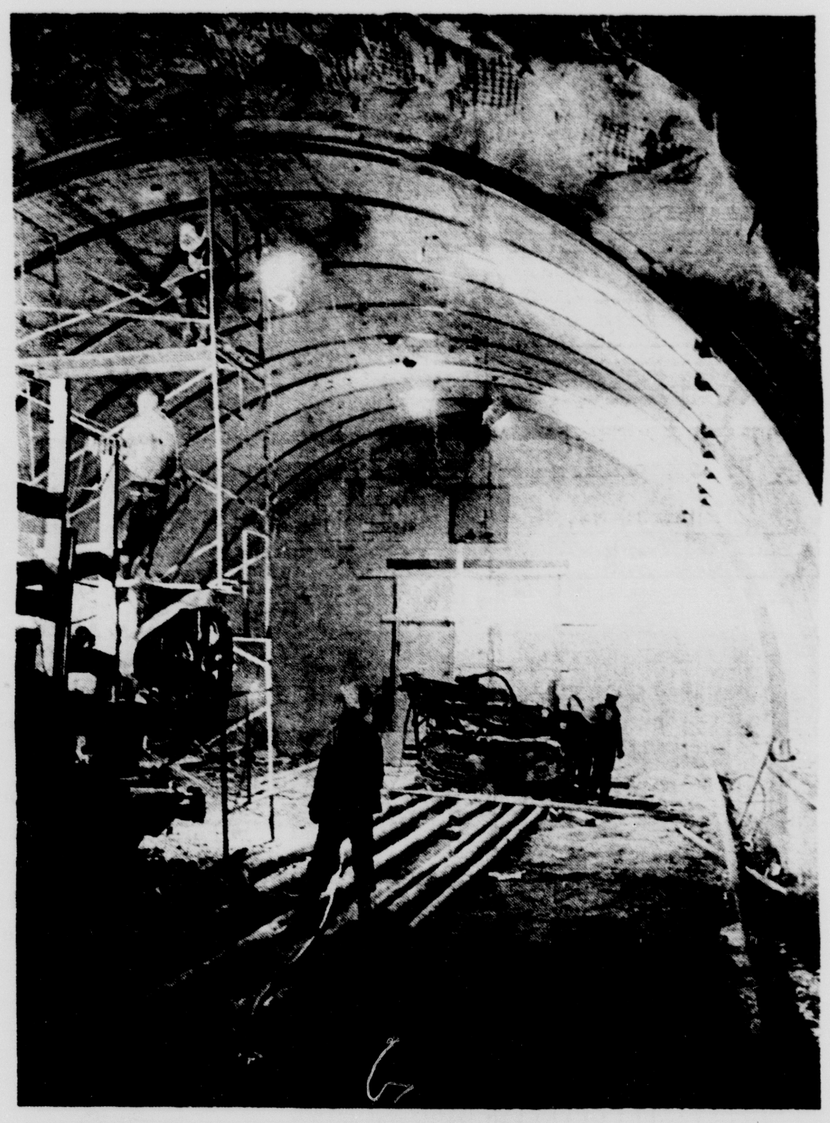
Nine months from now, the Steel City under tons of granite will have a population of 700—700 men and women with North America's safety their principal occupation.

COC SHAPES UP — Nine months from now, men will sit where the camera is now and study the huge Combat Operations Center Display Board which will be placed opposite, where the workmen are now. It will show any attack on the North American Continent.

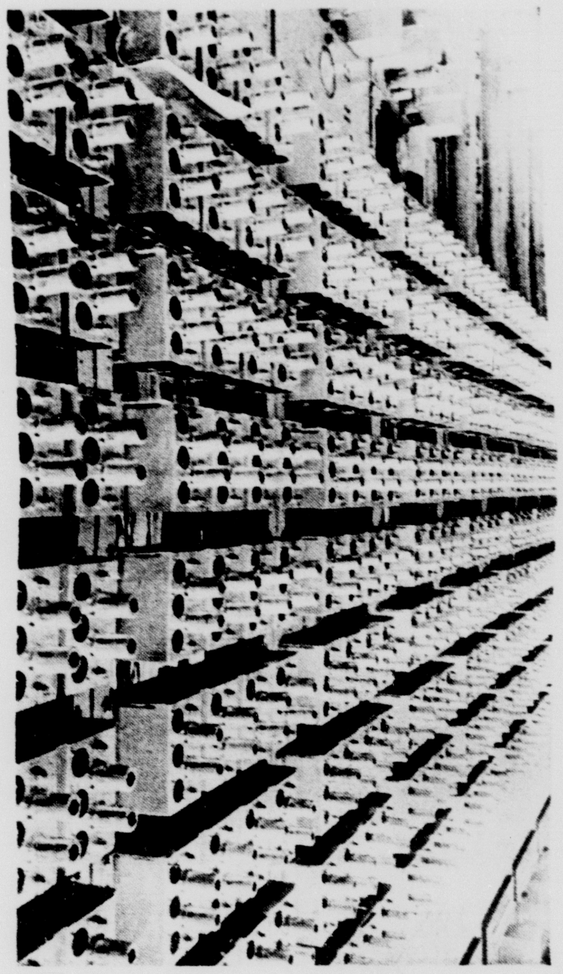


PURE WATER—No hospital can operate without distilled water. The hospital in the Hardsite has its own still for producing such water in event of emergencies.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, MARCH 28, 1965 SECTION B

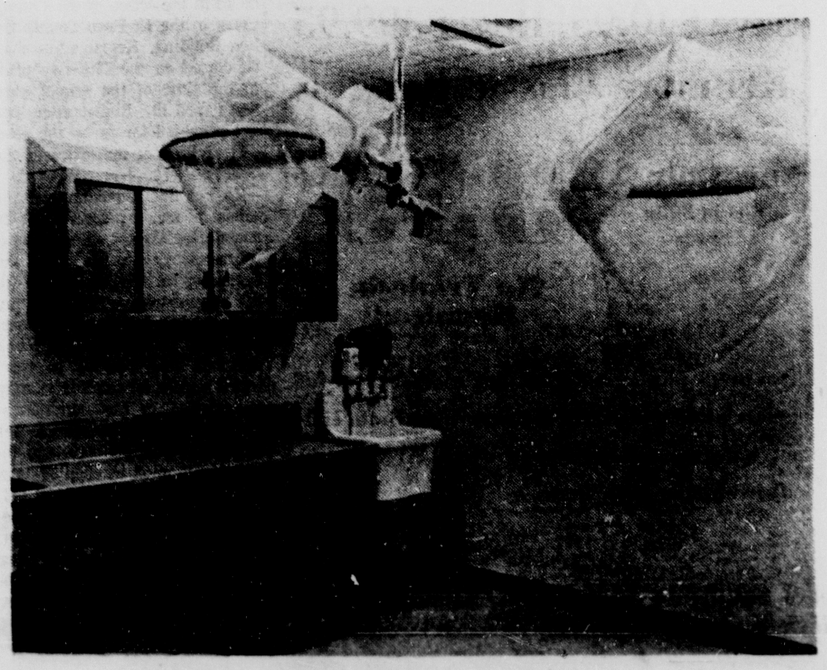


SOUTH PORTAL—The south portal of the Hardsite will be used principally as an exhaust tunnel, but it can also serve as a one-way road in event of an attack. Workmen are busy installing a concrete buffer at the entrance to the portal in the main access corridor. The entrance is at rear, center.



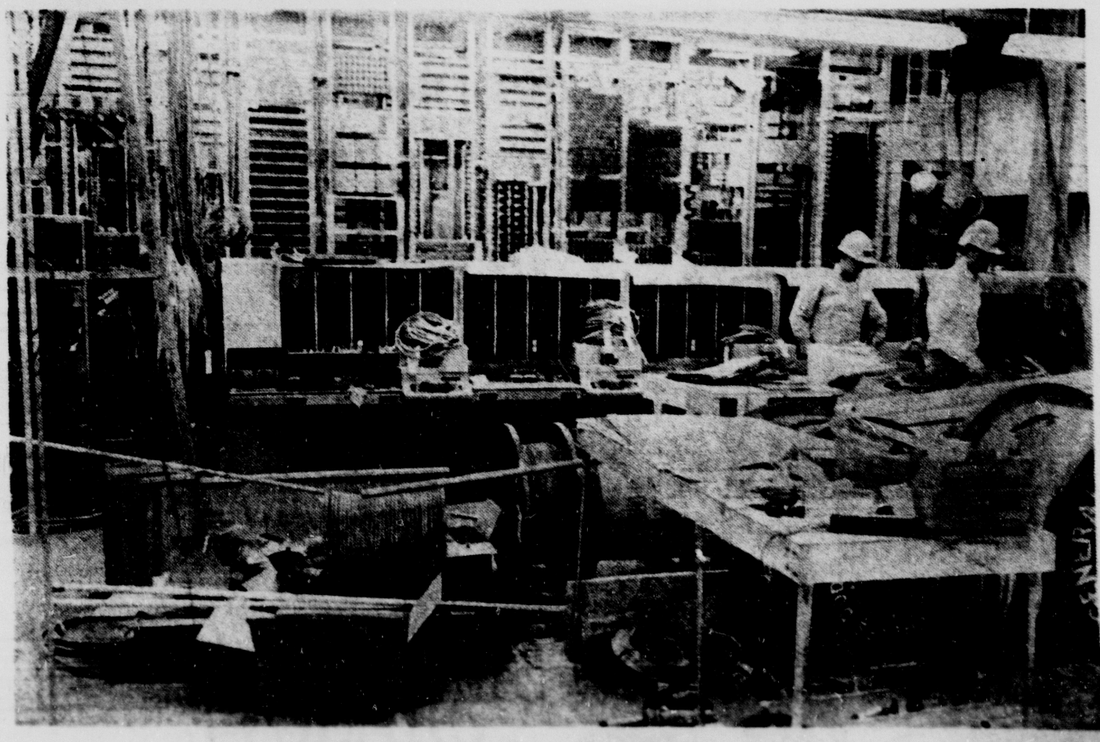
PHONE DESIGN — This is one view of the hundreds of banks of telephone equipment currently being installed in the Steel City under Cheyenne Mountain.

COMMUNICATIONS— The pipes here carry underground telephone cables into the Hardsite. They will provide one link with the outside world in the event of a nuclear attack on this country.



EMERGENCY ROOM — This is the emergency operating room in the Hardsite. It will be used for minor operations and treatment of patients in the event of an attack.

SWITCHBOARDS — This will be the communications nerve center of the COC. Some of the switchboards to be manned when the hardsite becomes operational can be seen along with part of the nerve system of any telephone network.



New Cinema 70 to Open Here With 'My Fair Lady'

"My Fair Lady," nominated for 12 Academy Awards, will premiere here early in June at the new Cinema 70 Theatre, a Westland Theatre, now under construction on Highway 24 at Chelton Road.

The showing will be the first road show engagement of the picture in a city the size of Colorado Springs.

When completed, Cinema 70 will accomodate 850 persons. It will feature a high-intensity screen, ample parking areas and a covered walkway from the drive to the box office and lobby.

"Westland Theatres had confidence that the Patrons in Colorado Springs and surrounding areas will support the truly great pictures of road show calibre," Derald Hart, a local Westland official, said. "To substantiate this confidence, Westland will pay a rental many times greater for this showing than any other production that has been presented in the city. will encourage further road The success of this showing show engagements of this calibre and entertainment seekers no longer will have to drive out of the city to see great motion picture entertainment."

Walton League Hears State Representative

Presiding was Joseph Stammen, division president. Robert Newbill, president of the Pikes Peak Chapter, welcomed the 60 members and guests.

Business included reports from the three vice presidents who were present and from the executive president. A report was given on the National Convention which will be held June 16-19 in Cody, Wyo., and the state convention in Trinidad, May 15-16.

Dan Richardson, Conservation Education chairman, said letters would be sent to school principals to select a boy for training with the U. S. Department of the Interior. Mrs. Zee Pusey, anti-litter chairman, reported on the excellent response to showing of the "Litterbug" film in this area.

FIVE IN THERE? — Only one foot in this cloud of snow concealing five Canon City High School youths who were using a "boat-sled" to slide down one of the hogbacks on the Skyline Drive, northwest of Canon City Thursday. School District Re-1 officials called off school for the day after a snow storm that dumped eight to 15 inches in the Canon City area Wednesday afternoon and Thursday night.

DON'T ENCOURAGE CONSTIPATION

Consipation often begins with the use of a laxative. A person misses once and decides to correct the situation with a purge. The next day the bowel is still empty so there is no movement. Before long, laxatives are taken more frequently until a habit is etsablished.

The practice is common because many men and women do not realize that going with out a movement for one, two, three, or more days won't prove fatal. Give nature a chance and, in all probability, the colon will take the iniative. The exceptions occur in the ill, bedridden, or weak. The same applies to the elderly, who are inclined to develop impactions.

The bowel rhythm is an individual characteristic. Most people have a stool every day. Others go twice a day or every second, third, or fourth day. This is considered normal.

Many oldsters went thru decades of constipation as youngsters because their parents believed in a weekly or biweekly laxative. The cleanout was deemed necessary for health reasons. The intestine never was given an opportunity to empty istelf because they believed residuals contained poisons that were absorbed.

Laxatives help temporarily, but do not cure. A change in diet helps some. Foods containing cellulose and pulpy fibers, such as fruits and vegetables, cause mechanical distention and irritation of the wall. This encourages bowel contractions. Spinach, cabbage, onions, asparagus, parsnips, lettuce, and fresh and dried fruits are of value along this line.

Regular bathroom habits are just as important. Eating when the stomach is empty creats a powerful stimulus and the majority find the most favorable period to establish the reflex is after breakfast. Get up earlier to provide enough time. Relax, don't hurry.

Go to the toilet whenever you feel the need. Constipation may develop or be aggravated if nature's signal is disregarded.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

NERVOUS AT BEDTIME

L. H. writes: When I go to bed at night, I get nervous, my stomach seems jumpy and shaky, and I can't go to sleep. Can you recommend something?

REPLY

A glass of warm milk may be helpful. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on insomnia, which may offer some useful suggestions.

CALCIUM AND STONES

M. B. writes: Could going on a milk-cream diet for ulcer cause kidney stones?

REPLY

Yes, in a stone former. These diets are high in calcium, one of the common ingredients of kidney stones. Drink more water to maintain a dilute urine and the chances of getting another real stone will be reduced considerably.

LUMP ON FOREHEAD

M. G. writes: What causes a big knot on the skin after bumping into something hard? I have such a lump on my forehead.

REPLY

ARM SHINGLES

S. E. B. writes: Is it unusual to have shigles on the left arm and hand but not on the body or legs?

REPLY

No, because usually only one nerve is involved. Shingles is more common on the trunk and face than on the extremities.

District 14 Sets Biennial School Election

School District 14 voters will elect one member to the school board in the district's biennial school election to be held May 4. Donald D. Baker's six-year term expires this year.

For the first time voters in districts the size of School District No. 14 must be registered to vote in the biennial school election. Those who voted in the 1964 General Election who have not changed their place of residence are registered.

Those needing to register may do so in the office of the County Clerk in the El Paso County Office Building. Registration shall be closed on the 15th day prior to the time of the school election (April 19). Registration lists are provided for us by the election division of the office of the County Clerk.

To run for a position on the school board, a person must be a qualified elector. Moreover, it is necessary to file with the Secretary of the Board or in the administrative office an "intention to run" and a petition with fifty signatures. The blank petitions and "intent to run" forms needed for candidates may be secured in the administrative offices of the school, 401 El Monte. The petitions and intent forms must be filed 20 days ahead of the election (April 14).

There will be two polling precincts in the district election. The people in the Ute Pass Area will vote in the Community Center in Green Mountain Falls, and in the Manitou area voting will be held in Memorial Hall.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. When I moved last year to take a new job, I had to sell MY HOME AT A LOSS. Can I deduct this on my tax return?

A. No. The tax law considers this to be a personal expense and not deductible.

Q. I am reimbursed by my employer for the business traveling and entertaining I do. Must I also report these business expenses and my reimbrusements on my tax return?

A. If you account to your employer for these expenses, the expenses are equal to the reimbursement, and you do not deduct the expenses on your return, you need not supply a similar accounting with your tax return and the reimbursement need not be included. However, if your reimbursements exceed your expenses, the excess should be reported as income.

Q. I've been told that if you are married you have to file a joint return to claim child care expenses. My husband has deserted me and can't be found, so I can't file jointly. Does that eliminate me from claiming this deduction?

A. A 1963 law liberalized this provision to help deserted wives. The 1964 tax law further liberalized this provision to include husbands who pay for child care because their wives are incapacitated. Check your 1040 instructions for details on this provision. Form 2441 should be filed when this deduction is claimed. You don't have to be married to claim these expenses.

Q. My wife and I adopted a child this past year. May we claim the lawyer's fees as a tax deduction?

A. No. This is considered a personal expense. A legally adopted child, however, may be claimed as a dependent if the other necessary tests of dependency are met.

Q. I've heard that the 1964 tax law made some changes in the rules on business travel expenses. What were they?

A. The rule that transportation expenses must be allocated between business and nonbusiness was changed so that it now applies only to travel outside the United States. The allocation rule applies when a taxpayer combines a business trip abroad with pleasure. Under certain conditions, the transportation expenses of the trip must be divided into business and nonbusiness portions and only the business portions may be deducted.

Q. Is there any interest deduction for tuition payments when they are made on an installment plan and the carrying charge is separately stated?

A. Under the new tax law, carrying charges on payments for educational services are treated as if they included interest. This would include tuition paid on installments. To figure the deduction take 6 per cent of the average unpaid balance during the taxable year in question.

Q. Do my wife and I both have to be 65 to be able to deduct all of our medical expenses?

A. No you don't. If either of you are 65 or over at the end of the tax year then all medical expenses for you and your wife may be deducted. In this situation the expenses are not subject to the 3 per cent limitation on medical expenses or the 1 per cent limitation for medicines and drugs.

Q. I saw a story in the paper the other day that some taxpayers were paying more than they should by using the wrong tax tabel. How can I be sure I don't do the same thing?

A. The errors usually occurred when a married couple filing jointly used the tax table "D," which is for married couples filing separately. If you are married and filing jointly, and use the table, make sure the one you use is table "A."

Q. There is no space on the 1040 form to list the names of my children. Should I put their names on a separate statement when I file my return?

A. The names of dependent children who live with you need no longer be listed on Forms 1040 or 1040A. Just enter the number of children you claim in the box provided. Dependents other than children living with you must still be identified by name and relationship.

Q. My bank keeps asking for my Social Security number. Do they have a right to it?

A. Yes they do. Congress passed a law in 1962 requiring individuals to supply their banks, saving institutions, corporations in which they own stock and other institutions from which they received interest or dividends, with their tax account number. In most cases, this number is your social security number.

You must supply this number even though you may not be required to file a tax return and you are not covered by social security. If you are not covered by social security you can either obtain a social security number or apply for an identification number from the Internal Revenue Service.

Q. What is the tax "blue" book?

A. This is a publication titled "Your Federal Income Tax" which explains in detail the income tax law relating to individual taxpayers. It costs 50 cents and is available at Internal Revenue offices, or can be ordered from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Q. When my son was born I set up a saving account for him. I regularly make payments into it as I plan to use it for his college education. How do I report the interest from this account?

A. If you have control over the funds, and can withdraw them at your own discretion, the income should be reported on your return, and your social security number should also be used to identify this account.

Q. My wife and I meet the income qualifications for filing the 1040A. We have about $75 in dividends after the exclusion, but can't find a place on the form to take the dividend credit. Should we file a separate statement?

A. If the divident credit is claimed Form 1040 must be used, not Form 1040A.

Suzuki Sales Opens Tejon Street Outlet

C. and E. Suzuki Sales Manager C. Edgar Weagel has announced that the company has expanded its operation to include a new place of business at 824½ N. Tejon St.

The company will now feature a new rental outlet as well as maintaining its original place of business at 2375 E. Highway 24.

Three models of motorcycles will be available at both places of business. They will be an 80cc and 55cc model and also trail machines will be available for anyone interested in using the vehicle on hunting, fishing trips or for trail riding.

The machines can be rented by the hour, day or weekend, officials said.

The Tejon Street outlet will feature rentals during the week and also on Sundays and will be under the supervision of Terry Weagel, son of the owner-manager.

UNREST

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — Some unrest continued in Morocco today in the wake of antigovernment riots in which at least seven persons were killed.

Spanish - English Study Proposed in Colorado

DENVER (AP) — A study of the problems Spanish-Americans in Colorado encounter in education and job opportunities because of deficient use of English has been proposed in the House of Representatives.

Rep. Frank Anaya, D-Denver, introduced a resolution calling for a study by a nine-member commission including five legislators. It would have $2,500 for its expenses and would submit a report to the 1966 session of the General Assembly.

Klan Comeback Seen in Dixie Race Troubles

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan, a sprawling giant of the 1920's that nearly choked to death two decades later on its own violent dedication to "Americanism," is getting new life from the growing civil rights movement in the South.

Dr. Richard M. Chalmers, a University of Florida professor and author of a new book on the Klan's secret world of mystic rituals, strange passwords and hooded violence, argues that a decaying Klan was given new "impetus and environment for action" by two events:

The Supreme Court's May 17, 1954, decision outlawing public school segregation, and the sit-ins, freedom rides and mass demonstrations of the early 1960's.

A number of other observers have pointed to a very recent rise in Klan membership, now believed to number 30,000 to 35,000 active Klansmen with up to 20,000 active sympathizers, mainly in the Deep South.

Klan officials say their influence has been increasing steadily since the current civil rights struggle began. James Venable, Atlanta attorney and imperial wizard of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, estimates growth at 10,000 to 12,000 new members a month.

"We try to weed out undesirables, our purpose is not to collect hoodlums," Venable said. "We're trying to get the sweatbox people in. Educated people have been brainwashed into believing in brotherly love — in peaceful coexistence."

Chalmers says in his book, "Hooded Americanism," which is to be published by Doubleday, that one inherent defect in Klan structure that may have prevented it from becoming even more of an influence is the impossibility of controlling the actions of individual branches.

Today's Klan, actually a number of separate Klans, has most influence in small cities and rural areas, usually those with a high percentage of Negroes.

But 40 years ago, it was a giant of four million members that elected governors and senators, both in the North and South.

Born as a society of playful pranks and mystic initiations in 1866, one year after the Civil War ended, the Klan soon turned to a major role in the overthrow of carpetbag state governments in the South and the restoration of white supremacy.

By 1871, the estimated 550,000 Klansmen disappeared as a formal organization. President Ulysses S. Grant, under the Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871, suspended the writ of habeas corpus in nine South Carolina counties, and thousands of Klansmen were arrested.

Another Klan did not appear until 1915, when the organization was resurrected on top of Stone Mountain, Ga., with the burning of a cross and an oath of allegiance to the "invisible empire of the Ku Klux Klan."

By 1924, it had become a national political power, with four million members dedicated to opposing not only Negroes, but Catholics, Jews, and anyone who was not a native-born, Anglo-Saxon Protestant.

But, by the beginning of the depression, the Klan's power and glory were gone in the North and West.

The third Ku Klux Klan revival was organized in Atlanta late in World War II by an Atlanta obstetrician, Dr. Samuel Green. It had a brief period of activity, but splintered after Green's death in 1949.

Bill Proposes to Aid Salary Costs

DENVER (AP) — The state would pay up to $250 of the salaries of adults probation officers employed by Colorado courts under a bill given tentative approval today in the House.

There was no opposition debate on the measure, sponsored by Rep. Phillip Massari, D-Trinidad. He said the state already shares the cost of juvenile probation officers and should do the same for the adult officers to help counties meet riding court costs. He estimated annual cost to the state at $174,000.

Price Art Collection Set To Open Thursday at Sears

This display will continue through Saturday, April 10, in the Sears, Roebuck and Co. store at Southgate. The collection of old masters and new is making its third appearance in Colorado Springs because the initial showing generated an overwhelming response, said G. A. Cheney, Sears manager here.

Among the originals on display and sale will be "The Mystical Rose Madonna," by Salvador Dali, Spanish master commissioned to create a new work on the Madonna and Child theme for the Sears collection. Dali executed an original oil painting of "The Mystical Rose Madonna," then went on to produce a limited edition of original colored lithographs on the same theme as the painting. A Dali lithograph will be shown here. The theme of the rose is taken from a litany to the Virgin Mary, in which she is referred to as the "Mystical Rose."

"The decision to put these art works on display and sale is evidence of a strong local demand for the imaginative and the original," Cheney said. "It is proof that Europe has no corner on culture. Art has a place in every American home, both because it is beautiful in itself and because it is the ultimate in home furnishings."

Both Vincent Price, famed as an actor and art expert, and his staff have made extensive buying trips throughout the United States and Europe since the original collection was seen here. The works to be shown here beginning Thursday reflect these new acquisitions.

Among the works included in the new exhibit and sale are oil paintings, watercolors, drawings, pastels, etchings and lithographs by such old masters as Goya, Matisse, Braque and by outstanding contemporary artists.

Prices range from $30 to $2,500 Cheney said, with most between $100 and $500.

Stephen H. Ball Attends Realty Sales Clinic

Stephen H. Ball, Ball & Co., attended the educational sales clinic sponsored by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers held at the Broadmoor Friday and Saturday.

More than 200 Realtors participated in clinic sessions designed to provide business-building ideas to help them better serve the public.

The Colorado Springs Clinic is the third of five regional training sessions which will be held throughout the country this year by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

Cuba Still Offers to Send Troops to Cong

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government said today it supports statements by the Soviet Union and Red China offering to send volunteers to South Viet Nam "if representatives of that country ask them to resist imperialist aggression."

Prime Minister Fidel Castro in a speech March 13 at Havana University condemned "the criminal aggression of the imperialist government of the United States against the Vietnamese people."

By VINCENT PRICE

Art is art, no matter what it is painted on, whose wall it hangs on, or what it cost. Or, for that matter, who painted it.

A painting may be low - priced but appealing to you. It may be painted on cardboard. It is no less a work of art because of these.

First, let's get over the popular misconception that original art is an oil painting on canvas. Oil paint can be used on boards, cardboard, paper, silk, or any other material that will hold it. Many modern painters use composition boards.

Some of the greatest works of art are not oil paintings at all, but watercolors and gouaches, which are more oqaque than watercolors but use water as the medium.

The old masters often painted on wood panels covered with gesso, a superfine plaster, using eggwhite as the binder or medium, with finely ground natura, minerals and earth for colors. This is tempera. Later, they glazed the tempera with oil paints or colored varnishes.

No less important or valuable are the drawings in ink, pencil crayon or charcoal which the artists did either as notes for future paintings or simply for their own pleasure.

The graphic arts — etching, drypoint, woodcut, engraving, aquatint, lithography and others — are the artists' solutions to turning out more than one example of their work. Usually, they limited the number of prints for a plate either by choice or because the plate wore out.

The signing of etchings and other graphic works began only in the last century. It originated partly from snob appeal and partly because artists wanted to be sure to differentiate between their won work and that done by reproduction processes. Whistler signed some of his works, others he didn't. Rembrandt and Goya signed only the plate so the signature is printed.

Most of the great artists excelled more in one medium than another, but some excelled at everything. Rembrandt's paintings are almost priceless, yet his etchings are often considered his greatest works. Durer, on the other hand, was a great engraver and draftsman than he was a painter.

An original work of art denotes the all - important fact that it comes directly from the artist's hand or was under his personal supervision. There are many reporductions today done to fool the purchaser. Mechanical processes are used to reproduce watercolors, and it's very difficult to tell the real from the false — but one has value, the other little or none.

In buying original art the first thing to do is go out and look. My sources of art include museums, galleries, bookstores, interior decorators, art schools and individual artists.

After you've looked, decide on what you like. The name of the artist should be secondary in the consideration of his work, which must be honest, well executed and in good taste. Keep in mind that everyone has different taste. Art is something you buy for your own enjoyment, and not even all the greatest masterpieces appeal to everyone. Art buying should be a mutual thing. I would not buy a painting without first consulting my wife.

Finally when you know what you like, buy it. I think of art as a necessary luxury because it teaches; and only by buying what you know you like now, will you learn what you will like in the future.

Hard Bite of Income Tax Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Income tax is biting so hard this year you can see the marks.

Some banks are reporting an unusually large number of personal loans. The reason no secret: money needed to pay taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service has noticed a significant slowdown in the flow of tax returns. The reason, presumed but obvious: more people than usual are waiting until the last minute — April 15— because they have to send money in.

A lot of families which are used to getting refunds in the spring haven't got any this year. The reason, the same one that is behind most of this year's more than usual tax distress: last year's under-withholding.

And yet, ironically, a larger percentage of those taxpayers who have filed their returns are making errors in favor of the government.

When pay check deductions were reduced in March 1964 from 18 per cent to 14 per cent following enactment of an $11.5 billion tax cut, the largest in history, Johnson administration officials recognized that some taxpayers who earn from $7,500 to $20,000 wouldn't be fully covered by withholding.

The withholding rate was set a little low to put more money in the spending stream and thereby pep up the economy. Economists almost unanimously agree that the strategy worked — but it put a crimp in the personal financial strategy of many taxpayers.

Many taxpayers did not take advantage of their option to permit larger deductions from their pay checks.

Some banks say the big rush for loan applications won't come until a few days before the April 15 deadline.

However, officials of Federal Reserve District banks in Phliadelphia and Richmond, Va., said there was no noticeable increase in the number of personal loans.

As of March 19, the revenue service had mailed out 16.3 million refunds compared to 18.8 million at a comparable point last year, a decline of 14 per cent.

Refunds totaled about $1.9 billion, a drop of 25 per cent from the $2.6 billion of last year.

Usually the number of returns increases 2 to 4 per cent a year. By March 19, the IRS had received 7.5 per cent fewer return as compared to March 19, 1964. The totals: 32,060,000 in the 1964 period and 29,656,000 this year.

Are you down with a case of the blues today? Then look ahead to the summer, and come along camping with us.

Camp Bloomfield is located 30 miles from the heart of Los Angeles in a canyon two miles from the ocean. We spent one day there last summer and were so impressed that we have to let you visit too.

Norm Kaplan is director of the camp and oversees more than 500 campers for a total of 10 summer weeks. In separate two week sessions, campers swim, hike, ride horseback, master archery, learn tumbling and outdoor cooking, etc. In other words, standard camp fare.

So what's so special about the camp? Nothing much, except for the fact that all campers are blind, or only partially sighted.

If Norm were here as we typed this, we'd immediately earn a Kaplan lecture. "Whoa! Don't play the hearts and flowers jazz for my kids. They're not poor, pitiful, courageous children. They're happy, normal kids who can do anything sighted kids can do, if given the opportunity.

Norm, you see, is out to shatter the image of blind children as "sensitive, shuffling, little souls" who must be wrapped in cotton and protected from life.

The camp is built on Norm's credo that "blindness is simply a limitation, not an insurmountable handicap." Given that premise, nearly anything is possible for Camp Bloomfield's campers.

"We build the game on sounds," Norm explained. "The batter kneels and hits a 16-inch ball that's rolled to him. Three feet before home plate, the ball rolls over crumpled aluminum foil to make a sound to warn the batter that the ball is coming. The catcher claps his hands to let the pitcher know which direction to roll the ball.

"To get to the bases, the batter then follows sounds. The first baseman blows a New Year's noise maker; the second baseman rings a bell; the third baseman hits a tin can; and we yell the runner in at home base."

Archery is even more inventive. The center of the target is a speaker wired to emit a constant high frequency sound. The archer aims for the sound. If he hits the target, he can score himself, for each ring of the target is made of a different metal, so he can tell by the distinctive ping which ring he hit.

Fun! Yes! But much more than that. Behind each game and activity is the goal of making the campers more self-assured and self-sufficient.

"We want the kids to walk with their chins up, to walk assuredly, rather than shuffling along with heads bowed. At camp we teach them to aim at sounds. Then when they're back in regular school and talking to friends, they'll instinctively turn to face the person they're talking to. We've found that blind people who take good, regular strides collect no more bruises or spills than those who shuffle along. But the big difference between striders and shufflers is in the positive mental outlook of the 'chin up' kids!"

Why did we spend today telling you about a camp that doesn't open until June, and then only for blind youngsters?

We have a pair of reasons. We thought your own problems might shrink a bit if you saw how other young people overcome their limitations. The blind children aim themselves at a target; you can, too. If you've a goal radaring you in on the future, you'll stumble less often along the way.

And then, we hoped that this short introduction to the work of the Foundation for the Junior Blind might encourage you to find out how you might help. The address is 5300 Angeles Vista, Los Angeles. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Have you a problem? Ele and Walt Dulaney may have the solution. Write them in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Batty Bunch of Battery Brainchilds Guaranteed to Give You a 'Charge'!

It all began in 1798, when Allesandro Volta, an Italian nobleman with outsize curiosity, invented the first battery.

Asked to describe his new scientific braninchild, the Count is said to have replied:

"Any one can get a charge out of it!"

Apocryphal or not, the remark typifies the wild and whacky logic of battery - minded inventors who spawn an ever-growing list of gadgets designed to make life more bearable on this planet.

Take, for example, the hair planter patented in 1913 by Jacob Parsegan of San Francisco.

'Operated like a sewing machine, the device used a pointed prong to "perforate" the scalp while short sections of hair were fed into the opening by a needle.

History fails to record the reactions of those brave but balding volunteers who donated their scalps as skull samplers in the Great Experiment.

Were the results really hair-raising? Undoubtedly in one respect.

But while baldness appears here to stay, other latter - day Voltas have been busy adding light and warmth to the male fashion scene.

For starters, there's the electrically heated vest powered by batteries. It's the nearest thing to a heating pad with pockets, comfort benefits, comes along just as the three - piece suit is "in" again.

Then, for the jockey - sized male who longs to stand out in a crowd, there's the inflatable hat designed by a Bronx resident. It rises or falls at will by means of an air pressure device "to the amusement of the wearer and onlooker."

If that doesn't get you noticed the hat also lights up, showing a printed message, and a whistle or whirler goes into action — all in all, a "natural" for New York Mets baseball fans .

Other way - out innovations in masculine couture, culled from yellowing files kept by the makers of "Eveready" batteries, include aerated shoes with a fan or blower mechanism, umbrellas and canes that light up the night, and an air - conditioned suit for gentlemen farmers.

Devised by Ralph Schaeffer of Ferdinand, Iowa, the air-conditioned suit resembles its space - age counterpart, complete to radio - receiver helmet and breastplate. A battery - operated heating element can be added for winter wear.

Sor reasons best appreciated by cows, provision has been made for the farmer to remove his gloves before tackling the milking chores.

America's vast army of outdoorsmen haven't been forgotten, either.

Just name the sport and officials at the U.S. Patent Office will produce a host of inventions designed to help you shoot straighter, fish more successfully, drive a golf ball farther or skate more smoothly on hard or soft ice.

There is an underwater fish caller which emits bug - like sounds, a self - propelled decoy guaranteed to swim a prescribed course, a mouth - supported flashlight to help you bait hooks, a momentum indicator for your golf swing and illuminated aiming stakes for night firing.

If you're a non - conformist, there's also a single - wheel roller skate with electric light bulbs fore and aft to assist you in negotiating those tight turns on street corners.

Statistically, fishing enthusiasts appear to have cornered the market in battery - operated geegaws for outdoors use, while golfers, hunters and campers are distant runners up, the "Eveready" battery people report.

A variety of zany contraptions also exist for the dedicated indoorsman, each designed to make his life richer or poorer, as in the case of a battery-run dice agitator and viewing game box.

Definitely classed in the indoor comfort category are an illuminated drinking glass; an insect ejector using lights, fluids and a revolving fan; an electrical bedbug exterminator circa 1898, and a rocking chair aimed at increasing southern comfort.

The rocking chair had a fan on its bottom to circulate air, but its probably raison d'etre, according to the inventor, was to "provide a chair with cooling chamber to store fruit and bottles of liquid for the use of the occupant."

The modern indoorsman who loves to read abed now uses special eyeglasses with thin batteries for arms and miniature light bulbs positioned near the lenses. He merely aims the light at whatever he's reading while his spouse sleeps undisturbed.

If he has to venture outside in inclement weather, he switches to spectacles equipped with wipers that will de-fog lenses or remove rainwater.

Even that familiar household article — the flashlight — sports a new look these days, thanks to the peculaiarly American urge to improve on a good thing.

There are flashlights which double in brass as night sticks, audible alarms, fire extinguishers, tear gas guns, portable radios and fans — even condiment holders that dispense salt and pepper!

Your wife and her darling daughters also reap their share of attention from inventors who have glutted the market with fashion accessories for the female who wants to shine in social circles.

Prominent entries in this department include self - lighting compacts, handbags and lipstick applicators, an illuminated slave bracelet for milady's ankle and earrings with a neon effect whose batteries are cleverly disguised behind attaching haircomb and bow.

Literally dozens of patents have been issued for ladies shoes that light up, blink or play melodies via a miniature music box which can be inserted into high heels. A key does the widing and voila! — music pours forth from tiny holes camouflaged by rhinestones.

Tots, too, have had their play enlivened by such innovations as a night hoop with wand, motor - driven jumping ropes and a fiendishly realistic toy dental drill guaranteed to simulate all the joys of having your teeth drilled.

For the crib - bound citizen with teething problems of another kind, a Pitcairn, Pa. visionary has designed a mechanized baby bottle which vibrates in a massage - like action when applied to the gums.

Now that Man is aiming his sights at the heavens, will the flow of weird contributions to human comfort dry up?

"Absolutely not!" says a weary government spokesman for the U.S. Patent Office, who points out that USPO will celebrate its 175th anniversary this year by processing a record 85,000 applications.

Come to think of it, the dearth of new and zany inventions would be a shock indeed — with or without Volta's original battery to supply the charge.

TO WAKE YOU FOR GOLF— Actually the two inventions do not relate to each other. The lower invention was an ingenious device for making sure that you wake up on time in the morning — the clang from all of those bells virtually assures that you'll get up—and probably throw the clanging monster out the window. The top invention will, or supposedly will, aid you in your golf swing, if you don't mind the straps and other contraptions.

Love Urges Attention To Elections

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Gov. John A. Love called Friday night for citizens to pay close attention to the man they select for public office.

He said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Drake University law school alumni at Des Moines, Iowa, that each minute a hundred potential leaders are born."

"It is your responsibility," Love continued, "as informed and educated leaders in your community to make sure that you . . . secure the best leadership possible — men who . . . combine the talents of courage, with belief in our system, and capability and discernment and imagination."

"With our Selma's and our Gemini, with our communications and our wonders of transportation, no rational man can doubt that there is no alternative to involvement (in public affairs) — no rational alternative to responsible participation," Love said.

The text of the governor's speech was made public by his office in Denver after he flew to Des Moines. He is expected to return to Denver Saturday.

Supreme Court Turns Down Venue Pleading

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Supreme Court turned down today a request from two district judges that the trial of La Vern (Jackie) Jones be moved from the 16th Judicial District in southeast Colorado.

He was convicted once and sentenced to death but the conviction was voided by the Supreme Court.

The court directed John F. Healy, judicial administrator, to get an outside judge to try the case.

Sugar Industry Backs Quotas for Marketing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Main points of a law governing sugar marketing quotas in the United States for domestic and foreign suppliers has reportedly received the backing of domestic sugar interests.

Trade sources said U.S. sugar industry leaders, in conference for weeks in an attempt to straighten out differences between sugar refiners and sugar producers, had reached agreement on quota requirements.

The pact would boost basic quota for the mainland beet and cane sugar producers, and leave quotas unchanged for Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

U.S. beet sugar producers under the plan would obtain a quota of 4,025,000 short tons, and the mainland cane area, in Florida and Louisiana, a total of 1,100,000 tons.

Present quota for domestic beet producers is 2,650,000 tons, and for mainland cane 895,000.

The proposal would have no affect on quotas of foreign nation supply sugar to the United States. Growth in sugar consumption would be added under the agreement to foreign quotas, with mainland domestic figures remaining unchanged.

Formal announcement of the agreement awaits working out of administrative and other provisions of the sugar law.

U.S. Photos of Moon May Help Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — American photographs of the moon's surface may help the Soviet Union in its attempt to land a cosmonaut on the moon before the United States, a Soviet astronomer says.

Professor Alexander Markov told the Soviet news agency Tass Thursday that Soviet scientists are studying photos taken last year by the American Ranger 7 satellite. He said they were supplied by "American colleagues."

The Soviets have not hit the lunar surface with a satellite since 1959. Their last announced moon probe, in 1963, missed.

House Leader In 'Mourning'

DENVER (AP) — As the chairman of the House Labor Committee, Mrs. Betty Kirk West, D-Pueblo, appeared in the House Friday wearing black and what she said was mourning for labor bills killed by a Senate Committee.

Mrs. West said, "I want to get the point across that the legislators are elected to write the laws. We put in a lot of study and hardwork. When some outside combination takes over, I protest."

She said she will wear black until the end of the legislative session unless "the Senate will get together and pass some good legislation."

Sen. William O. Lennox, R-Colorado Springs chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, told reporters it is regrettable that a veteran legislator "would use this method of expressing disagreement or dissatisfaction with the actions of another body of the Legislature."

"This is a deliberate attempt," the Colorado Springs senator said, "to cloud the issue of how to arrive at a good, sensible solution to a very complex, technical field of legislation."

PARALYZED

HONOLULU (AP) — Syngman Rhee, the former president of the Republic of Korea, is bedridden and paralyzed in a hospital on the eve of his 90th birthday.

Rhee has been a patient at the Maunalani Hospital for more than three years. His doctor says he is immobilized and unable to take part in any physical activity at all, but "he is very well taken care of and comfortable."

Trumpeters To Be Featured In AFA Concert

A unique 18th Century trumpet concerto will combine the talent of two of the nation's outstanding trumpeters during today's concert by the Air Force Academy Band.

The concert, beginning at 3 p.m. in the Arnold Hall theater, is open to the public.

Guest artist Carl (Doc) Severinsen, called by his fellow professional musicians as one of the top trumpeters in the U.S., will play the "Concerto for Two Trumpets" by the 18th Century composer Antonio Vivaldi with SM. Sgt. Jack Tardy of the band.

The concerto has been transcribed for band by Philip . Lang.

Band commander Capt. Herman G. Vincent said, "Doc Severinsen rarely appears with other trumpeters. His appearance with Sgt. Tardy is recognition of the band member's great talent."

Sgt. Tardy is one of the truly outstanding trumpet artists in the armed services.

He has played in 16 countries and on some of the nation's leading TV shows.

The sergeant joined the Air Force in 1952 after obtaining degrees in music and music education from Louisiana State University.

While serving with the First Air Force in New York, Sgt. Tardy studied with William Vacchiano of the New York Philharmonic and with Harry Glantz of the NBC Symphony.

He is surrently trumpet soloist for the band and a member of the Colorado Springs Symphony and concert ensemble.

16 Diplomats To Attend CU Conference

Sixteen foreign diplomats — including nine ambassadors — will be among more than 80 participants April 12 to 16 at the University of Colorado's 18th annual Conference on World Affairs.

Ambassadors who have accepted invitations to attend include C. S. A. Ritchie, Canada; Miguel Augustus Ribeiro, Ghana; Bangoura Karim, Guinea; Michael Comay, Israel; Talat Al-Ghoussein, Kuwait; Ali Bengelloun, Morocco; Celestin Kabanda, Rwanda; Ousmane Soce Diop, Senegal, and Rachid Driss, Tunisia.

Other diplomats will include Fritz Caspari, German counsellor in New York City; J. C. Ferringa, first secretary, Netherlands Embassy, Washington, D. C.; E. P. Mwaluko, charge d'affaires, Tanzania UN delegation; Andre Nemo, French Information Services, New York City; Godwin A. Onyegbula, charge d'affaires, Nigerian Embassy, Washington, D. C.; Helmut Rueckriegel, deputy director, German Information Center, New York City, and J. S. Whitehead, first secretary, British Embassy, Washington, D.C.

The conference will bring together authorities in many fields from all over the world, ranging from businessmen to scientists to journalists to military people to representatives from the arts. They will participate in a week of free, public speeches, panel discussions and debates.

Among topics to be covered at this year's conference are poverty, scientific advances, the Middle East, China, Latin America, poetry and the United Nations.

Conference guests are housed and fed by Boulder families.

The problem may still have to be resolved in the courts.

GRAND JURY FOR PADDLING

The Christian County grand jury has recommended more liberal use of the paddle in the school room.

The jury suggested the legislature should clarify the responsibilities of teachers and principals in dealing with discipline. Its report added:

"We feel that in many instances a teacher feels a good paddling would help straighten a pupil out but refrains from this due to fear of a law suit as his legal position in such an occurrence is questionable."

WILLING

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Laotian Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma says he told the Soviet Union his government would be willing to participate in an international conference on Laos if North Vietnamese troops were withdrawn from its territory.

H.L. Hunt Writes

One of the finest qualities in a Constitutional republic is that it provides not only for majority rule, but also for minority rights.

As the founders of our republic were well aware, arbitrary, unfair rule does not change in nature whether it comes from a single tyrant, an "elite" ruling class or masses and mobs. All these are equally the enemy of liberty. All are equal threats to the individual and his rights.

It is tragic that in our time this truth has been so forgotten that leading spokesmen for some of our minority groups are calling for removal of all restraints on government and setting up a supremely powerful state. Apparently they hope to enlist a supreme and unlimited government on their side in their struggle for a "place in the sun."

A careful study of history would soon show these misguided Americans that by enlisting unlimited government as an ally they have taken a viper into their bosom. Unlimited government is the ancient and most terrible of all the instruments of oppression. The sufferings of these minority groups in the past would be as nothing compared to the sufferings they would endure as tools and slaves of a dictatorship.

Surely no one has a higher stake than the members of our minority groups in preserving a form of government which protects minority rights. In this they should find common cause with all thoughtful Americans, of whatever race or creed, who seek to preserve freedom. HLH.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a two-part article written by the late Mrs. W. H. R. Stote about her unusual but satisfying extracurricular activity. In this part she tells of the pains of "her boys" first love affairs and the way it all ended. Dora Foster will resume her regular column next week.)

During those years, I had a practical course in home nursing. The boys were always getting hurt; cuts, bruises, sprains. I kept pills on hand, but every once in awhile it took a dose of castor oil to straighten Reo out. I nursed Big Bruce through a siege of flu. Andy was subject to bronchial colds. I do not know how many times I put him to bed and gave him an improvised diathermy treatment. A spike run through one side f his toot during a football game demanded surgical dressings. In spite of it, he went to the all-cllege dance, looking very handsome in his evening togs, a hand-me-down, wearing one of his own pumps and one of my husband's bedroom slippers.

After he had gone, my husband said, "Those studs that kid was wearing looked familiar."

"I lent them to him," I replied with a nonchalance I did not feel. Then I smiled, "You let him take the car, didn't you?"

I put in a good many stitches in the cause of education. Being poor boys, their clothes had to last. I mended pajamas, sewed on buttons, turned cuffs and collars, took so many patches from the tails of shirts that retailing was necessary. Andy never could have worn his two gray flannel shirts for almost four years if it had been the fashion then as now to wear the tails out side.

Advice to the lovelorn was an extracurricular activity that claimed my attention frequently. Red, gregarious in his affections, was never happier than surrounded by a group of girls in skirts (not pants) and college sweaters.

Andy had a violent affair of the heart in his freshman year, but it was as nothing to the one he had a year or so later. A twenty-one year old grass widow, mother of a three-year-old, conveniently left elsewhere, came to town. Before her wiles, the Phi Gams went down like nine-pins. She was pretty, wore her clothes like nobody else and had a line that left every young male wall-eyed. At seventeen, her education had been finished. She really was adept in making the most of what she didn't know. To my consternation, she centered her glamorous affections upon Andy. For three months he didn't know whether he was eating or just going through the motions. She departed with his promise to visit her during Christmas vacation.

During the summer, which he had spent with us in the mountains, he had paid twenty-five dollars for a topless flivver. With headless optimism, he expected this rattletrap to hold together until he reached the home of the siren several hundreds of miles distant. I did my best to talk him out of it. The chances were about ninety-nine to one that this visit would end his college career.

At his time ROMANCE was oozing from every loose shingle on the Phi Gam house. The King Bee of the fraternity and president of the student body had been married in September. The brothers were consumed with envy. An epidemic of wedding bells was imminent. The following June the glamour had a blackout and the King Bee a knockout. Simultaneously, he received two degrees: an A.B. from the college and an F.T. (Father of Twins) from old Doc Stork. But this was still December, not June.

I couldn't have felt much worse had I been Andy's real instead of college mother. He was to leave in the afternoon, but I had said too much to expect him to say goodbye. That evening, about dinner time, the telephone rang and a weak voice said, "This is Andy. I didn't go, I'm sick."

Without thinking how it sounded, I said, "Wonderful! You'd better get up here." He was rooming in the fraternity house that year. I had just time to put an extra place on the table when he arrived. I kept him in bed for a few days. I never did know his real ailment, although I suspected it was largely the result of an emotional conflict. The love rash faded rapidly. In a few months he had met a real girl, a college mate with whom he could converse intelligently in words of more than one syllable.

One Christmas morning, as I was getting breakfast, I heard Mike coming up the basement stairs. I called out, "Merry Christmas, Mike. Come in and have a pancake and a cup of coffee with us."

He looked in at the door, his face the color of putty. "You wouldn't feel very merry if your best girl had just told you that she was engaged to another fellow."

My heart began a series of flip-flops for I had a great affection for Mike. I did not dare sympathize so I gave advice instead. "Listen, Mike, he's only home for the holidays. Take my advice and don't flatter your ex-girls vanity by hanging around after he's gone.

Mike recovered. They all do, but such heartaches are real afflictions while they last. Not long ago, he brought his young and lovely wife to see me. After they left, I thought, "Disappointments have their place in life after all."

Eight or eighty, women fell for Big Bruce. Each felt the charm of his presence. He had many girls, old and young, but before he left college he had a real affaire de coeur with a girl whose ancestors came from the Deep South. She had a social as well as a financial background to which several generations of forebears had contributed generously. Big Bruce had neither. When the affair began to look serious the powers-that-were took a hand and daughter was married to a young man of financial rating, whose family name appeared in the city's social register.

Bruce was quite bitter for a time, but love like hope springs eternal. He is now the proud head of a little family and, until quite recently, the owner of a prosperous business in one of the largest cities of the southwest. During the war his headquarters were in Washington, where he was engaged in highly specialized work for the government.

Andy and Red, too, have little families growing up around them. Each is employed in one of the departments of a great corporation, and each is going up steadily. Mike went to a school of journalism, became an AP correspondent and is at present in the publicity departments of one of the older states of the Union. Earl, the efficient, is a very successful practicing physician in a neighboring city. Rico gravitated to politics. He is now chairman of the Democratic party in his state. To the best of my knowledge, each one of my boys is a credit to the community in which he lives and a worthy citizen of this great republic.

And does it pay? In dollars and cents the average college man is a liability. But — can everything be measured in dollars and cents?

During the twenty years, I came in contact with young men from many states and of many nationalities. Each contact enlarged my vision, quickened my sympathy, enriched my life, and contributed to my understanding of the problems of the average college student. I found the presence of youth stimulating, invigorating and — intriguing. Its point of view held a great interest for me, although sometimes I marvelled at the cocksureness of its outlook on life.

The memories of and the friendships formed during those years are now a priceless heritage. The annoyances experienced have long since been forgotten. When circumstances ended my extracurricular activities, something vital went out of my life.

LUTHERAN GIVING

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The American Lutheran Church had receipts of $19,600,318.50 in the fiscal year which ended Jan. 31, according to Dr. George S. Schultz, executive secretary of the church's board of trustees.

The figure was an increase of 6.22 per cent over giving in 1963, but the 2.5 million-member body fell short of reaching its full $222,821,227 budget in 1964. A special drive last fall for support of the ALC's colleges and schools netted $353,366.61.

TODAY ONLY, Myron Floren, accordion virtuoso of the Lawrence Welk TV Show, will appear in concert at the Colorado Springs' Ctiy Auditorium. Sponsored by the Colorado School of Accordion, Inc., tickets will be available at the door. (adv.)

Easter Seal Camps Vital To Handicapped Children

Among the most important facilities maintained by the Colorado Society for Crippled Children and Adults are the Easter Seal Camps at Georgetown and Mesa. Open to both Colorado and out-of-state families, these camps offer a wide range of outdoor activities that are not available to handicapped children.

During his two-week stay at camp, the handicapped child may enjoy swimming, nature study, Indian lore, dramatics, cook-outs, athletics, fishing, crafts and riding. The camps are open to both physically handicapped and mentally retarded children.

The time spent away from his family (parents are discouraged from visiting) teaches the child self-reliance and encourages him to cultivate friendships among his fellow-campers. Exposure to others like himself gives the child the motivation he needs to achieve a greater degree of self-sufficiency. Professionally trained leaders make a point of offering each child every opportunity for participation in many healthful, educational and social activities.

Colorado's Easter Seal Camps are financed in part by contributions received during the annual Easter Seal Campaign, currently in progress. A fee is normally charged to cover camp operating expenses, but no child is refused admission because of an inability to pay. Easter Seal Societies throughout the state provide "camperships" to help as many children as possible to attend. Though out-of-state campers may attend the camps, they are not accepted until the needs of Colorado residents have been accommodated.

Thousands of handicapped children have enjoyed the clean fresh mountain air, good food, outdoor fun and fellowship of Colorado's Easter Seal Camps. They will be made available again this summer, with the help of contributions of the current Easter Seal Campaign.

State Dept. Officials Set To Visit Here

A team of high-ranking State Department officials will spend April 6 in Colorado Springs conducting a series of community-wide meetings on foreign policy, it was announced today.

The foreign briefing panel is visiting Colorado Springs as guests of the Lions Club, School District 11, the League of Women Voters, the United Nations Association, and Colorado College.

They will discuss Southeast Asia, American - Soviet relations, the United Nations, formulation of foreign policy, military capabilities, Africa and relations between the U. S. and France.

The three State Department officials will spend the morning abdressing general assemblies at Palmer and Wasson High Schools and Colorado College's Tueday Morning Forum During the day they will speak before classes at both the high schools and at the college.

At lunch, they will address the Lions Club of Colorado Springs, the United Nations Association and the League of Women Voters.

They will conduct a community - wide public meeting on foreign policy at 8 p.m. in Shove Chapel on the Colorado College campus.

The three members of the briefing panel are John Evarts Horner, director of the State Department's Office of Public Services in the Bureau of Public Affairs; Chester E. Merrow, State Department special adviser on community relations; and John Gunther Dean, of the State Department's Office of Atlantic Political and Military Affairs. They will be accompanied by Miss Mary Manchester, community meetings officer of the Office of Public Services.

Bomb Threat Is Reported

DENVER (UPI)—Police said Friday a Denver woman whose son returned from civil rights activities in Georgia to marry a Negro received a telephoned bomb threat Thursday.

Mrs. Philip W. Perdew reported the call.

Mrs. Perdew said the anonymous caller asked if it was her son who married the "black person" and then said, "we don't want you in the neighborhood. We are going to bomb your home."

John Perdew, 22, married Amanda Brown of Americus, Ga., in Denver in December. The couple then was to have returned to Americus to test Georgia's miscegenation law, but Mrs. Perdew refused Friday to say where the couple was.

Penrose to Open New 'Coronary Care Unit'

As part of the continuing development of the Catherine Maytag Memorial Heart Center at Penrose Hospital, a new Coronary Care Unit will be opened on April 5. The unit will consist of 4 beds, which are specially equipped for continuous recording of the electrocardiogram, pulse and blood pressure. These electronic recording devices, called monitors, give instant warning of changes in a patient's condition, both at the bedside and at a central nurse's station.

It is expected that the installation of the equipment will be completed in the next few days and the unit will be open for inspection for doctors and personnel Saturday and for the public next Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m.

During the past weeks, nurses assigned to the Coronary Care Unit have been receiving special training in emergency resuscitation and electrocardiographic interpretation.

Special units for the care of acute heart conditions, especially coronary thrombosis, are being started in numerous hospitals in the United States. Dr. A. R. Croke, Medical Director of the Hear Center, reports that studies of coronary attacks indicate that an important cause of death is the acute disturbance of heart rhythm in such patients. Experience in Coronary Care Units elsewhere has shown that immediate detection of rhythm disturbances by an electrical monitoring system and prompt resuscitative measures can significantly reduce the mortality of heart attacks.

Former Resident Died March 17 in Turkey

Mrs. Donald E. Cluxton, who was born in Colorado Springs and lived her early years there, died suddenly in Adana, Turkey, on March 17. Funeral services will be held in Denver on Monday, March 29, with interment at Fort Logan National cemetery.

Born here on June 12, 1906, Mrs. Cluxton moved to Denver with her parents, attended schools there, and was graduated from the University of Denver with M.A. degree in 1931.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Tarbell, prominent in business and social circles in Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek around the turn of the century.

For three years she taught school in Brighton, and organized the first speech and drama department in that community. Mrs. Cluxton was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and for ten years served as a Red Cross Gray lady in various countries where she lived.

On June 12, 1931, she married Lt. Col. Donald E. Cluxton, U.S. A.F. (Ret.), and lived with him in different parts of the world where he was stationed.

In addition to her husband she is survived by a son, Capt. Donald E. Cluxton, U.S. Army, presently stationed in South Viet Nam; a sister Lucy Tarbell Roth, also formerly of Colorado Springs; and three grandchildren.

Smith Has Article in Traffic Mag

"School Crossings — Colorado Style," is an article by City Traffic Engineer Don L. Smith in the March issue of the magazine "Traffic Engineering."

This is the official publication of the Institute of Traffic Engineers and has national and international circulation. The article, illustrated with several photos, got top feature billing.

Smith gave the reason that school signs are taken down and stored the day after schools close for summer vacation. "It enhances the authority of and respect for these signs when they are re - installed in September. It eliminates unwarranted warnings and restrictions on the drivers. It preserves and lengthens the useable life of the orange, fluorescent sheeting."

Smith said the Colorado Springs' school signing and safety program "led to unanimity of acceptance by the public" by the "uniformity of understandable, reasonable controls."

Safeway Employes Set Annual Banquet Today

The Safeway Stores Employes Association of the Colorado Springs District will hold its annual meeting, with installation of new officers, at the Broadmoor Hotel at 6 o'clock tonight. An attendance of 350 is expected. The district includes Colorado Springs, Canon City, Florence, Monte Vista, Salida, Alamosa and Leadville.

Brice Caldwell, Colorado Springs District manager, will speak. The new officers to be installed are: Art Diana, president; John Noolan, vice president, and Mrs. Bertha Pullen, secretary, all of Colorado Springs. Committee chairmen to be installed are: Mrs. Margaret Keener, Mrs. Ronald Fuller, Harry Rollings and Dean Marshall.

Clubs Invited to Enter Tournament of Tables

A meeting for all chairmen and co-chairmen of participating organizations in the Tournament of Tables will be held at the International Center at 1:30 p.m. Friday, April 2.

The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint all participants with the arrangement of the hall, explain any confusing terminology of rules, acquaint contestants with the committee of the Symphony Guild and to give everyone a chance to turn in any ticket money and acquire additional tickets if requested.

Any organization not already entered in the Tournament of Tables to be held at the International Center on April 23 and 24, is most welcome to come to this meeting. Applications may be submitted at this time if so desired.

Mrs. Robert Barry, Tournament of Tables chairman, reports that the following organizations have made reservations so far:

Soroptimist Club, Skyway Park Garden Club, Officers Wives Club of ARADCOM, Girl Scout Troop 289, Hobby Garden Club, Questers, Kinnikinnik Chapter of the DAR, La Sertoma (Pikes Peak,) Delta Gamma Alumnae, Pi Phi Alumnae, Austin Bluffs Garden Club, Officers Wives Club of Ft. Carson., China Painting Teachers of Colorado Springs, Junior League, Officers Wives Club of Air Force Academy Garden Club, St. Agatha's Guild of Chapel of Our Saviour, Broadmoor Garden Club, Navy and Marine Wives Club.

Any further information desired may be obtained by calling Mrs. Harry McWilliams, 633-5722 or Mrs. Robert Barry, 635-0814.

Eidson-Jones Vows Read In Presbyterian Church

The marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Jones and Jack Carroll Eidson was solemnized at 2 p.m. March 6 at the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. Howard E. Hansen officiating. Mrs. Schlegel at the organ played traditional selections.

The bride is the daughter of Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. John W. Jones of 1517 E. Cache la Poudre St. The bridegroom is the son of Capt. and Mrs. E. K. Browning Jr. of Austin, Tex.

White gladioli and pom poms, and yellow mums arranged in large baskets formed the setting for the ceremony and white tapers in tall candelabra lighted the nuptial scene. The center aisle pews were marked with white satin bows and clusters of yellow and white gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheath of delustered satin with detachable chapel train. The dress was trimmed with a wide band of Alencon lace on the train, matching the jacket of lace which was styled with elbow sleeves. Her veil of silk illusion flowed from a crown of lace and pearls, and her flowers were white stock surrounding a purple-throated cattelya orchid, arranged with English ivy in a cascade bouquet.

Miss Mary Lister was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Judy Browning, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Pat Brown. All wore floor length sheath gowns in maize and nile green, styled with scoop necklines and short sleeves. Their headdresses matched their gowns, and their crescent bouquets were of yellow jonquils accented with loops of avocado green velvet ribbon.

The bride's mother, receiving guests at the reception which was held in Honnen Parlor, wore a three-piece blue knit suit, with flowered hat and black patent accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a three piece pink silk suit, pink accessories, and flowered hat. Both wore corsages of creamy white cymbidium orchids.

Miss Carol Leming and Mrs. Sally Crawford served the cake, Miss Kathy Sundahl presided at punch bowl, and Miss Pat Rael was in charge of the guest book.

The guests at the wedding included Capt. and Mrs. E. K. Browning and daughter, Judy, and Mr. and Mrs. Dana Crawford, all of Austin, Tex.

Memorial Concert to Be Held Today

Dr. J. Julius Baird, musical director and organist of the Taylor Memorial Concerts, will present the Harrison High School Girls Chorus in a concert at Grace Episcopal Church, at 4 p.m. today.

The Chorus will be directed by Martha Booth, director of choral music at Harrison High School. Mrs. Booth, a graduate of Radcliff College, Cambridge, Mass. with an A. B. in Music, is well known in the Colorado College series of concerts, directed the Shove Chapel Choir and has appeared in two productions of the Colorado Springs Opera Association.

The Taylor Concerts are the only endowed series of concerts in the city, established in 1928 by Dr. Frederick Boothroyd with the assistance of an endowment given by Mrs. Frederick P. Taylor in memory of her late husband. The series is free to the public.

Antique Exhibit to Include Questers' Treasured Items

Six chapters of Questers in Colorado Springs will stage an exhibit of antiques collected by members, at a dinner meeting to be held Thursday evening, April 8, at Ft. Carson. Interested persons are invited to attend and hear talks and descriptions of treasures assembled by members.

Mrs. Joy Bogue, one of the leaders in the Quester activity here, has given the following data and information on the organization and its objectives and enjoyment:

"Interest in Antiques and their related subjects, their history and preservation, are the real reasons for men and women becoming questers. There is no age limit. It is gratifying to have young people interested in what their ancestors used and enjoyed. It is easier to understand the uses old things had and how each was cherished in the days when 'plenty' was not known.

"Some of the world's great men and women, were and are collectors. Johannes Brahms the musician, had many little lead soldiers back in 1816 which he arranged in various battle formations to amuse himself. Henry Ford the famed auto maker, had a collection of every type shoe made in the United States at the time of his death. King Farouk of Egypt had one of the world's leading coin collections. Dr. Charles J. Bondley of Belle Center, Ohio accumulated thousands of arrow heads, one so small it could be placed on a dime.

"Mrs. Wade Kissack, 1804 Cheyenne Blvd., a Quester in the Columbine Chapter, thinks that antiques do something for a home, taking it out of the common - place and adding a distinction, even prestige. She is pictured with some of her treasures, which includes a 100 year old Early American curly maple, three drawer chest she discovered in an old barn in Wisconsin. Hardy pioneers had few quaint, plain 28 inch high chest with its serviceable round drawer pulls and unadorned splash board. An old pewter teapot of the Victorian era, shown on the chest, was made in three sections, soldered together in a craftsman's shop in New England. The best American pewter was made prior to 1780. What we are able to locate today is of the 19th century. Much of it is beautiful and silvery in appearance because of the high percentage of tin used in its manufacture. Some pewter items were 90 per cent tin. The lead filled pewter tends to dull and is easily dented.

"Mrs. Kissack also displays an old camel back trunk which formerly belonged to the Thomas McRobbie family, near neighbors of hers. Mrs. McRobbie is a great grand - daughter of the late John Pearcy, who brought the trunk by ox-cart to Colorado Springs from Joplin, Mo. over 100 years ago. It was in use for many years for storage, in their cabin up Ute Pass. This little trunk is lined with old fashioned tan paper sprinkled with tiny calico print in blue, yellow and red. In the inside center of the curved lid is a picture of a woman's head, typical beauty of the mid - 19th century. The trunk exterior is of embossed tin with the raised flowers tinted a bright blue. To protect the tin cover there are heavy oak slats shaped and firmly fastened in place and the trunk glides on its metal ball castors. Since there is an interest today in restoring trunks for alternate uses, many find it fun to repaper the interior. Original owners packed with care as they filled these little storage bins for crossing the unknown prairies 100 years ago."

Questers are "doers" for the purpose of having fun. Anyone who would like to share their pleasure in the field of old things is invited to attend the annual get together on the evening of April 8. For information and reservations call any of the following Questers, who will give all the details:

Mrs. Willard Wulff, 1226 E. Willamette St.; Mrs. Scott Brady, 5 Crossland Rd.; Mrs. Walter E. Bond, 1007 W. Cheyenne Rd.; Mrs. Mary B. Lindsey, 1303 N. Nevada Ave.; Mrs. W S. Hallam, 4 Sequouyah Rd.; Miss Lyda Brownfield, 618 Custer St.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Warren Jensen as matron of honor. Mr. Warren Jensen served as the best man.

The bride wore a blue dress and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Jensen was attired in a tan knit suit with matching accessories and white carnations.

The couple has established residence at 1628 S. Cascade Ave.

The Misses Ingrid and Karen Lind, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lind of Woodman Valley, have been selected as members of the Concert Choir at Hardin-Simmons University.

The choir will present concerts in a number of High Schools and churches in North Texas during the current week.

Cadet Larry Meloy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meloy of Manitou Springs has been promoted to Sergeant Major at St. Joseph's Military Academy, Hays, Kan., where he is a senior.

A linen shower was given by Mrs. Clifford Gertsch, 311 Crestridge Ave., Stratmoor Hills, for Miss Charlene Hager, whose marriage to Cadet Roland James Page will take place June 10.

Mrs. R. J. Caicob and Mrs. Stanley Szumigala aunts of the bride-elect from Toledo, poured.

Guests were Mrs. S. D. LaShelle, Mrs. Aubie House, Mrs. E. W. Hakes, Mrs. Jon F Abrahamson, Mrs. Albert O. Behnke, Mrs. Kenneth S. Johnson, Mrs. E. O. Veteto, Mrs. J. O. Arabian Horse Show Will Be Held Here in July

Mrs. Woodson Tyree has been named general chairman of plans for the Broadmoor Arabian Horse Show to be held July 10 and 11 at Penrose Stadium.

Officers of the Colorado Arabian Horse Club are pleased to announce that the Broadmoor Arabian Show, has received an "A" rating from the American Horse Shows Assn.

"Colorado now has four Class "A" Arabian shows within the state — The Broadmoor Northern Colorado (Loveland), Estes Park All-Arabian show, and the Colorado State Fair", said Jim Bowman, state president. "A most enviable position for state Arabian horse owners, it gives us a Rocky Mountain show circuit where coolness and beauty, plus interesting shows will draw western and mid-western exhibitors.

"Other drawing cards will be points awarded at this show for the annual Horse of the Year Award, given by American Horse Shows Assn. and the Legion of Merit awards by International Arabian Horse Assn."

The final performance Sunday afternoon will climax three sessions of performance classes for pure bred Arabs and part breds with championship stake classes in native costume, western pleasure, and English pleasure. Hand crafted sterling buckles will be awarded for high point pure bred performance horse and high point part bred performance horse of the show.

Local committees for the show include: Leslie Neppel, Mr. and Mrs. Gunther Paetsch, Mrs. Peter Steinbach, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lovelady, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Robinson, Mrs. Cherie Mitchie Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Tyree, Dean Neppel, James Shanks and Ken Gloss.

Beauty Advice

". . . I have never yet seen a finer method of improving the complexion. Wrinkles are smoothed, dryness is checked, blemishes vanish and the skin takes on a healthy, youthful look . . ." (Extract from a report by Margaret Merril suggesting the use of the moist tropical oil of olay as a powder base.) Most druggists are now able to obtain supplies of this oil which gives glorious loveliness to the skin.

HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kilpatrick of 534 Prospect Lake Dr. were given a surprise anniversary party by their children, celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The party was held Tuesday, March 23, a few days before the anniversary date, so that all of the five children could be present. There will be nominations for officers for the coming year. A board of managers meeting at 7 o'clock will precede the regular meeting.

Footnotes and Fashion Memos

Use the rule of thumb for checking shoe lengths. When you are standing, there should be enough space between the tips of the great toe and shoe to accommodate the side of your thumb.

Remember that exaggeratedly high front, for example, which is so chic right now, is apt to prove binding on a higher than average instep. This type of foot will be more comfortable with equally stylish shoes that feature low-cut vamps and sides.

With so many shoe patterns to choose from, ranging from small slits to bared toes, heels and shanks pick the designs that will both show off and support your foot to best advantage. If slings slip off your heel, buy the kind that have goring in the strap's back center to anchor it.

After you have purchased your shoes, follow through with good shoe wear and care habits. Change shoes at least once a day, preferably twice; keep your shoes on wooden trees, as the wood absorbs moisture which lurks in the lining of a shoe after it has been worn.

MRS. MILO M. SARCHET
—Nee Marie A. Conant

* * * * * *

Marie Conant Becomes Bride of Milo M. Sarchet

Miss Marie A. Conant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Conant, of Atwood, Kas., became the bride of Milo M. Sarchet, son of Mrs. Katharine Sarchet, Hillsboro, Ore., at 10 a.m. Feb. 20, in the Divine Redeemer Catholic Church in Colorado Springs.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white peau-de-soie featuring a portrait neckline, long sleeves ending in bridal points at the writs, and a full pleated skirt. French imported Alencon lace decorated with seed pearls and irridescent sequins trimmed the bodice and front. The back of the gown was accented by a large bow and a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a pillbox of white lace and seed pears, and she wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

Miss Betty Conant, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Joan Kentopp and Miss Betty Kreutzer were bridesmaids. They wore floor length gowns of blue cotto chiffon featuring empire waists, round necklines, and a soft drapes falling from waitslines to hemin back. They carried colonial bouquets of white fushias. Miss Alberta Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Price was flower girl and was attired like the bridesmaids. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Joe Conant was best man. Ushers were Jerry Conant and Mr. Charles Conant. Michael Schmid of Denver was ringbearer.

Light Leggy Look Steps Into Spring

Light, lacy - textured and lovely are the adjectives for the new "Leggy Look" for Spring. Highlighting the fashion picture are the knee-highs and over-the-knees styles.

Since light is right for Spring, the over-the-knees take on an airy feeling. Meant to partner with low-heeled cutout shoes and pale-tinted woolens, they are completely at home on city streets, but have the plus potential of turning up as underpinning to a country-bound ensemble or traveling in style due to their hardy manners.

One over-the-knee, in a wide-open fishnet mesh that might almost have been crocheted, litrally bars the legs in a peek-a-boo manner behind its texture.

Another runs a narrow vertical ribbing from top-to-toe in a faint open - mesh motif, while a third acquires a lacy textured look via a small self-diamond pattern. Light in color as well as texture, these casual stockings barely tint the legs when worn in the palest of pastels, can also be marvelous fashion sparkling in cool bright white.

"Baring the knee" beneath the skirts of urban outfits and their partnership in casual elegance has resulted in the smartest knee-highs this side of Easter. Lest school and college lassies feel left out, the socks will be as right on campus as they are with the pleats and blazers destined to be an urbanite's daytime uniform for the current Spring.

Snappy as a midshipman's salute is the soft Orlon knee sock that shows its fashion stripes with a single broad band of conrasting color down each side. Cotton combined with stretch nylon turns into a wonderfully tweedy look in the knee-high called Raffia that mixes white with bright, then knits them together into wide vertical ribbing. And like its over-the-knee sister in the knee-high in an open-air mesh that comes in such vivid shades as red or blazer — navy as well as in the powdered pastels.

Newest Wrinkle: Bake the Clothes

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A new process makes wash-and-wear garments hold creases and pleats better through repeated laundering.

University of Illinois textiles specialist Elsie Crouthamel described the process as a delayed cure method. The wash-wear chemical is applied to the fabric before it is made into garments. Finished items are presssed and creases or pleats are placed where desired. The garments then are put into a high-temperature oven to cure the wash - wear chemical that sets the entire garment's shape.

Clothes treated with the process, developed by the U.S. Agriculture Department, hold their "just pressed" look during wear and after laundering, she said. They dry smoothly and have a high degree of wrinkle resistance during wear.

Seam puckering, a problem with most wash-wear clothing, is eliminated by proper sewing and processing, she said.

Miss Crouthamel said that slacks, trousers and work pants are the main garment now being manufactured from fabrics treated with the delayed cure process. But the new finish will be used in pleated skirts,, shorts and slacks for girls and women this spring.

Wives Club Hears Talk On Ikebana

The Ent OWC Garden Club met March 18 in the Skyline Club, with Mrs. G. W. Vickers and Mrs. B. J. Wear the hostesses for the afternoon.

The guest speaker was Mrs. W. H. Jones-Burdick, one of the foremost American experts on Ikebana, Japanese Flower Arranging. The development of modern Oriental flower arranging was compared and contrasted with predominant schools of Japan.

The four main arrangements, basic upright, slanting arrangement, free form and abstract were illustrated. The important relationship of floral material, flower containers, and accessories was stressed.

The prize was won by Mrs. E. C. Young and Mrs. James J. Scanlion won the tablecloth awarded by the Garden Club. The date for the Tournament of Tables sponsored by the Colorado Springs Symphony Guild, has been changed to April 23-24 at the International Center.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Kenneth Edwards, chairman of the Advisory Council of Colorado Springs Chapter of DeMolay and William Greer, the Chapter Advisor.

Sports in Fashion With Boys' Clubs

Good sportsmanship never goes out of style. This Spring in Boys' Clubs throughout the country over 600,000 members will be offered a chance to be trained in sports, crafts and good citizenship. The combination has proven just about unbeatable.

And this combination has produced "teams" not "gangs" roaming the streets, looking for trouble. Boys' Clubs can also share the responsibility of producing such fine men as Baseball's Joe DiMaggio, Football's Albie Booth and Boxing's Carlos Ortiz.

But the list doesn't stop there. Other notables as Sid Luckman, Bill Dickey and Ralph Branca started many a Spring training in a Boys' Club.

The late Herbert Hoover, who served as chairman of Boys' Clubs for twenty-eight years, summed up their sports program very well and tersely. "The laws of sportsmanship", he said, "are second only to religious teaching". In his honor, the Clubs have established the Herbert Hoover Memorial Fund. It will supply needed funds to achieve his goal of one thousand Clubs for one million deserving boys.

Mrs. Hillis Hostess To Questers Monday

The Questers will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the home of Doris Hillis, 1612 Wood Ave. Addie Wiseman will assist the hostess.

Anita Smyth will present the program "Old Greeting Cards and Post Cards."

Elegants Stress Motion

The chic young woman of today is a whirlwind of activity . . . be she career gal or young mother! And spring fashions are keyed to her busy pace, with clothes designed to follow the body in motion.

Great examples are the pleated skirts, flicking shortly over lacy legs that walk, dance or climb into cab or car with marvelous abandon and good looks; the disco dresses that tirelessly follow the figure; the comfortable trouser suits for active country weekends; and the pantskirts that divide and conquer the most strenuous day.

There's no end to the many refreshing looks the individualist can achieve this spring with such great fashions as narrow blazers with wide stripings, hip-tipping jackets, little bags on short straps or chains, the narrowest little coats, and grosgrain ribbons flowing at the nape of the neck.

The "Mods", those young instigators of English chic, are setting an individualistic pace in sportswear with understated suits, coordinates and shifts, featuring round white collars. It's a look that is simple and distinctive.

Red, white and blue are another great young look as seen in bright navy trouser suits or red and white checked wool dresses for evening. Red and white hound's tooth is also popular, both in pants skirts and rain suits.

Sweaters are small, close to the body and numerous! This is the time to have a great collection, when there are so many skinny little shades, sisified styles with crocheted lace edges, red-w h i t e-and-blue, sweaters striped like T-shirts, parka-like styles that feature outsize zippers, the long-waisted sweaters and the lacy knits.

And while we're on the subject of tops, sheer ones are the latest kind to wear with sportswear.

Timpiute Chapter Will Tour Museum

Timpiute Chapter of Questers will meet at 10 a.m. Thursday for a tour of the Pioneer Museum followed by lunch at 12:30 p.m. at the Red Carpet.

Get in Shape For Golf Now

With cold weather passing, the week-end golfer will soon be bored with cleaning his clubs and sit idly in front of the TV set dreaming of par. And, he will probably find when he gets on the course again in spring, that he is quite out of shape. He may have gained a few inches around the belt, and, worse than that, find his muscles have turned to flab and his reflexes not so sharp.

Proper physical conditioning during the winter months is of prime importance to most athletes who wish to retain their old form when they play again, the pros point out.

Ever since he began playing he has followed a daily exercise program, which he says has done more than anything else to sharpen his game. The program: a 15-20 minute workout with weights.

Based on the obvious success of his program, a leading manufacturer of a new type of exercise equipment, Diversified Products, Opelike, Alabama, has asked Player to share these excercises with the public.

As a result, Gary has just introduced his own "Gary Player Golf Improvement Program" which contains the equipment and exercise Gary uses to strengthen and tone all the muscles used in golf, from driving to putting.

According to Player, following this program is as relaxing as bike riding or hiking and if used properly in a daily routine, the average person can stay trim and fit all winter long.

The equipment is unique in that the weights are made of a plastic-like material called Orbatron — completely getting away from the old-fashioned black, pig-iron weights now in common use.

Because of this new material, the weights will not rust, will not crack, and will not mar the floors.

In addition they come in an attractive burgundy color which appeals to the feminine members of the house.

Because this equipment is attractive, it belongs in the home. No more going down to the cellar or the garage to exercise. You can work-out right in your own living room and the women golfers in your home will probably want to join you.

Comfort becomes you...

Dale M. Lutzka Weds Sandra Kay Bennett

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Bennett Sr. of 936 S. Institute St. announce the marriage of their daughter, Sandra Kay to Dale M. Lutzka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Lutzka Sr. of Duluth, Min.

The ceremony took place at 6:30 p.m. March 6 in the chapel of the First E U B Church with the Rev. Paul Gamber officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Sally Brewer was maid of honor and Brian Boycroft attended the groom.

Mrs. George Bennett kept the guest book and Lorie Smith lighted the candles. Mrs. Lyle Smith, cousin of the bride, helped with the reception which was held following the ceremony in the home.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Lutzka Jr. and son, brother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mills, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cruser, and Mr. and Mrs. K .Werschay all of Littleton.

The bride is employed at the Colorado Springs National Bank and the bridegroom is a member of the U. S. Armed Forces at Ft. Carson. The couple plans to make their home in Colorado Springs.

Raleigh of the Zebulon Pike Detention Home.

Saturday Supper

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Tomato Meat Loaf Potatoes
Green Lima Beans Salad
Ice Cream with Cake

Tomato Meat Loaf

1½ cups finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter
2 pounds ground lean beef
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 eggs
1 or 2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper

Cook the onion in the butter until wilted; mix it with all the remaining ingredients. Pack firmly into a loaf pan (9 by 5 by 3 inches). Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven for 60 minutes. Allow to stand about 10 minutes. Loosen edges and invert; turn right side up. Using 2 wide spatulas or pancake turners, remove to serving platter. Garnish with parsley. Cut into squares rather than slices. Makes 6 large servings.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have the answer for all the women who suffer when sleeping with their hair in rollers.

Just cut facial tissue into strips about 4 inches long and as wide as the rollers you are using.

Simply roll the papers into the rollers right along with your hair, in the same manner as you roll end-papers into your hair when giving yourself a home permanent.

You will sleep in comfort all night long and what's more, your hair will dry faster because the paper absorbs the water. —Daryles Richardson

True. You're a knockout to think of that one. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My thanks to the woman who wrote that we should put our hand under the cold water faucet and sprinkle lettuce salads if they were too tart.

Bless this woman because we serve lettuce salads often. —Liz

Dear Heloise:

I put the bassinette mattress inside and (as with a pillow) fold the excess "under", and have a neat covering that won't pull out no matter how active the baby is. —Mrs. Karen Berg

Dear Heloise:

Here's another wonderful idea for your nylon net:

The other day, I was sewing together a sweater I had finished knitting. Down the front it has a knitted facing that turns back.

To keep it from stretching lengthwise, I cut a strip of nylon net and put it under the facing before I turned it back.

I slip stitched the facing in place, finished the buttonholes and sewed on the buttons.

It looks great and the gals at our hobby club thought it was a marvelous idea. No more stretched sweater fronts. —Mrs. S. E. Nalley

Dear Heloise:

I'd like to know a way to clean artificial fruit. Dust clings to the wax and soap and water doesn't remove it. —C.M.

Ladies:

Can someone give an answer to this reader? If so, please write to me in care of this paper. Why not drop us a line? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

On the underside of my kitchen cabinet (where it cannot be seen) I have a large piece of sandpaper on which to strike kitchen matches.

I did this after the whole box caught fire from a flying match head.

Since I have a tile counter below the cabinet, if a match breaks it doesn't cause any harm to the counter. —Lenora Glenn

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I'm one of the few gals who still believes in wearing dresses.

When I'm working around the yard, or hanging clothes on a windy day, I fasten three or four snap clothes pins around the bottom of my dress if it has a full skirt. These pins are so easy to snap on or to remove. —Dud

Dear Heloise:

For those who keep the coffee cans with the replaceable plastic lids. . .

I put the lids on the "bottom" of the cans when not in use, and never have to wonder where the lids are. Saves both time and temper. —Mrs. P. F.

TO BE AUGUST BRIDE—Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Sturdivant, 3018 Drakestone Dr., announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Kay, to Thayne Allen Shank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Shank of Burdett, Kan. Miss Sturdivant graduated from Douglass S. Freeman High School in Richmond, Va. in 1962 and is employed as a secretary by The Broadmoor Hotel. Mr. Shank attended Ottawa University in Ottawa, Kan. for 4½ years. He plans to return to Ottawa University in September to continue working toward his Master's degree in Mathematics. Plans are for an August wedding. (Stegner Photo)

They've Got You Covered!

Wide-open spaces have no appeal, when it's the area between socks-tops and the cuffs of a man's trousers.

Hosiery makers have launched a campaign to get men to wear over-the-calf length socks when wearing a coat and tie.

Not only is the bare, hairy skin between the tops of a man's too short socks and the cuffs of his trousers unbusiness-like and unfashionable, they claim, but it is downright unattractive. Furthermore, over-the-calf socks are recommended as more comfortable and much neater looking; what's more, they stay up without garters.

Sartorial Tipoff from the stars:—A well known tailor, who has more than a passing interest in astrology, says that Capricorn and Gemini men are most conservative dressers, while Pisces and Scorpio are the most daring. Men born under Cancer are the most casual and stress comfort in their apparel. Virgoans are the neatest. Leo men "tress to kill" . . . and incidentally, are the best and fastest about paying their bills.

Fashion Highlight — According to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, because of the wide diversity of hatbands now available, many well-dressed men are purchasing changeable bands that match or blend with shirts, ties or clothing. It's comparatively easy with the plaids, checks and stripes, and of course, plain colors, to create an attractive combination.

Trends — Slipper socks of all types, many with synthetic leather soles, are gaining in acceptance nationwide. The high rise socks, for business and dress-up wear are replacing many of the too, too short socks that added up to a poorly groomed look.

Odd Items — Good Merchandising — Men's handkerchiefs come packed in a "baker's dozen". You pay for 12 and get 13 "on the house". Advice — if any of you fellows have the unconscious habit of constantly adjusting the knot of your tie . . . cut it out. Nothing will soil both tie and collar faster than that.

New Italian Dishes To Please Palates

BOLOGNA, Italy (UPI) — It has been temporarily labelled with the anonymous identification "composition 005," but there is no doubt it will soon enter the olympus of Italian gastronomic specialities and travel the world under some resounding name.

"Composition 005" is the winning recipe of Renato Gualandi in a gastronomic contest sponsored by the National Society of Culinary Art, the highest congregation of experts in the difficult discipline of good eating.

Bologna, the city that boasts Italy's and probably Europe's most ancient university, is known as "La Grassa"—the fat—because of its irresistible kitchen. This is where the society pursues its artistic scope and where a picked company of 60 renowned chief fought a bitter battle to the last casserole to add a few leaves to their laurels.

The contest's theme was clear—the specialties invented by the chefs had to be not only "new," but also typically Bolognese.

Gualandi made the grade showing both ingenuity and respect for home-made pasta. His composition consisted of a solid pedestal of home-made noodles dressed with parmesan cheese and cream with long and narrow slices of ham on top for both esthetic and palatine effect. Over such a succulent pedestal, Gualandi placed little spits holding broiled chunks of fish and crustaceans alternated with slices of tomatoes.

The winner explained his winning "touch" — the way the chunks of fish were prepared. Before being put on the spits, Gualandi said he had kept them covered with rosemary, salt and pepper. This gave the fish a special flavor. But the last refinement was the broiling, which was done not on ordinary charcoal but on burning fruit tree branches.

The original Waldorf salad did not call for nuts, but these days most cooks like to add walnuts to the combination of apple, celery and mayonnaise.

Carpeting And Kids

If you have youngsters or teenagers in your home, you have noise. One sure way to cut down on the sounds from just everyday living is to install carpeting. Carpeting is also very effective in reducing the seepage of loud sounds, such as those from television programs your children will be watching, to other parts of the house. And if an ample foam rubber pad is used under the carpeting, it will be a big asset in reducing noise to acceptable levels.

Besides, carpeting can hide a multitude of sins. It covers worn, scuffed or warped spots and eliminates the chore of washing and waxing floors.

Like any other home improvement material, picking the right carpeting can save you time, work and money.

There are different types of carpeting for different jobs. For example with youngsters in the home, it is wise to choose a carpet that wears exceptionally well. Some carpets are easier to care for than others. Your carpet salesman can help you select the carpet best suited to the job you want it to do.

Almost all carpets need an underlay of some sort for additional durability and to preserve the life of the carpet. Latex foam rubber underlays are highly recommended for this purpose. They also provide a soft resilient cushioning for a walking-on-air feeling.

Consider the location and type of floor too. If the floors are below grade both carpets and padding must resist moisture nad mildew. Any of the man-made fibers and foam rubber paddings are suitable for these conditions.

On hard floors like concrete, use an extra resilient padding and heavy carpeting. This is a particularly good way to treat a basement floor, because it is much easier than setting tiles. Also it makes the floor warmer and more comfortable for children to play on.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Do Something Now!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been retired for a long time, and his idleness is getting on my nerves. I have as much to do as I always did, plus entertaining him. He is used to living a very active life, and he can't get used to doing nothing. He will go anywhere he is invited. He doesn't care whether he knows the people or not, or how much it costs. And he drags me with him. Once he got an invitation to attend a testimonial dinner for Ben-Gurion. I hate to tell you how much it cost a plate. But he went anyway. And he didn't even know Ben-Gurion! Can you suggest ways to keep him busy so he won't be so restless? —RETIRED MAN'S wife

DEAR WIFE: You have touched upon a serious problem. Men retire, but their wives remain in the harness til they die. Investigate Senior Citizens' communities. I have had glowing reports from those who have found a wonderful new way of life after retirement. They keep busy with sports, cards, gardening, hobby group, square dancing, and even learning arts and crafts.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 38-year-old business executive who closes his telephone conversations with "bye-bye"? He is my boss, so please don't use my name. —EMPLOYEE

DEAR EMPLOYEE: In my book "bye bye" goes better with birdies than with bosses. But you'd be wise to mind your own business or it could be "bye bye" for you.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town. Last year we got a new minister. He is married and has children and they are about the meanest kids you'd ever want to see. The little one lays down in the middle of the street and makes the cars stop for him. And the others are sassy and fresh. Well, a few months ago, the minister's wife started to teach dancing. She is supposed to have had many years of training in this line, and I hear she is very good. I want to take lessons from her but my parents won't let me. They say a minister's wife shouldn't be teaching dancing. Most of my girl friends take lessons from her, but they say their folks don't mind because they don't go to her husband's church. When some of the church members told our minister they didn't think it looked right for his wief to give dancing lessons, he said the church hired HIM, not HER, and she could do as she pleased. What do you think, Abby?—WANTS TO TAKE

DEAR WANTS: If the minister is a good minister and his wife is a good dancing teacher, each should be free to preach or teach. As to the undisciplined children,, that is a more serious problem. A minister and his wife need the respect of his flock.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos your items about the names on tombstones: I once had a wonderful witty maiden aunt (now deceased) who asked my father (her eldest brother) please to put only her first and last names on her tombstone when she died. "Leave off the 'MISS', John," she said, "I didn't miss anything." —Sincerely, JOHN,, JR.

Men! Declare Independence!

Therefore spring calls for a wardrobe that will befit the man's job, social and recreational activities.

For the office man or salesman, warm weather calls for business-going suits lightweight wools, mixtures, and some of the more fabulous shape holding, crease-resistant man-made fibers.

Most men can use three or four sport jackets in their warm weather wardrobes.

Plain and iridescent effects in silk and silk-like fabrics are favorites. Now new colors, stripes and plaids show up in seersucker, denim-like fabrics and heavy cotton blends. Colors are soft and blended rather than bold in these designs.

Linen and the look of linen are also popular; these come in patterns, plain and self-weave styles.

Tropical weight slacks in worsteds and blends of man-made fibers score in many shades of grey, tan and olive. In whites — flannels, flannel-blends and ducks are gaining in popularity.

Pastel shades and bright colors score in golf slacks and shorts.

For the summer days to come, shorts get the nod in seersuckers, linens, denim types, Madrases and other current fabric favorites.

The bold look returns to the sport shirt scene as do the perennially popular solid colors, plaids, stripes and novelty patterns.

The shirt that is a "jacket" is due for another big season and knits make news in all shirt styles.

Speaking of knits, a lightweight sweater (or two) is a must for most men, especially for sportsmen.

For formal occasions, spring and summer call for cummerbunds, bow ties, and even formal shirts to complement the wide variety of formal wear available for the discriminating male.

SOFT, SUBTLE LINES — A belted suit that will take you anywhere, is handsomely accented by a notched collar and trim flap pockets. Designed by Zelinka-Matlick and made of lightweight Fanfare, a smooth, pure wool worsted loomed in America.

Look for this Seal of Quality.

Ventura The important gift that makes a big impression . . . "for her" ("Him", too!), glamorous good looks, exciting fashion colors, flite-weight. Featuring . . . extra security, personal combination locks.

Object lesson for both declarer and defenders are provided by today's offering. That the high-low signal is not flashed automatically from a holding of two cards in the suit led by partner is illustrated effectively for the defenders, and declarer observes that it is good economy to discard a "loser on loser" when he is faced with the loss of two tricks.

The bidding was active. It seems to me that South might just as well have leaped to four spades on the first round inasmuch as he eventually decided to go there without additional information. East had a close decision when he decided to double four spades. Many players would have preferred to go on to five hearts on the principle of insurance.

West opened the king of diamonds as East started an "echo" with the nine. West cashed the queen of diamonds as East completed the signal with the deuce. In compliance with partner's request, West continued with the ace of diamonds. Had declarer permitted himself to fall into the careless error of ruffing, the contract would have been defeated, for East would overruff and cash a high heart. But declarer, with proper caution, refused to ruff and instead discarded dummy's losing heart. This left no more tricks for the defense, for it was a simple matter to ruff two hearts in dummy and then draw trumps.

Declarer was rewarded for his cautious play, but delicate defense would have led to the defeat of the contract. East should recognize the importance of cashing a heart trick in a hurry, and on the king of diamonds should play the deuce which would make it clear to partner that a diamond continuation is not desired at this time. Obviously, West will shift to a heart and, when East wins with the king, he leads the nine of diamonds. West wins and, while he cannot be certain that East started with a doubleton diamond, it is plain that there is no other way to find the setting trick. So hoping against hope, he leads the third diamond and East is able to overruff dummy.

Pressless, Priceless

"Permanent press," a new wash-and-wear process that lets creases and pleats "bounce back" after washing!

What a boon to Mom as a labor-saver!

Ideally suited for modern laundry appliances, the new Koratron fashions (by Koret of California) will include ankle-length capris, Carmel shorts and slim skirts in year-'round colors.

These new garments will return to their original shape and press after laundering — in effect, they press themselves!

Of special importance to realizing the best laundering results with "permanent press" fashions is today's all-automatic dryer. Use the wash-and-wear setting on your dryer for "permanent press" garments.

Dryers with electronic control, innovated by Maytag, also feature an automatic cut-off of the dryer operation at the end of the special-wrinkle-removing conditioning period.

To wash the new fabrics, laundry experts recommend setting your automatic washer for a five-minute wash using warm or cold water and regular operating speed. Intensity of colors determines where warm or cold water is used.

Use regular laundry detergent, but with cold water use a dissolved granular or liquid laundry detergent.

Two fabrics are featured in this new Koret line. Koratron Bulwark is a blend of Fortrel polyester and cotton; Flexi-denim is an east - west stretch cotton that resists sag. So, jump on the "permanent press" wagon . . . it's all there just for the wearing.

Children's Work: Playing for Pay

By GLORIA MONDA
United Press International

EAST AURORA, N.Y. (UPI) —When is a toy cow's moo, a duck's waddle or the scurry of a dog realistic enough to keep the squirmiest pre-school youngster happy?

Faced with finding the answer, Fisher-Price, the largest makers of pre-school toys in the world, pays three-year-olds to play.

Surrounded by toys the children are left alone in a special observation - living room. The toymakers watch from an adjoining room through a large piece of glass which looks like a mirror from the inside. The children do not know they can be seen.

The children's reactions decide whether a toy goes into production or is rejected. As one company official put it, "if a kid doesn't like it, it just isn't good."

The firm does not manufacture pre-school toys aimed at formal education.

"Education toys may teach, but such item destroy what we consider most important to develop in the pre-school years —the imagination," said Robert Hicks, the chief of research.

"From school age on his imagination dies. It is 'learned' out of him as he continually conforms to convention. Parents who give pre-schoolers educational toys discourage the child from using his imagination."

The toys educate — not in the sense of teaching to add, read or write—but by developing muscular coordination and promoting a feeling of accomplishment.

Soft toys in bright colors and round shapes attract a tyke, encourage him to pick them up and develop hand muscles: "At first a kid uses his whole fist to pick up a toy—it's quite a move. He feels proud of himself. With time, he develops enough muscular coordination to pick it up with two fingers," Hicks said.

Push toys—like musical lawnmowers—have two purposes: to provide fun and give a child stability while learning to walk.

A pull toy—like the company's most popluar creation, the Daschund "Snoopy" — is a friend. "The child takes pride in knowing what each animal is. It's a part of his life. The child would like to have two pull toys because each is a friend and he'd like to have two friends," Hicks said.

Why do some toys lie idle?

The manufacturer believes a mother, thinking her child unusually smart, often chooses toys above his age group without realizing the child is not ready for it. When the object is not played with, she thinks it's a bad toy.

Spectator toys which perform by themselves while the child merely watches, may be funny to adults but are not entertaining or stimulating to a child.

Adults sometimes stop the child from enjoying a toy. Too many parents, the researchers believe, have preconceived notions about the righ way to put a toy together. And they restrain the child from carrying out his own ideas.

Who is to say that the rings must be piled up in descending order or size? Who is to say the child might not think of a better way?

ENGAGEMENT TOLD — Mr. and Mrs. Dalton E. Overstreet of 1904 S. Hancock St. announce the engagement of their daughter, Dianna Faye, to Thomas E. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Baker of 2518 Old Broadmoor Rd. Miss Overstreet was graduated from Harrison High School, class of '64. Mr. Baker attended Cheyenne Mountain High School. No wedding date has been set.

Shopping for A Diamond?

Spring is a time of courtship and engagements and dazzling friends and family with that tell-tale ring. Because this is a popular season for engagements, the Jewelry Industry Council has offered some practical suggestions on purchasing a diamond.

Care should be exercised in selecting this most romantic of gifts and the aid of a reliable jeweler should be obtained. He can offer expert advice and help by explaining the qualities that determine the value of a diamond and can also assist in choosing the most flattering setting in any price bracket.

The diamond solitaire is still the favorite choice for an engagement ring, with the brilliant cut leading in popularity. Other cuts include the marquise, pear, emerald, square and oval. Whatever its cut,the solitaire need not be a large stone in order to have brilliance and beauty.

The Council lists what it calls the 4 C's . . . color, clarity, cut and carat . . . as the important factors in selecting a diamond.

"Color" in a diamond is a delicate distinction; a faint shade or tone can make a world of difference. Diamonds have been found in varying colors, from colorless white to deep yellow, brown,, blue and even black. The finest commercial diamonds resemble a crystal clear drop of water.

"Clarity" describes a diamond's freedom from imperfections such as spots of carbon,, internal cracks or tiny bubbles. Nothing in nature is perfect and the diamond is, after all, a product of nature.

The smaller the flaws in a diamond, and the fewer there are, however, the greater the value. For commercial purposes a diamond which shows no flaws to an expert eye under a 10 power jeweler's magnifying glass may be advertised legally as "perfect" or "flawless."

"Cut" refers to the shape of the diamond and the process by which it is changed from the rough to the faceted stone. Until the stone is cut, its value is but potential. Regardless of how clear or large a diamond may be, it has very little beauty until it is cut and polished. In fact, the full measure of its fire and brilliance can be achieved only by the proper cutting.

"Carat" is the accepted standard of weight for diamonds. It is divided into 100 points; thus, when a girl says her diamond is one quarter carat she means 25 points.

Because there are more small diamonds than large ones in nature, you will find that a two carat diamond may cost three times as much as a one carat stone which is otherwise equal in all respects.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fernando Veas, a Spanish flamenco singer, says that he opened a New York restaurant to have a place to sing regularly.

So far, the only music comes from records, Veas, who has perfomed at Carnegie Hall, is too busy cooking dinners six days a week to do much warbling.

When he isn't cooking, he and David Vangen, remodel an adjoining luncheonette to double the 40-person capacity of The Good Table. Vangen also serves as waiter and wine buyer for the wine cellar, which specializes in Spanish sherries and domestic and imported table wines.

In an interview Veas, who is from Barcelona, said that his mother taughter him to cook and as waiter and wine buyer for the Spanish army developed his ability as food purchasing agent.

His menu seldom includes more than 8 to 10 entrees, most of which are his own invention or adaptations. Among them are chicken a la mustard, in mustard-flavored cream sauce; beef a la Andaluza—beefsteaks with ham stuffing; and French cannelloni—thin pancakes with liver pate and onion filling, cream sauce and parmesan cheese topping.

When the menu includes grilled steak — one of Veas' few concessions to American eating habits—it usually is served with Spanish-type tomato-wine sauce. His Spanish specialties also inude the cold tomato soup called gazpacho and a dessert called flan — which is rich egg custard.

Veas said that the most popular entree by far is neither Spanish nor American — but which each diner cooks to his own taste by dipping cubes of boneless beefsteak into hot fat in a small pot on the table. Three of the five sauces served with it are the chef's own — vinaigrette, combining oil, vinegar and seasonings, a creamy tarragon sauce and a peppery cheese and olive oil sauce.

Furs Adopt Casual Look

What with tweed going to the opera and denim dining by candlelight, it's only natural that furs should undergo a change of pace this season.

Gone are the days when furs were obvious symbols of extravagance — today they are able to go more places with less formality than ever before, rivaling the infinite variety of cloth coats for dawn to dark, urban to suburban wearability. Today's furs are young, vital, and versatile while still retaining an aura of opulence.

Noteworthy among the new furs are soft, supple Persian lambs in natural pales, jet blacks and new color mutations, and sleek, ebony Persian broadtail lamb with its polished, satiny surface.

Because Persian lamb has not been used extensively in the past, when furs were designed to look lavish, it is emerging as an important fur now that restraint is the prime factor. It lends itself readily to chic understatement, the essence of fashion's "mood raffine."

Leading designers are capitalizing on the versatility of Persian lamb to suggest more uses for furs than ever before, from the exquisite little jacket for opening nights to the casual daytime coat.

A wardrobe of Persian lamb could conceivably cover every activity in a busy day, starting with a black go-coat, switching to a natural grey greatcoat for luncheon and shopping. A cocktail date might call for a fingertip length, double-breasted brown jacket, followed with a jet black sheath coat for dinner and the theatre. Or, if entertaining at home, an overblouse of garnet red Persian with smoky black undertones would look great worn with velvet pants.

The softness and fabric - like maneuverability of Persian lamb takes on even more significance in chapeaux. Cloches, fedoras, and flattering off-the-face shapes are deftly delineated in Persian without bulkiness.

With such versatility, small wonder that designers are using more and more of this lovely, elegant fur for new spring fashions.

Linda Bird

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Orlando acquired its own Linda Bird recently when Miss Linda Connell became the bride of Douglas Bird. The bride works in Pen Gaines' Florida Motel Association offices. The groom is a former member of the University of Florida freshman football squad. He withdrew from school there with plans to enroll in Lee College at Cleveland, Tenn., a Church of God seminary.

SHADES OF D'ARTAGNAN — For adventurous ladies bent on conquest is a swashbuckling brimmed hat of straw that frames the face, goes beautifully from spring into summer. The hat can be crushed and still emerge triumphant.

Pearls Are So Perfect!

Pearls have been a sign of elegance since they were first worn by the empresses of China four thousand years ago and this spring they'll be adding their incomparable luster to the latest fashions once again.

Nothing quite matches the beauty of pearls from the ocean . . . unless it's the beauty of exquisite simulated pearls in Vendome's new spring collection!

Newer and very close to the oyster's creation in perfection., these fine imitation pearls, like the real thing, can be recognized by their mating of size and shape and by their uniformly rich luster. They range in price from $5 to $30, depending on the length, number of strands and quality of clasp.

To achieve their flawless beauty, each of these pearls is started with a carefully selected glass bead of perfect shape. The bead is then individually hand-dipped 16 times in a nacreous substance, which imitates the layers generated by an oyster. The simulated pearl is then carefully hand - polished until its radiance reflects the delicacy of feminine skin tones. Only such repeated individul treatment can produce pearls that simulate and retain the ocean-depth quality of the real thing. Tiny, invisible French knots between each pearl complete the expensive, pains-taking hand operation involved in creating the circle of lustrous beauty that will ultimately grace milady's neck.

Dolls on Display

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. C. R. Lynn has been playing dolls for more than 30 years — and her 300-doll-populated scenes are a popular attraction at the Jacksonville Public Library.

Dolls are still favorite gifts from her relatives on her birthday or other special occasions. She has used these in scenes representing nursery rhymes, fairy tales, holidays, poems, songs and fables.

Her hobby sometimes places her in amusing situations. Once she overheard an amateur psychologist comment on the collection, "Here is a perfect example of thwarted motherhood. How this woman must have longed for live children on whom she could lavish her love and care."

This has become a long-standing joke between Mrs. Lynn and her three children as well as her four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Satin Jackets Lift Jaded Party Clothes

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Satin jackets in white, pastels or bright colors with dark linings are practical, comfortable and easy to make. And they can make almost any dress in your wardrobe look different.

You need, for average figure, 1½ yards of 50-inch slipper satin, plus the same amount of taffeta or china silk for the lining.

To make a pattern take a piece of wrapping or tissue paper 25 inches wide and 1½ yards long. Pencil your pattern as follows:

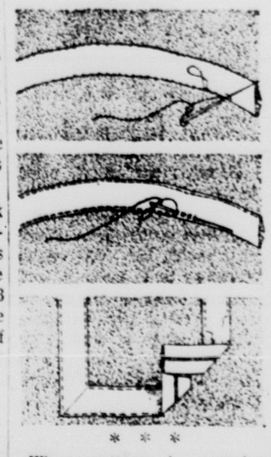
M is 1 inch to right of L on line L-J. Cut A to M, M around curve to K. Cut F to H, H to G.

* * *



* * *

When pattern is complete, prepare the fabric.

There is enough fabric for turn back cuffs, if you desire them.

Cut lining same as coat, piecing lining sleeves, also. Join piecing in ⅜s inch seams. Press seams open. Baste shoulder and underarm seams of jacket and try jacket on. Make sure that sleeves are correct in length. You may want to fit shoulder seam a little, taking out some from the shoulder down, or you may want a little less fullness under the arm. After the fitting, rebaste to correct the lines.

Make changes in lining to match outside. Then stitch jacket and lining as basted and press all seams open. Clip seam every ½ inch on underarm curves. Turn coat wrong side out and slip lining over it. Right sides of both together. Stitch all around except neck. This allows you to turn jacket right side out. Press all edges.

Shape the neck to a becoming line for you. Turn raw edges in and slip stich together.

If desired, bias bands, braid, ribbon, or sequins may be put on front and around neck.

If you wish to use true bias bands of contrasting color, apply them in any of the three ways shown., by machine, by hand using shortest possible running stitch, or with a very small whipping or slip stitch.

Add Secret Mixture to Pot Roast

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Ever hear of a plain pot roast keeping an exciting secret? Well, read on and then invite company to dinner.

The secret is a mixture of ham, salami, green pepper and egg stuffed into a pocket through the center of the roast. Adds surprisingly good flavor.

Because even heat distribution throughout pan and lid is particularly important for a successful pot roast, use your thickest aluminum Dutch oven or sauce pot for this recipe. This unusual pot roast will turn an ordinary meal into a gala event.

Hidden Treasure Pot Roast
(6 servings)

- 3 lb. eye round beef roast
- ¼ cup chopped ham
- ½ cup chopped hard salami
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- 1 hard cooked egg, chopped
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 2 bay leaves
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 cup water
- 3 tablespoons instant flour

Have butcher make a pocket through the center of roast. Mix ham, salami, green pepper and egg and fill pocket with mixture. Tie or skewer ends.

Brown roast on all sides in large aluminum Dutch oven. Drain off fat. Add remaining ingredients except flour. Cover an cook over low heat about 3 hours or until meat is tender Remove roast to platter. Measure liquid in pan and add additional water to make 2 cups. Stir in flour. Bring to a boil. Slice pot roast and serve with gravy.

Steamed Salmon Loaves
Scalloped Potatoes Grean Peas
Mushroom Pickle Rolls
Fresh Fruit Nuts in the Shell

Mushroom Pickle

- 2 cans (each 6 ounces) whole mushrooms
- 2 cans (each 6 ounces) sliced mushrooms
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup cider vinegar
- 2 teaspoons mixed pickling spice tied in cheesecloth bag
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion

Drain all the mushrooms, reserving 1 cup liquid and pouring it into a 1-quart saucepan. To the measured liquid add the salt, sugar, vinegar, mixed spice and onion; stir over low heat until sugar dissolves; bring to a boil; pour over mushrooms. Cover and chill for several hours or overnight. Remove spice bag. Serve mushrooms drained. Any leftover may be kept refrigerated in marinade for about a week.

Perk Up Your Cold Weather Meals

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Here's another hearty beef stew recipe to put zest in cold weather meals. This one is a little different. A cup of cranberry orange relish is added to give it a mild but welcome tang.

Serve this lusty stew in a chafing dish with large platters of buttered white and rye bread, outsize cookies, a cheese tray and either hot mulled cider or hot cranberry grog.

Hearty Beef Stew
(Makes 8 to 10 servings)

- ¼ cup shortening
- 4 pounds beef chuck, cubed
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 2 quarts water
- 2 packages (1⅞ ounces) beef stew seasoning
- 1 cup cranberry-orange relish
- 8 to 10 peeled small potatoes
- 8 to 10 scraped small carrots
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ cup cold water

Heat shortening in a heavy kettle. Add beef and cook, stirring frequently, until beef is browned. Add onions and saute until tender. Add 2 quarts water, stew seasoning and cranberry-orange relish.

Cover and simmer for 2 to 2½ hours, or until beef is tender. Add potatoes and carrots. Cook until vegetables are tender. Add peas and bring to a boil.

Meanwhile, combine flour and ½ cup water; blend well. Stir into stew mixture and cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring constantly.

Brighten Winter Dessert Treats

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Brighten up winter meals with the colors of summer. With blueberry pie, for example. Use a canned blueberry pie filling as base.

To give this all-time-favorite a party look, garnish it with smoothed sweetened whipped cream. Then you'll see how foolish it is to wait for summer's fresh blueberries. Enjoy yourself today.

Blueberry Cheese Pie

- 1 pkg. piecrust mix
- ½ cup shredded coconut
- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 can (1 pound, 6 ounces) blueberry pie filling

Prepare piecrust according to directions on package, adding coconut to the mix before adding liquid. Use pastry to line the bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie pan, fluting a high edge. Mash cream cheese until soft. Stir in sugar, eggs, vanilla, lemon juice, flour and milk. Beat until mixture is very smooth. Pour mixture into pastry lined pie pan. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 35 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown and filling is set. Cool on a rack and then top with blueberry pie filling. Chill until ready to serve. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream.

Try Lobster Tails and Deviled Eggs

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Looking for a meatless main dish to serve guests? We've found one you'll welcome. Enjoyed it last night at a special dinner party which included some guests who abstain from meat on certain days during Lent. Everyone was happy. The combination of rock lobster tails and deviled eggs was served in small, attractive individual dishes.

South African Rock Lobster and Deviled Egg
(6 Servings)

- 6 (3 to 4 oz.) South African rock lobster tails
- 6 shelled hard-cooked eggs
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon minced onion
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups vegetable stock
- 2 tablespoons catsup

Drop South African rock lobster tails into boiling salted water. When water reboils, simmer 3 minutes. Drain, drench with cold water and cut away underside membrane. Remove meat carefully in one piece, cool and split in half lengthwise. Split eggs into lengthwise. Remove yolks and mash with fork until fine. Blend well with mustard, onion and mayonnaise.

Spoon mixture back into egg halves. Place 2 rock lobster halves and 2 stuffed eggs into individual baking dishes or ramekins. Melt butter. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in vegetable stock and catsup. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until smooth and thick. Spoon sauce over the rock lobster and egg halves.

Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for 10 minutes.

Spanish Touch

Leftover ham can be used to make the filling for this adaptation of Chef Fernando Veas' beef a la Andaluza.

Have 8 thin steaks cut from 3 pounds of lean top round steak. Place each between two sheets of waxed paper and flatten to ¼ inch thickness with meat mallet. Set aside.

Grind enough cooked ham to make 2 cups, tightly packed. Clear grinder with crusts from 1 slice of fresh white bread. Soak remainder of slice in ¼ cup of milk and mix well with ham and bread crust, along with 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon each of garlic powder and black pepper, salt to taste, 1½ teaspoons of rosemary, crumbled, and ½ teaspoon of oregano, crumbled. Add 1 large onion, finely minced and sauteed in 1 tablespoon of salad oil until limp but not brown.

Divide filling evenly among steaks, using about 2 tablespoons each, and fold steaks over to conceal filling. Saute each lightly on both sides over medium heat in lightly oiled skillet. Do not overcrowd skillet. Cool. Beat 1 egg lightly, and dip each steak into it, then into dried bread crumbs, using total of about ¼ cup of cumbs. Refrigerate at least 30 minutes to set coating.

What's New

Utility hampers pretty enough to be truly decorative are a new idea. Some feature early American prints on vinyl, foam-cushioned upholstered lids with antiqued brass-finished hardware.

A businessman or his secretary can keep in trim at the office by using a compact gym bar that can fit an office doorway. The gym bar is easily stored and fits door widths from 22 to 34 inches.

(Snyder Mfg., Co., Philadelphia, Pa.).

A new gimmick in oven design helps broil meats in half the time with less spatter. The new system employs two heating elements located near the top of the oven. The meat is placed on a rack between the elements and a broiler pan is used at the bottom of the oven to catch the fat drippings.

Household Hints

Driving tacks or small nails into hard to reach places is easier if they are pushed through a piece of paper. Then you just hold the paper to keep the nail in place.

New excuse for sunglasses: they protect againts glare when you hang white wash up to dry in the sun.

The best time to plan meals is when you are hungry. Your appetite helps in the decision-making.

Chicken Paprika Noodles
Asparagus Salad Rolls
Sweet Butterscotch Squares

Sweet Butterscotch Squares

- 2 large eggs
- 1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- ¾ cup unsifted flour
- ¾ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup walnuts, broken small

In the top of a double boiler, beat the eggs slightly. Add brown sugar and butter; over rapidly boiling water, stir constantly until just hot — about 5 minutes; remove from heat. Add flour and baking powder stir until blended. Stir in vanilla and walnuts. Turn into a greased and floured 8 by 8 by 2 inch square cake pan. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for 20 to 25 minutes. While still warm, cut into squares and remove with spatula; serve with unsweetened whipped cream.

Along with a set of graduated measuring cups for dry ingredients, it's a good idea to have a measuring cup for liquids in you kitchen. The latter will have the 1-cup marking below the rim to avoid spilling in measuring liquids.

New Dessert Idea

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

What's for dessert tonight? Why not try fruit cup (oranges, canned cherries, grapefruit and bananas) or a bowl of fresh fruit — either of these to be served with old - fashioned cookies with walnuts and pineapple. Like the idea? Then here is a particularly good cookie recipe.

Old-Fashioned Sugar Cookies
(4 dozen cookies)

- 1 cup shortening
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 4 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup chopped walnuts (optional)
- 1 cup drained crushed pineapple (8¾-oz. can)

Cream shortening, sugar and egg yolks in a large bowl of electric mixer until light and fluffy. Sift together flour, salt and soda. Add lemon juice to evaporated milk. Add dry and liquid ingredients alternately to creamed mixture. Beat in vanilla. Stir in nuts and pineapple, if desired. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into batter. Drop batter by rounded tablespoons 3 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Flatten each cookie with a little sugar lightly spiced with cinnamon or nutmeg, if desired. Bake in preheated moderate (375 degrees) for 10 to 12 minutes or until slightly brown rimmed.

Two 'Tested' Dishes

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Recently we've been experimenting at home with some of the new ready-mixes for sauces, gravies, condiments and spices. Our critical taste panel consisted of our son and three of his friends home from college.

Here are two dishes they voted for, saying they are going to urge the dietitian in charge of their college dining hall to add them to her menus.

One-Pan Spaghetti
(4 servings)

- 1 envelope spaghetti sauce mix
- 1 can (6-ounces) tomato paste
- 6 cups water
- 2 tablespoons salad oil or butter
- ½ pound spaghetti

Combine sauce mix and tomato paste in large saucepan. Add water and oil or butter; bring to a boil. Break spaghetti into small pieces, if desired, or leave whole; add to boiling sauce. Cook uncovered, 10 minutes or until spaghetti is tender, stirring frequently. For spaghetti with meat, brown ½ to 1 pound ground beef in oil or butter; stir sauce mix into meat and follow directions above. If preferred, use canned hamburgers (broken into small pieces) in place of fresh meat.

Marina Shrimp—Creole
(4 servings)

- 2 pounds raw shrimp (1 pound if shelled and deveined)
- 2 cups water
- 2 tablespoons sweet pepper flakes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1-3 cups packaged precooked rice
- 1 can (6 ounce) tomato paste
- 1 envelope spaghetti sauce mix
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup sherry or sauterne (optional) or water

Shell and devein shrimp. Bring water ,pepper flakes and salt to a boil; add shrimp and bring to a boil again. Stir in rice, tomato paste, sauce mix, butter and sherry or water. Simmer, covered, 10 minutes, stirring frequently.

All-In-One Breakfast

Gil Gallagher's Fast Breakfast

- ¾ cup milk
- 1 large or 2 small scoops vanilla ice cream
- 1 medium banana, sliced
- 3 tablespoons wheat germ
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 egg

Turn all the ingredients into an electric blender. Blend until combined. As you drink this, stir occasionally to keep the wheat germ in suspension. Makes 1 serving.

Citizens Economic Study Group Named for County

A Citizens Committee on Economic Opportunity has been appointed by the El Paso County Board of Commissioners.

This committee of 15 was selected by the board after various persons had been recomtives of the county, city, politmended to it by representaical parties and other sources.

Committee members were selected or a "strictly non-partisan basis," according to County Commissioner Charles Bickley. The members are as follows:

Roy J. Wasson, former superintendent, School District 11; Verne Collier Jr., 2629 Holiday Ln.; Col. T. R. Malone Jr., retired service man, 9 Sierra Vista Dr.; Attorney John J. Murphy, 1708 N. Tejon St.; John W. Sawyer, Chamber of Commerce president; Harold M. Whitney, 1912 S. Franklin St.; Louis P. Martinez, 3202 Gladiola Dr.; Rev. David C. Coleman Jr., Payne Chapel AME Church.

Mrs. Donald Higginbotham, Overlook Rd.; Mrs. Charley Adams, 2317 Afton W.; B. Howard Baker, 2605 N. Circle Dr.; Bob Cajka, 1010 E. Boulder St.; Mrs. Douglas Freed, Manitou Springs; and Mrs. L. T. Kircher, 6 Leslie Dr.

Bickley said the commission would appoint one more member to the committee, someone from the out-county area. Bickley will be liaison member between the commission and the committee and will attend many of the future meetings.

The commission named Whitney as interim chairman of the committee, which is expected to meet soon and set up its organization and operation.

Bickley said the group was established as a study committee and clearing house for any proposals to provide additional "economic opportunities" to those at the lower end of the socio-economic scale, and to serve as a clearing house for proposals for community attention and action.

Prior to the selection of the committee, several meetings were held by county and city representatives of various kinds and officials of the Community Planning and Research Council, of which Daniel A. Belknap is executive director.

The Community Planning and Research Council will serve as consultants for the committee, do some of the staff work and work with the county commissioners.

Individuals, agencies and organizations may submit to the committee in writing problems they feel exist.

The Citizens Committee on economic Opportunity will study and screen these statements and invite selected persons to meet with the committee to discuss those requiring or proposals deemed requiring attention.

The committee itself will not be responsible for initiating studies, gathering facts or making proposals. These tasks will be left to community individuals, agencies and organizations. The committee will function as a screening and recommending body.

"The responsibility for documenting the problem rests with those who present the problem to the committee," Bickley said.

Thosewishing to contact the committee by mail may write to —Citizens Committee on Economic Opportunity, County Commissioners Office, Courthouse Annex, 27 E. Vermijo Ave.

Housing Project Slated for Florence Area

A new housing program for Florence was announced last week by the Florence Land and Development Corp. and by M. K. (Red) Shelman long-time Pueblo home builder and general contractor.

At least four new homes are expected to be constructed in the Robin sub - division in east Florence this year, Shelman announced.

The first home construction will get started within the next four weeks although the Pueblo builder announced that he will open his office on Oriole Ave. at the building site within the next 10 days.

The first two homes to be erected have already been bought by local residents, while two speculation houses will be built for potential customers, Stilman noted.

The homes will be built on Oriole St., which was opened up last year by the city of Florence and now extends from Third to Fifth Streets.

Cost of the new Shelman Homes will range from $14,500 to $17,500, although Shelman noted that he will be able to build any size home in any price range depending upon the buyer.

M. L. Shelman, the 18-year-old son of M. K. Shelman, will be the project engineer on the job and will have charge of the actual construction. Shelman stated that he is primarily engaged in the buying of materials and the financing of the homes.

Shelman explained that the homes he plans to build in Florence will not be "project" homes. Each home will be distinctive in style and design and he urged local residents interested in new homes to plan their own needs with those of the firm's established design to give new home owner a dwelling of his choice.

The new homes in Florence will have FHA, VA and conventional loan financing, Shelman stated.

Local labor and local materials will be used to construct the homes. Both lumber yards have agreed to meet Pueblo building prices, he stated, and local sub - contractors will be used whenever and wherever possible.

Indicating plans to develop homes in the Robin sub - division with the cooperation of the Florence Land and Development Corp. and local real estate agents, Shelman stated that the housing program would be carried on over a five to seven year period at a minimum.

Most homes planned for the new addition will be three and four bedroom dwellings with one and two levels.

Shelman's interest in development here will be the first outside building done in Florence since Dick Rhue of Colorado Springs erected homes on Oriole St. several years ago.

Ed Richardson To Head Local CBCI Chapter

Ed Richardson, local businessman, has been elected chairman of the Colorado Springs Chapter of the Christian Business Men's Committee International.

Highlight of the coming term will be the Billy Graham campaign culminating with meetings in Bear's Stadium in late August and early September here in the Pikes Peak Region.

The group, which Richardson helped organize here in 1950, was organized to attempt to "make more evident that Christ in business is a very profitable proposition."

Richardson is a past commander of the American Legion Post, was a vice - chairman of the National UnAmerican Activities Cammittee and a past president of SWAP (Salesmen With A Purpose) Club. He also has been active in Community Chest Drives and on USO and Salvation Army boards.

AGGRESSION

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian Foreign Secretary Paul Martin says the Communist guerrilla movement in South Viet Nam "may not be aggression in the classical sense of the term but it is aggression all the same."

APPEARING today only in concert at the Colorado Springs' City Auditorium is Lawrence Welk, well-known accordion Virtuoso of Lawrence Welk Show fame. Time is 2:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door. His appearance is sponsored by the Colorado School of Accordion, Inc. (adv.)

Cigarettes Said Cause Of Fire Here Friday

Cigarettes in a basket of trash were reported by the Fire Department as probably cause of a fire at the residence of Gordon Moe, 317 E. Monument St., Friday night. The Fire Department received the alarm at 10:51 p.m. and Companies 1, 2 and the aerial responded. A hole was burned in the floor and some of the floor was opened in a search for possible hidden fire.

Firemen of Company 1, on a 10:38 a.m. alarm Saturday put out a fire in a truck on Nevada Ave., in front of the City Hall. Driver of the truck was Louis Richards.

Wyoming's Robinson Sparks West Victory

By BILL BAXTER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Wyoming guard Flynn Robinson came off the bench Saturday to trigger a second-half West rally and lead his team to an 87-74 victory in the East-West College All-Star basketball game.

The East jumped to a 40-35 halftime lead behind Michigan's Bill Buntin and North Carolina's Billy Cunningham, and built a 56-45 margin the first six minutes of the second period.

Then Robinson replaced Oregon State's Jim Jarvis and the West began to move. Robinson and All-America Gail Goodrich of UCLA carried most of the load as the West rolled up 17 straight points. Goodrich and Robinson also hit back-to-back goals to ice the game at 81-66 with three-minutes remaining.

Goodrich and Robinson led all scorers with 20 points each. Goodrich was named the game's most valuable player. Billy Cunningham, who won the sportsmanship trophy, led the East with 19.

The game developed exactly as West Coach Doggie Julian of Dartmouth and East Coach Joe Lapchick of St. John's had predicted.

"The East has the size," Julian had said, "but I think our backcourt will compensate for that."

Goodrich and Robinson also manhandled the East on defense as Cunningham and Evansville's Jerry Sloan were playing guard for the first time in a college game.

The East controlled the backboards, out-rebounding the victors 45-40. All-America Fred Hetzel of Davidson played only about 15 minutes but led all rebounders with 12.

DU Cinches Fifth Ski Title

By JACK HEWINS
Associated Press Sports Writer

CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN, Wash. (AP) — Leaping into a snow-laden wind, Erik Jansen won the jumping event Saturday afternoon to clinch for Denver University its fifth consecutive National Collegiate Athletic Association ski championship.

Jansen edged out Fritjof Prydz of Utah by three-tenths of a point in what amounted to a tie-breaker. The two came into the 1965 meet as co-champions after deadlocking in points for last year's crown.

Jumping, the final event of the three-day meet, was competed in adverse weather after Bill Marolt of Colorado had won the downhill race in bright morning sunshine.

Marolt covered the 1.7-mile course, with its 2,500-foot vertical drop, in 2:11.9, beating out Ken Phelps of Western State by more than a second. Third and fourth places went to Denver sophomores Jon Overland and Rick Chaffee.

Utah forged into second place in the final team standings when Mats Jenssen placed third in jumps and Bjorn Loken took sixth. Denver's Steiner Fjeldheim was fourth and John Ostbo of Idaho fifth.

Jay Martin of Wyoming, who flew here from competition in Europe and was favored to win the jumping title, lost his balance on take off on his third jump and crashed head first, but walked away from the mishap. A poor first leap of 155 feet and a second effort of 163 put him 21st in the standings.

Prydz had the best leap of the afternoon when he soared 176 feet off the 55-meter hill on his first effort. Jansen's best was 172 but he won on points, 219.8 to 219.5.

Miracle of D-Town

With men in orbit around the world, pictures sent back from the moon, and conveniences surrounding us everyday that only a few years ago seemed but fantasy, modern "miracles are almost commonplace.

But one that has startled the world of sports over the past month has been the resurrection of the all-but-buried Broncos in nearby Denver.

* * *

Buffs' Downfall

* * *

Expected to settle in any of a half-dozen towns before next fall, suddenly a ticket drive has put them right back in business — and at the same stand where they have become so proficient in past years at losing in a variety of ways.

Unlike the Mets of New York, who draw 'em to the park for such reasons as escapism from the seriousness of everyday life or for because it's refreshing for would-be athletes to see that the "pros" can bobble the ball, too, the Broncos haven't sold themselves as a comedy act.

This may have seemed like the only approach to some who have watched the Broncs bungle in ways that were almost unimaginable. But, believe it or not, they're still trying to be serious with their act.

How do you figure a team that's won only four of 28 in league for the past two seasons sneaking awfully close to that goal of 20,000 season tickets at this time of year?

It has to be a combination of factors.

Added to the roster—if signed—are a couple of guys who have made American Football League headlines consistently over the past few years. Cookie Gilchrist, the huge 250-pound fullback who has bounced around from club to club in both the U. S. and Canada like a giant bad-medicine ball, was traded for Billy Joe, of equal size but with another controversial attitude and poor puppies wrapped in football cleats. Abner Haynes has sideslipped many a tackler, but there's a question as to his future.

But even with names like these you don't suddenly fill a stadium — especially one with as many odd angles for viewing as Bears Stadium.

Aslo to be considered is the competition . . . and Im not talking about the other teams in the AFL for they are actually working partners when it comes to providing an attraction. Rather, this could be a reflection on the interest in other teams in the immediate area.

Since the nearest draw from the pros is Kansas City, the major competition for the football dollar is with the college set. The Air Force Academy undoubtedly will be looking at a few more empty seats after the school's cheating scandel stripped the Falcons of about half its established stars.

And this week the mails delivered a pitch from Colorado University for tickets. The Buffs may be on the way back after their own dark day directed by Sonny Grandelius and Co., but they too have won only a pair in each of the last two falls and even the "loyal" alumni want a winner before investing in a five-buck seat.

Colorado State U. is another which has yet to tip the victory scale in the last few years, and besides the Aggies barely have enough reservations in their ancient grandstand to hold their own students.

The major reason, however, must be the emotional which has swept through D-Town. Suddenly, holding a Bronco ticket is "the thing to do."

As chronicled quite well in the latest issue of Sports Illustrated, which for a change devoted a couple of pages to its name's sake rather than the usual recipes, bridge tips and beach fashions, it all started when the hero's mantle was placed upon a pair of business-minded brothers who actually had other motives than the immediate success of pro football.

There are a few about this scene of bouncing balls that are in it strictly for kicks and fully expect little profit. But those with the bank books in Denver weren't numbered with them.

So it was no great surprise when one contingent — headed by Cal Kunz and buddies — decided to cash in. It was a slight revelation that there were other groups around the country willing to risk up to the vicinity of six million smackers for this congregation of habitual losers. And few, if any, expected the benefolent deeds of brothers Gerry and Al Phipps in bucking the deal and offering to buy up the majority interests.

That's what happend, though, and the now Phipps-run Broncos seem to have fallen into a cozy caper. Not only do they have an assured ticket sale of over their goal of 20 thousand seats for every home game, but also next year a new teevee pact will start kicking in nearly a million per season to the various AFAL clubs.

And Phipps admits that he was mainly interested in the "image" of his home town — although a Broncos fan himself. In the construction business, the new benefactor of the league's perpetual patsy says it's hard to attract industry to a community that can't support any team.

Already by the wayside have gone three hockey teams, a couple of basketball franchises, a college game up football, and several other individual ventures in sports have gone broke in the state's main concentration of population.

Even the Phipps brothers couldn't have predicted the surprising surge of support, though. And in all likelihood, they probably didn't expect to be able to hold the Broncs in Denver too much longer.

Now, however, they could defintely weather the crisis. The tv money certainly won't do any harm. And it's a wonderous thing what a little backing will do for any team — even a professional team.

This could be enough to tip the scales their way. The Broncos came close on several occasions in the past couple years, but didn't seem to have that last effort it takes to win. Quarterback is still very much a problem, but otherwise many experts on the subject have voiced the opinion that there is native ability on the squad to produce a winner.

They can't kid themselves. The Denver branch of the AFL will have to produce to hold the fandom that miraculously has been created for them. By far the majority to those volunteering their Sunday afternoons to the current cause are newcomers to Bears Stadium. There are still many of those who suffered through last season's mistake who have not renewed.

There may have been a slight bit of coercion in the drive. Not that anyone has had his arm twisted, but several "civic-minded" businesses have passed around sign-up slips to their employees. There's no threat included, but it's usually better to go along with such ventures with future opoinions and promotions in mind.

Some companies have even established a payroll deduction plan to make the ticket payments easier. One bank started it and others followed by offering an interest-free loan for purchase of season ducats.

Unfortunately, the majority of seats in the Broncos stadium are poor ones. In converting a baseball park to football, they naturally have more vantage points in the end zone than on the sides. Single game tickets may be hard to boost —unless the thing really catches fire, and then they'll watch from any angle.

They keep insisting they would like the same kind of following as Green Bay, Wis. That is, the guy on the street can claim a

Bullets Take Game Lead In Playoffs

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Bullets exploded for 77 points in the second half and crushed the St. Louis Hawks 131-99 in the National Basketball Association's Western Division playoffs Saturday night.

The Bullets, who lost to the Hawks by 24 points Friday night, took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five semifinals series.

As they have in the two previous games of the series, Baltimore's starters scored the bulk of the points, only this time they were given last quarter rest after clinching the victory.

Walt Bellamy and Don Ohl scored 23 points apiece for Baltimore, Kevin Loughery added 22, Bailey Howell 20 and Gus Johnson 19.

Johnson, who hit only one of 10 shots in the first half, sparked the runaway midway through the third quarter after sinking one of hhis colorful fast break dunkers. Johnson finished with 14 rebounds and three assists, although he made only five of 20 shots from the floor.

The Hawks, who finished eight games ahead of Baltimore in the Western Division, trailed all the way after the Bullets opened up a 42-36 advantage.

Baltimore led 74-67 with 3:30 remaining in the third quarter, and then spurted to a 90-73 lead by the end of the period.

Zelmo Beaty led St. Louis with 18 points. Bob Pettit, who was given a rocking chair denoting his upcoming retirement during halftime ceremonies made only 12 points, and playee-coach Richie Guerin was held to two points.

Ohl connected on 10 of 17 shots from his backcourt position, while Bellamy sank of nine of 16 while grabbing 18 rebounds.

The fourth game of the series will be played in Baltimore Tuesday night.

Miner Errors Boost Palmer 6-2 Victory

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

TRINIDAD — Palmer rode its own three hits and seven Trinidad errors to a 6-2 South Central League baseball victory Saturday, as the two teams opened the SCL season.

The Terrors now reside in first place, with Trinidad in last and the other five teams standing together with 0-0 league marks.

Palmer has gotten the most work of any Pikes Peak Region team. The Tribe whipped Englewood Monday, 7-0, in its own season kickoff. Palmer continues its non-league slate Tuesday at Air Academy High and Wednesday at Denver Jefferson. Saturday the Terrors travel to meet Pueblo South. Also on tap is an unscheduled makeup game with Pueblo Catholic.

Palmer's hitters, suffering from a lack of adequate hitting practice, could get only a double by Phil Johnson and a pair of singles but the Miners encouraged its visitors with seven errors, four in the first three innings as Palmer gained a 3-2 lead.

Trinidad shortstop Tom Lovell threw two easy outs over first base and third baseman Frank DeBaca added another wild throw as Palmer rallied from a first-inning 2-1 deficit. Then the Miners made several defensive changes, sending Lovell behind the plate where he committed a fourth error, a two-base boo-boo in the seventh.

Tom Medlicott, Palmer's senior lefthander, gained credit for his first win of the year, pitching three innings, giving up a first inning hit, walking two and striking out four. Junior righty Phil Johnson came on to finish out the game, no-hitting the punchless Miners and striking out seven.

Palmer jumped to a quick 1-0 lead as Ollie West went to second on Lovell's first wild peg and Johnson lobbed a wrong-field single down the right line to knock him in. Johnson was out trying to reach thirdon the play.

But Trinidad scared the Terrors immediately, taking advantage of Medlicott's early wildness. Rich Padilla led off with a walk and went to third on Dave Archuleta's single to right center. Trinidad's only hit of the day.

Padilla scored on a wild pitch and Archuleta came home on Jasper Butero's infield out. Trinidad could not get more than three men to the plate after that until the seventh inning, when Johnson gave up one of three walks.

Palmer struck back for the go-ahead runs as West walked and stole second, scoring when Johnson hit Lovell, who threw over Butero's head again at first. Larry Williams then screamed a liner at Lovell and Johnson scored when Lovell threw wild at home.

The wrapup came in the fourth as Jay McKee walked wit two outs, and stole second. West walked and Johnson found the hole in left center for a double, knocking in McKee. West scored on the same play as DeBaca missed the peg at third for one of his two errors.

Red Errors Aid Milwaukee Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee, aided by four errors and two balks, snapped Cincinnati's winning streak at five with a 6-5 victory Saturday in an exhibition baseball game.

The Braves scored two of their runs on balks by Sammy Ellis, who also gave up nine of Milwaukee's 10 hits. Cincinnati home runs by Vada Pinson and Don Pavletich couldn't overcome the Braves' lead.

An infield out drove in the deciding run in the seventh inning after Mike de la Hoz singled and went to third on a double by Lee Maye.

The Chicago White Sox handed the New York Yankees their ninth defeat in 11 games 2-0 behind the combined six-hit pitching of John Buzhardt and Bob Locker. Floyd Robinson and Ron Hansen singled across the White Sox' runs in the first inning against Bill Stafford.

Three other shutouts were posted around the citrus circuit. Houston defeated Philadelphia 2-0, the Astros' Claude Raymond pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth inning.

Jim Kaat, Dave Boswell and Jerry Fosnow allowed a total of four hits in Minnesota's 3-0 triumph over Kansas City while Ron Piche and Marcelino Lopez scattered eight hits in a 4-0 decision for the Los Angeles Angels over Cleveland.

Detroit nipped St. Louis 3-2 on Willie Horton's run-scoring single in the eighth inning, and the Los Angeles Dodgers erupted in the seventh inning for five runs and an 1-8 victory over the New York Mets. The first seven Dodgers reached base in the uprising.

The Chicago Cubs battered Juan Marichal for three home runs, whipping San Francisco 7-3. Ernie Banks, Glenn Beckert and Billy Williams each hit four-baggers.

Springs PF Takes First Lift Crown

The Colorado Springs Physical Fitness Club won the team championship Saturday in the first annual state Teenage Weightlifting Meet at the Physical Fitness club.

John Lynn of Aurora's Holiday Health Club was named the outstanding lifter. The 148-pounder lifted 940 pounds.

Art Buckley of the Colorado Springs Y won the 123-pound class with 515 pounds. Second and third respectively were Ricky and Randy Crain, both of the Physical Fitness Club.

Johnny Caligari was the only entry in the 132-pound class and lifted 705 pounds. Following Lynn at 148 were Matt Lukcig of Physical Fitness and Joe Rall of Canon City. Leroy Vigil of the Y won the 165-pound class with totals lifts of 870 pounds. Second was Alvie Gephart of Physical Fitness.

Team standings were PF 23, Y 15, Holiday 8 and Canon City 6.

Falcon Relay Team Breaks 2-Mile Mark

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Pole Vaulter George Canamare of Michigan shattered the meet and Western Michigan Fieldhouse records with a leap of 15 feet 4¾ inches in Western's sixth annual relays Saturday.

Three other records also fell —one to Air Force Academy. Western Michigan dominated the relay events.

Air Force, paying its annual cross-country visit here, ran the two-mile relay in 7:44.4, displacing WMU's 7:46 set in 1960.

Bob Lipscomb of Ohio Central State ran the 600 yards in a record 1:11.5, beating his own 1964 mark of 1:13.2. Pat Brogan of Northern Illinois ran the mile in 4:10.4, breaking the 4:19.3 set last year by Ted Seymour of Ohio Central.

Boxing Fans to Get Instant Scoring

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The announcement said there will be an electric scoreboard with the winner of each round being flashed to the closed circuit television audience during the doubleheader boxing show in New York March 30.

This is the plan for the Willie Pastrano-Jose Torres and Emile Griffith-Jose Stable card in Madison Square Garden.

But the scoring system is far from new.

It was tried here a quarter century ago, with results that were more hilarious than effective.

Suey Welch and Tom Gallery, later to become a tycoon in bouts at the Olympic Auditori- sports television, were staging bouts at the Olympic Auditorium.

They rigged a giant scoreboard in a far balcony and installed a telephone line from the ring to the board.

The names of the fighters have been forgotten, but Abe Roth was the referee.

And the man at the board in charge of posting the scores was Fats Hepburn, who had wandered out of the Akron - Cleveland area to join his old friend, Welch.

After about the third round Roth lifted the receiver and read his scores for Hepburn to post.

Suddenly there was a roar from the packed house. Roth glanced at the board and rushed back to the phone.

Gesticulating wildly with his free arm, he screamed:

You got em backwards."

But Fats had his own idea of who had won the round. You could see his jaw set. He shook his head sideways. No, he would not change the board.

Pros Beat 'Bushes' for QB

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't be surprised if pro football's next great quarterback comes, not from the campus of Alabama, Texas, Notre Dame or Southern California, but straight from the Bushes.

And the Bushes mean just what they used to in baseball — the minor professional leagues where young athletes toil at considerable plysical and financial hardship to learn the finer points of his trade.

There aren't many such leagues, but their recent appearance reflects the growing popularity of pro football. In the past a player who failed in the big league could go to Canada, where opportunities are limited. He could play sandlot football, where Johnny Unitas learned the hard way to become a star National League quarterback. Or he could quit the game.

The suggestion that a new field is opening up came from Jim Lee Howell, who was head coach of the New York Giants until he gave it up a few years ago for the less taxing job of supervising the club's talent search.

"These leagues could help us a lot," said Jim, "especially since they formed the Continental League. I understand they're going to pay more than they did in the United and Atlantic Coast Leagues so the boys can afford to go there.

"We have a boy coming up, Ron DiGravio, who played in the United League last season. He was a good quarterback at Purdue but he couldn't make it with us in camp. He wanted to play, so he went out there. Now he'll be back.

Howell wasn't exactly hinting that DiGravio could be a secret weapon in the Giant quarterback arsenal, somewhat undergunned since the retirement of aging Y.A. Tittle. But his emphasis on the value of experience was unmistakable.

The other Giant candidates are Gary Wood, No. 1 relief man for Tittle last fall; Henry Schichtle, who spent most of his time answering the phone on the bench, and Glynn Griffin, who was relegated to the nonplaying taxi squad. As a minor league regular, DiGravio probably got more game experience than all three.

"Pro football has advanced so far in recent years that only an exceptional rookie can make good right off the campus," Howell continued. "It isn't like when Sammy Baugh, who really was exceptional, came right up to be a star. Most of the boys are fighting for their lives in camp and we have to go with the players who show the most there."

In the past, most pro coaches have been reluctant to use untried players at the important quarterback spot. Even a good one such as Bobby Layne had a long stretch of bench warming before he gained enough experience to be a starter.

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers sold right-handed pitcher Bill Faul to the Chicago Cubs Saturday for an undisclosed amount of cash or a player to be named later.

Celtics, NBA's Old Man River, Await the Winner

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Boston, the National Basketball Association's Old Man River, is marking time before the playoff push aimed at an unprecedented seventh straight world championship.

The season began for the Celtics amid more problems than they had ever faced in their title reign. It ended with the team handing the NBA's strongest field the most decisive beating in league history.

Riding the crest of determination and defense, the Celtics shook off the loss of four pillars of their famed bench, advancing age among their veterans and a string of injuries.

The 80-game battle is over and "now to win the war," said General Manager-Coach Red Auerbach.

Typical of the team drive, Auerbach had his squad racing through a sharp drill 19 hours after closing the winningest season in NBA history with its 62nd victory. Boston doesn't swing into action in the Playoffs until April 4.

"We'll go on from here to win the championship again," said captain Bill Russell, a runaway selection as the league's Most Valuable Player by players and writers. "We want to win it more than ever in memory of Walter Brown."

Brown, the club founder and owner, died shortly before the season began.

"Anything can happen," said Auerbach who is nearing his 1,000th coaching triumph. "But we still have the championship. They still have to take it away from us.

"But look at the record and it comes off the best. It won more games when the league was supposed to be tougher.

The club has won nine straight division crowns and over the same span its only championship setback came when Russell was immobilized by a bad ankle.

Trainer Buddy Leroux best caught the "we, not me" philosophy when he said "In this locker rom there are no stars, just individuals who treat each other the way they deserve. After all, isn't that what life is supposed to be like?"

How did the Celtics overcome obstacles like the biggest personnel turnover in years when Ramsey, Jim Loscutoff, Clyde Lovellette and Johnny McCarthy left?

"Three things happened" explained Auerbach. "First, some of the veterans have come through with their best year, as if in answer to a challenge.

"Second, we've been fortunate in things like beating Cincinnati as regularly as we have (8-2), in shaking off major injuries, in the way our three rookies have come along.

"Third, we've showed a faculty for gaining momentum and maintaining which I don't think I've ever seen in a Celtics team to this degree before."

Boston won its first 11 games of the season. Not long after it put together an NBA-record tying 17 straight victories.

"Russell has had his best year in a long time," Auerbach continued. "I think he's a little stronger. The responsibility of his being captain has helped both the team and himself. He's taken hold very well."

"Sam Jones has had a great year. Havlicek had an outstanding season, too.

"K.C. Jones gave us his usual fine effort. Tom Sanders has had a good year and scored a little better.

"Larry Siegfried helped us.

"Tommy Heinsohn and Willie Naulls both have had it tough.

"Heinie injured his foot in early December. Naulls got a concussion in January.

"Relative to the draft I just don't know who we could get who could beat out our rookies Mel Counts, John Thompson and Ron Bonham. They've done what I expected of them.

Twin Double Pays $124,972 At Gulfstream

The winning numbers were 4-4-4-3 — $78.60 on Tim's Lady in the fifth, $16.40 and Chairmans Choice in the sixth, $30.40 on Dummy in the eighth and $38.40 on Ampose in the ninth, the Gulfstream Park Handicap.

The holder of the ticket did not collect his winnings. The pari-mutuel windows closed without anyone showing up. However, the winner can collect anytime the next year.

pro team as an "alma mater" when he has nothing else.

Fine and good. But it seems a bit strange that they apparently have no need of anyone outside the Denver area. At least this is the impression after several refusals to promote here, only little over an hour's drive away.

Even in a time of need, the Mile High City tries to ignore the rest of the state. This is just another case in point.

Falcons Split 2 With NM

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — New Mexico rallied for two runs in the seventh inning to win the second game of a baseball doubleheader against Air Force 10-9 Saturday after the Falcons had taken the opener 6-4 in extra innings.

Air Force pushed over two runs in the ninth inning of the first game to spoil a fine relief job by pitcher Stan Quintana. The game was scheduled for seven innings.

New Mexico won the second game when a pitch accidentally struck the bat of catcher Jimmy Pappan and rolled to third base. Dick Brothers scored easily from third base.

Sudden Death Returns

Anyone entering the musty corriders of Colorado College's athletic headquarters might understandably be struck with the idea that here is anideal training site for Civil Defense workers. For the layman, the first glance at the cluttered corners of the coaches' sanctuary or the rippled texture of the basketball floor would naturally suggest a disaster area.

Additional evidence is available for the curious if the complex CC filing system can be deciphered. Whetcher by design, or otherwise, information outlining recent adventures of Tiger varsity teams is not included among the otherwise descriptive wall decorations. This, it may be assumed, is a safeguard instituted by wary coaches with the hope of sparing wounded warriors additional suffering through the method of recall.

Won-loss records are occasionally discussed among staff intimates, but outsiders will have no trouble surmising that the subject is a painful one. If, however, they stumble onto actual figures, then suspicions that there have been recent bombings in the vicinity will be substantiated.

All this is pointed out because, until recently it was difficult to understand how CC coaches could penetrate this vision of gloom with smiles that would make Phylis Diller look like she needs dentures. The heason: the Tiger brain trust has been hoarding the knowledge that "Sudden Death" Sabol is returning. For excitement, that's comparable to having Governor Wallace lead a Freedom March!

For the information of hermits and other assorted recluses, "Sudden Death" ran Colorado College until six months ago. In a short period of time previously, he had lifted its athletic department into national prominence (although altering its on-the field successes very little,) left the school's publicity department as an outdated luxury, and generally revised campus procedures to conform to Sabol standards.

Thus it was a day of tragedy several months back when "Sudden Death", at the height of his effectiveness, was felled by an attack of hepatitis and forced to withdraw to the sidelines. With typical foresight, however, Sabol escaped the CC campus in time to preserve his remaining year of gridiron eligibility and he now plans to splash himself back onto the Colorado Springs scene in time to salvage the sagging Tiger fortunes next fall.

These past weeks "Sudden Death" has been absent but far from idle. For anyone wondering, hepatitis is definitely not a disease that damages the imagination, or confidence. In fact, since quietly returning Colorado College to the arms of its administrators, Steve has been wheeling about the universe as though he had an oversniff of analgesic balm.

While here Sabol first gained self-designed advertisements in CC football and hockey programs, proclaiming the fame of none other than "Sudden Death" Sabol. This gimmick prompted a few chuckles around the city but, more important, it soon flushed its originator onto the pages of numerous publications around the country. In between biographical essays and various other journalistic ventures, Sabol salvaged time to captain the Tiger football team, run a few hundred yards from scrimmage (both backwards and forwards) and establish some reknown as a long distance kicker —although it was rumored he kept the statistics.

Those facts appear appropriately amateurish compared to the latest adventures of "Sudden Death". Shortly after his disappearance locally, Art Burgland, hockey coach at Fountain Valley School, received a note which read:

"You have been placed on Steve Sabol's mailing list and thus will be able to follow his movie career." At the time Sabol was indeed in Florida, testing for a part in the "Black Horse Troop," a film starring William Holden, Steve McQueen, and Eva Maria Saint.

A later message from Sabol disclosed that stardom had been temporarily interrupted by problems with contact lenses which forced him to forgo the part of a Union scout in the flick. Undaunted, he revealed his agent was now working on contracts for some foreign films.

Shortly afterward, Sabol mysteriously appeared on the cover of "The Pacer", the official publication of the Philadelphia Athletic Club, amongst a wrestling champion and a Mr. America. Sabol was listed as a draft choice of the Los Angeles Rams.

There was a conflict of interest somewhere because in recent weeks "Sudden Death" has been circulating a packet of color pictures which show him signing a contract with the Cleveland Browns, "for a reported $375,000". As far as is known Jimmy Brown has kept his wits about him, but Sabol has also kept his name in the headlines, even though the pics are obviously a spoof.

Where all this leads is back to the CC campus where Sabol will resume his career as savior of the shell-shocked warriors of Jerry Carle.

Is he welcome? "Just his presence will mean at least two wins to us," Carle says emphatically.

It will also mean several thousand additional inches of newspaper lineage, the actual volumn depending, of course, on Sabols success in branching out to foreign language publications this fall.

The fact that Dutch Clark is scheduled to enter the state's Sports Hall of Fame next month as CC's most famous athletic son has obviously escaped Sabol's attention to date. When the news threads its way through his voluminous pile of fan mail, however, Hall of Fame officials had best start dusting off another plaque.

Otherwise, "Sudden Death" Sabol may take some of that Cleveland Brown bonus money —and buy Colorado!

Muriel Grossfeld, Musical To Head Fitness Clinic Here

It wasn't too many years ago that gymnastic meets in the United Sates were held in comparative privacy. Except for a handful of fans rattling around in an otherwise empty gymnasium, gymnasts performed for each other.

* * *

When television discovered gymnastics, things began to change. Sports fans found out they had been missing something interesting and exciting. Much, but not all, of the credit for the upsurge of spectator interest belongs to television which gave the sport wide exposure.

* * *

PHYSICALLY FIT—Muriel Grossfeld, Olympic gymnast, will be on the staff of the Western Physical Fitness Clinic, to be held in Colorado Springs and at the Air Force Academy, April 9-10.

A big share of the credit should also go to Muriel Grossfeld, a slender, blond performer whose teevee appearances made her a favorite of the fans. During nine years of competition, she won 18 National AAU gold medals, and in 1963 won the National Women's All Around Gymnastics championship.

At 16 she was a member of the 1956 U.S. Olympic team that competed in Rome. In 1960 and 1964 she was again named to the Olympic teams. For eight of the last nine years Muriel has been the National AAU floor exercise champion.

Although she's only 24, Muriel has retired from amateur competition and is devoting her time to promoting physical fitness as a teenage consultant and a member of the clinic staff of the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

Muriel will be in Colorado Springs, April 9 - 10, on the program of the Western Regional Physical Fitness Clinic, sponsored by the President's Council at Palmer High School and the Air Force Academy. She will demonstrate basic gymnastics for beginners.

Muriel is one of serveral outstanding authorities on physical fitness who are on the staff of the Western Regional clinic. Stan Musial, former baseball star and now a consultant to the President's Council on Physical Fitness, will be at all the clinic sessions.

The physical fitness clinic is primarily for teachers and coaches but is open to anyone interested in physical fitness. Registration will begin April 9 at 8 a.m. in the foyer of the Palmer High School auditorium. The Colorado Springs Public Schools and the Air Force Academy are hosts for the clinic.

Hall-Sharp Partnership Drives Chaparral to Sebring Triumph

By F. T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Writer

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Jim Hall, wealthy young Texas oilman who races sports cars for fun, brought his speedy Chaparral through heat and rain, through daylight and darkness to a surprise victory in the Sebring 12-hour endurance race Saturday.

Hall and Hap Sharp, his fellow business man in oil well drilling as well as driving, were in first or second place all the way in their pure white machine with unorthodox appearance and unprecedented automatic transmission.

They put an end to the reign of Ferrari, which could do no better than third place after winning here the past four years in a row.

There was no question the Hall-Sharp Chaparral was the fastest in the field of 67 cars which started. Its big Chevrolet engine, with a set of exhausts behind the driver looking like a pipe organ, turned it around the flat 5.2-mile airport course in record breaking laps. Only an hour-long deluge of rain prevented it from a full race record.

Sharp had the honor of driving the record lap in 2 minutes 59 seconds — a speed of 104.58 miles an hour. It erased the 3:06.2 and 100.539 m.p.h. record set by John Surtees in a Ferrari last year.

Yet Sebring veterans said the Chaparral was a fine sprint car but wouldn't hold up for 12 hours of pounding on the abrasive concrete and asphalt surface. They said its automatic transmission would put too much strain on the brakes at the sharp turns.

They were wrong. Hall was right when he said the automatic transmission, an innovation in road racing. Would free the driver's hands for better control and more speed in the corners.

A Ford GT prototype which won the Daytona continental race at 2,000 kilometers (1,243 miles) only a month ago, finished second.

It was six laps behind the winner and its veteran drivers, Ken Miles of Hollywood, Calif., and Bruce McLaren of New Zealand were nursing their machine through the hours after darkness fell.

Carroll Shelby, who entered the Ford GT and its twin which fell victim to mechanical trouble early in the race, ordered his drivers to avoid charging at the winner through the late hours.

"We'd rather finish second than not fcnish," Shelby said.

David Piper of London and Tony Maggs of Pretoria, South Africa, drove a green Ferrari to third place.

The fastest Ferrari to qualify retired with a broken clutch three hours before the finish. While it was running, Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico City and Graham Hill of London kept it in contention.

They were running second when mechanical failure sent their white machine behind the pit wall in a cloud of smoke.

The same fate befell Dan Gurney's Lotus Ford sports car earlier. It was the leader at noon when the race was only two hours old. Then the oil pump broke.

It was a day of extremes.

The afternoon heat was so intense that two drivers required hospital treatment for heat exhaustion.

A rain squall hit with unprecedented violence at 5:25 p.m. The deluge was so heavy that the lap speed dropped from better than 100 miles per hour to 28 m.p.h. for nearly an hour.

Phil Rodgers Takes Lead In Azalea Golf Tourney

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A slimmed-down Phil Rodgers, gradually shaking off a two-year slump, shot a four-under-par 68 Saturday to move into the 54-hole lead of the $28,750 Azalea Open Golf Tournament.

His total of 206 on rounds of 68-70-68 gave him a one-stroke lead over Dick Hart, the 36-hole pace-setter, who shot a par 72. Joe Campbell shot 69 to jump into third place at 208 going into Sunday's final round.

Rodgers, who took stock of himself last fall when he weighed 198 pounds and said "I didn't know whether I was walkingor rolling," went on a diet that lopped some 25 pounds off his 5-foot-8 frame in two months.

He hasn't won a tournament since the Texas Open 23 months ago,a few weeks before he lost a British Open playoff to Bob Charles.

Mara Named Pikes Peak Meadows Race Secretary

Vincent P. Mara Jr., well known eastern racing official, has been named racing secretary at Pikes Peak Meadows for its inaugural season by general manager John Sidenberg.

The 39 - year - old Mara has served as racing secretary at both Waterford Park and Wheeling Downs. He has also been a patrol judge and clerk of scales at Gulfstream Park and Green Mountain Park, and assistant racing secretary and clerk of scales at Beulah Park.

Mara comes from a long line of racing officials. His father, Vincent G. Mara, is an official in Florida and New Jersey, and an uncles, Walter Mara, is an official on the New York racing circuit.

Mara grew up in New York and Baltimore. He began his racing career rubbing horses for George D. Widener. He later worked for trainer Ralph West and with the Jacklyn Stable.

He worked for a time with the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau on the tattoo crew. In 1949 he was named identifier at Hialeah. His next official duty came as patrol judge at Wheeling.

Mara, who makes his home in North Miami Beach, Fla., is married and the father of two children.

At the same time, Sidenberg named long - time racing official Joseph Walter as presiding steward for the upcoming race meeting. Serving as clocker will be Fred Weingarth. Identifier will be Stanley Wasson in his first official post, and Robert Phillips will be starter. Mutuel manager will be John P. Mullen and Robert Miller will be public relations director.

Jockey room custodian will be Edward Duff. John Keiser has been named State Steward, and H. R. Christensen will serve as Chief State Steward.

Pikes Peak Meadows, located midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo, will open for its first meeting on May 7.

Ampose Upsets Gun Bow

By GENE PLOWDEN

MIAMI (AP) — Ampose scored a startling upset in the $111,900 Gulfstream Park Handicap Saturday with Tronado, another long shot, second and the favored Gun Bow third.

Babington, an entry with Tronado, was fourth followed by Hot Dust, Your Alibhai, Lt. Stevens and Candy Spots in that order.

Ampose ran the 1¼ mile in 2:04 2-5, slowest time for this feature since its first running in 1946 when Do-Reigh-Mi needed 2:07 3-5 to negotiate the distance.

The record is 1:59 4-5 set by Coaltown in 1949 and tied by Round Table in 1958.

Gun Bow, under Walter Blum and a top impost of 130 pounds, was favored by the crowd of 21,-316 at 60 cents on the dollar but the weight evidently was too much on the hot, sultry afternoon.

Candy Spots, second in the weight at 123 pounds with Willie Shoemaker riding, was second choice at 7-2. He was a close fourth for the first one-half mile but gave up in the stretch and was five lengths behind Lt. Stevens at the end.

Grimsley Voted Top Writer

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Will Grimsley of The Associated Press was named Saturday winner of the second annual Martini & Rossi Award for outstanding writing about a sportsman's sport.

Grimsley, cited for his tennis coverage, will receive the award at the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Awards program here April 6.

French Rugby Team Triumphs

PARIS (AP) — France scored an upset 22-13 victory over Wales Saturday and assured itself of second place in the final standings of the Five Nations rugby tournament.

Wales went into the match the winner of the tournament and its final standing was not affected.

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — A bulging, overweight Cassius Clay is plainly worried but he still can muster a joke about his May 25 title defense against Sonny Liston.

"For a man that's never been knocked down, that Sonny sure gets picked up a lot," the heavyweight boxing champion quipped after a brisk workout in the Fifth Street Gym.

"I guess you got to blame me for the last time that ugly bear was arrested," Cassius added, straining to stifle a mischievous smile. "He was riding along the street in Denver in an open car and somebody hollered 'Hey!' Sonny thought the man yelled 'Clay' and he took off like shot.

"The cops must have found that case of Bourbon I gave him for Christmas."

Clay, who prefers being called Muhammad Ali, is an inch taller and about 15 pounds heavier than when he took the crown from Liston here 13 months ago, but he's lost none of his braggadocio and puckish humor.

The champion, his massive copper body glistening with sweat, slumped in a big, comfortable arm chair in his four-by-six foot dressing room and rambled — sometimes seriously, sometimes facetiously — on a variety of subjects.

On his return fight with Liston —

"Sonny is hungry. He's lost his title. He's lost his friends. The whole world seems against him. He'll really be out to beat me. He will beat me, too, unless I'm at my best — so I got to be at my best."

On his own physical condition —

"I got to get some of this suet off. The other day when I weighed I weighed 229. I was 210 when I fought a year ago. I get big around the stomach and hips and it slows me down."

Cassius' trainer, Drew (Bodini) Brown, interrupted. "You're taller, too, champ. Last year I looked down at you, now you look down at me. You're still growing."

The champion's eyes brightened and he assumed the role of a fanatic when the subject got around to the Black Muslims.

"Elijah Muhammad is the Messenger of God," he said, referring to the American leader of the Islam movement. "He can see the future before it ever comes.

"Elijah has pictures of the men on Mars. He got them from Allah. He also told us about a big ship in the sky — a mile long and a mile wide. You can see it twice a week, like a star. God is on that ship, sending representatives down to earth. They get enough oxygen for a year and go back."

On the fierce racial battles, in Alabama and elsewhere, and moves to end segregation—

"We have 20 million Negroes, and not a factory among them. But voting's not the answer. You have to leave it to Allah to work it out. He has a plan. Some day all black people will be Muslims.

"As for me, I don't want to march and cause trouble. If somebody don't want me in their neighborhood, I don't want to be there. It makes me uncomfortable. If they don't want me to eat in their restaurants, I don't want to eat there. I don't like that Southern greasy food, anyhow."

Cassius suddenly became philosophical.

"You know what the word Negro means? It comes from the Spanish, meaning black. Okay, in that case, them gloves over there (pointing to some black boxing gloves) are Negro gloves. That coat you got on is Negro coat.

"There's a Greek word, too, 'Nekro.' It means 'dead.' Spiritually, morally, intellectually, economically, we' e dead, we're the lost sheep the Bible talks about, but it won't last forever."

Cassius was asked about his propensity for poetry, his occasional ranting cane-swinging demonstrations of "I am the greatest — am the pretiest" — an outworn act.

"A wise man can act a fool, but a fool cannot act a wise man," the champion replied. "But I'm changing my image."

Cassius said he was going around the country buying up chicken farms and horse ranches in remote places where he may retire when he's through fighting.

He said on a recent trip to California he had gone into the hills — old Indian country — and buried $10,000 under some old rocks.

"I didn't make a map, but I can go find it any time I want," he said."

If he is able to beat Liston again, Clay said he would like to fight Floyd Patterson — "I can outclinch and outbox him" — and then Ernie Terrell — "He fights like an old woman."

Then to a chicken farm, or his palace in Pakistan or his holy mountain in Ghana.

The champion said he probably would renew his contract next year with a group of Louisville business men who financed his start in professional boxing.

"They're a nice group of men," he added. "They're all millionaires. They don't bother me at all. They just like to come to the fights on free tickets and sit in the stands, flicking their cigars and saying: 'That's our champ.'

"I signed the first time for $10,000. It'll be different now. I'm more vauable. Let me see — I'd say I'm worth $500,000 now."

Bodini Brown, the trainer, said Cassius' strong points are the fastest feet and hands the boxing game has ever known — and a clean life.

"I knew when I first saw him he was going to be the champion," Bodini said. "It's like a Western film. A big guy with a mustache and a black suit comes in and you know right away he's not going to last the final reel. But this young clean-looking kid sidles up to the bar and says, 'Give me a sarsparilla.' You know he's going to clean up the town. That's Cassius — he's going to clean up the town."

FIGHTING FACE OF CLAY — Beaded perspiration covers the face of world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay as he trains for his May 25th fight with Sonny Liston. Amateur Feud Only in America

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A fight for control of amateur sports, such as that between the AAU and NCAA threatening the structure in the United States, couldn't happen anywhere else in the world.

In virtually all of the other powerful sports nations, including the Soviet Union, the government exercises firm control. Even where the government is not the boss, the various sports are run by federations.

In essence, the swimmers answer to the swimming federation, the boxers to the boxing federation, the track and field athletes to an athletic federation.

There is no one strong, enveloping body, as the Amateur Athletic Union in America, which conducts the whole show, a world-wide survey by The Associated Press disclosed.

The AAU is the governing and policy making body for almost all amateur sports in the United States, including track and field, swimming, gymnastics, fencing, basketball, etc.

This is mainly the reason for the bitter fight that has raged over the pass five years. The country's colleges, represented by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, contend that they provide a large part of the talent. They want an equal voice.

The Russians, America's biggest rivals for Olympic and other international sports honors, have no such problem.

There are separate autonomous groups in the Soviet Union—like track and field, swimming, etc.—but all are answerable to the government. A special department calls the shots. The athletes are subsidized and are virtual professionals.

In Britain, where the government follows a hands-off policy, all major sports have separate associations or federations. The British Amateur Athletic Association controls only track and field. There's an Amateur Boxing Assocation for boxers, an Amateur Swimming Federation for swimmers and on down the line. Each association names athletes for international events.

Separate federations govern sports in France also but in back of them all is the government, giving financial help and making the final major decisions. The French government spent some $70 million on sports in 1964.

There was considerable indignation in France, going right up to President Charles de Gaulle, when France failed to win a single gold medal at Rome in the 1960 Olympics.

The government said how many French athletes could go to Tokyo last year and dictated what sports should not be represented.

In Italy, the governing body is the Italian Olympic Committee —or CONI— a semi-official agency which leaves most of the direction to individual federations but steps in when there are problems or controversies.

Navy and Maryland will be football opponents through 1970.

Tibaldo Wins at Aqueduct

NEW YORK (AP) — Tibaldo, an in-and-out Argentine-bred performer, had on his racing shoes Saturday and easily won the $60,200 Westchester at Aqueduct as the strongly backed Cupid wound up fourth in the one-mile race.

Braulio Baega kept the 5-year-old son of Ttan-Elite close to the early paceset by Power of Destiny and turned him loose in the final one-quarter mile. He hit the finish line 5½ lengths in front of lightly regarded Quita Dude. Power of Destiny held on for third money, beaten one-half length for runner-up honors. Cupid was another two lengths back.

In winning $39,130 for J. R. H. Thouron, Tibaldo packed 116 pounds over the mile in 1:36 3-5 and paid $14.90, $8 and $5.40 to his backers in the crowd of 51,537.

Quita Dude, left alone to Carry Sidney Factor's silks when well rated Sledge was scratched, returned $18.70, and $10.10. Power of Destiny, owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, paid $5.50 to show.

Cupid, a romping winner of the Paumonok in last Saturday's snow storm, had no excuse. He was well placed from the start by apprentice Bill Mahorney but didn't have it when the bulky field swept into the home stretch and Tibaldo opened up with a burst of speed that settled the result one-sixteenth of a mile from the finish.

Mike Venezie was astride Reely Beeg in quest of his fourth victory of the afternoon. But he could do no better than sixth. Earlier Venezie won the third with Luffing, $4.70, the fifth with Dark Alloy, $4.90, and the sixth with Lochoir, $10.50.

Bill Allen Wins PBA At Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Bill Allen improved on his 1964 score Saturday to defeat Nelson Burton Jr. of St Louis and win the Professional Bowlers Association $32,500 Buffalo Open bowling tournament.

Allen could knock down only 160 pins here last year as he lost in the finals to Wayne Zahn of Atlanta. Saturday, he rolled 206.

The 30-year-old former printing press operator from Orlando, Fla., had five strikes. The 22-year-old Burton cleaned the alley only in the sixth frame and on his final ball after a 10th frame spare. Burton finished with 190.

Allen pualified for the finals by scoring 8,531 in the 40-game preliminary. His victory was worth $5,000.

Burton,who won $2,500, defeated Dick Weber of St. Louis, the PBA tour's leading money-winner with $26,080, 215 to 213. Bob Strampe of Detroit 220-203. Earlier, Strampe defeated Weber 212 to 196.

Weber collected $1,500 for his fourth-place finish. Strampe, who led with earnings of $33,592 last year, won $2,000.

QB Club to Feature Golf

Golf will be the featured subject at the weekly meeting of the Colorado Springs' Quarterback Club when the local athletics boosters meet this Monday noon at the Acacia Hotel.

Four professionls from golf clubs throughout the region will present a clinic for the QB members and guests. Included will be instructions, demonstrations and films of tournament and instructional play.

Scheduled to appear are Patty Jewett's Art Severson, the Broadmoor Gold Club's Roger Pedigo, Paul Ransom of the Valley Hi Country Club, and Lars Larsen of Colorado Springs Country Club. Larsen will be in charge of presenting the filmed account.

For the past several weeks the Quarterback Club has had special programs on the various sports of the area. Last week featured Col. Edmond Rafalko, director of athletics at the Air Force Academy, and a talk on the physical fitness program among the AFA's cadets and the varsity athletic program.

Next week, April 5, a film on the highlights of the 1964 Air Force football season will be shown fro the first time in this region. It's expected that Ben Martin or someone from his football staff will be present to give an early rundown on the prospects coming up for next fall. The Falcons are to start their annual spring practice this Monday, and they should be a week into these drills by the time this program is presented.

Other programs are slated in the future. And each week coaches from throughout the Pikes Peak Region give reports on the progress of the sport in season.

The Quarterback Club is open to any interested male, and meetings are held each Monday noon at the Acacia.

Senators Assign Two Pitchers to PCL

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Washington Senators assigned pitchers Alan Koch and Don Loun to their Hawaii farm club of the Pacific Coast League Saturday, but Koch said he does not plan to report.

The 27-year-old right-hander, who had a 3-10 record with the Senators last year, plans to return to his Demopolis, Ala., home and will continue his law studies at the University of Alabama.

Ralston to Play In River Oaks Meet

HOUSTON (AP) — Dennis Ralston, the nation's top ranked amateur, will play in the River Oaks Invitational Tennis Tournament April 19-25.

Ralston was a semifinalist in the 1963 event.

Tournament Director R. A. (Bob) Shephered also announced he had been informed that two members of Spain's Davis Cup team, 1965 champion Manuel Santa and Luis Arillo, who upset Chuck Mckinley here last year, will not be permitted to enter the tournament due to Davis Cup competition in Spain the following week.

Saari Claims Triple Crown In Swim Meet

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Southern California's Roy Saari claimed his second straight triple crown in the National Collegiate swimming championships with a record-smashing victory in the 1,650-yard freestyle Saturday night.

The triumph by the powerful junior bolstered the Trojan's hopes for their third straight team title.

Saari won the gruelling distance race in 16:39.9, shattering his collegiate mark of 16:49.5 and his American record of 16:49.3.

BAPTISTS SEEK CONVERTS

DALLAS (UPI) — The Southern Baptist Convention's nationwide evangelism leaders have set a goal urging Baptists to win 424,000 new converts during 1965.

The 1965 goal would be an increase of 34,000 or more over the projected number of baptisms (converts) anticipated for 1964.

FABIAN HEADS FOR DUBLIN TO MAKE MYSTERY FILM

HOLLYWOOD — Fabian called to say he's off for Dublin, Ireland, to play in "Ten Little Indians," taken from the Agatha Christie story, "And Then There Were None." Seven-Arts is doing it. He'll be with some mighty fine players: Hugh O'Brian, Stanley Holloway, Wilfrid Hyde-White, and Shirley Eaton, from "Goldfinger." He's never been there before and asked if he should take summer or winter clothes. Winter. It gets cold there — even in the summer. He'll sing a nursery rhyme in the picture.

Ran into Binnie Barnes Frankovich who said: "I haven't told a soul but Lord Louis Mountbatten has been our house guest. Mike and I are old friends of his. He was so tired he wouldn't let us give a party; however, Jack Warner gave a small one at his home. He was on the last lap of his speaking tour; said things that needed to be said. He called on Mary Pickford. Pickfair is where he and Lady Mountbatten spent their honeymoon 40 years ago." Mary hasn't been feeling well. After spending an afternoon with Adolph Zukor, she slipped on a highly polished floor and broke two ribs.

If George C. Scott has any idea of seeing Ava Gardner again, he's better forget it. She has a couple of guards that could put him away for a long time. She spent some days in the hospital, then Frank Sinatra loaned her his house in Palm Springs (he was here working) to recupe.

Pierre Galante and Olivia de Havilland have been officially separated for two years. She's still in New York trying to help one of Luther Davis' daughters, but I don't believe there will be a marriage with Davis. When make-up man Gene Hibbs left Bette Davis in New York to perform his magic on Roz Russell as "Mother Superior" in Philadelphia, Bette left the tour and took out for London. Livvy went on alone.

Sammy Chan writes that Maria Callas didn't show up for her own reception after her great success at the Met: "It was a pity because as each of her four co-stars entered the room, they were greeted by a special fanfare. I felt cheated, because the one created for her must have been equal to the second coming. O, well, if I can wait for that I can wait for Callas. It was difficult for me to go out today. We had another blizzard. I always have that guilty feeling that everyone knows I'm the writer of 'Let It Snow, Let It Snow, Let It Snow.'"

Audrey Hepburn is being remembered by the British who will present her with their Oscar for "Charade." While in London she'll visit the Stanley Donens.

Our Bill Cosby was a one-man riot on Hollywood Palace. He played Noah trying to get the animals in the ark and talked to the Lord about how difficult it was. My son, Bill, flipped over him. Had never seen him before.

When Gene Barry goes to London in May he'll do a spot of work. Two shows at the London Palladium and a couple of weeks at Talk of the Town.

The Armand Deutsches welcomed Victor Rueda and Peter Damon with a dinner party. They're the fellows who dazzle Americans when they visit Madrid. Victor invited me to his birthday party on June 26, and I might just go. It was a swinging affair, with Frank Sinatra passing the mustard for giant frankfurters. I asked where he got the tan. "I lay in the sun all day today trying to get rid of a cold," he said, "and Bill Daniels will kill me when I report to the set in the morning."

Greg Bautzer left to catch the midnight plane for New York. He told a fabulous story about John Mills, who has taken over El Morocco and has the place packed as it was in the John Perona days. Said Greg, "He stole a train during the war. Didn't know what was in it, but needed one to get some refugees across the Yugoslav border. He got away with it, and the cargo was cigarets — packed to the ceiling. Must have been worth 5 million dollars."

LIEUTENANT ASSIGNED — First Lt. Dennis M. Englert has been assigned as chief of the Distribution and Record Branch, Adjutant General Section, at Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) headquarters. The lieutenant holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Rutgers University, class of 1961, and received a Bachelor of Laws degree from Albany Law School, Albany, N.Y., last year. Before entering the Army in January, he was associated with a law firm in Schenectady, N.Y. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association and the American Bar Association. Lieutenant Englert, his wife, and their two young sons are living at 1719 Querida Dr. (ARADCOM Photo)

AUTOMATION PROBLEM

BOSTON (UPI) — "Automation backlash" has developed into a business epidemic that is impairing the efficiency of some of the larger companies, says a Boston management consultant.

Harvey C. Krentzman, president of Advanced Management Associates, Inc., says automation and greater use of computers is hurting large businesses by increasing the size of the minimum job lots that can be manufactured. One result, he says, is more opportunities for the smaller, less-automated factory.

BANNED

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The official Turkish Cypriot news bulletin says Greek authorities are banning duty free Red Crescent — Turkish Red Cross — supplies to force Turks to buy these goods from the Greeks.

The bulletin said Turkish Cypriot Vice President Fazil Kuchuk appealed by cable to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant to take action against the Cyprus government ban.

DEFEATED

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservatives suffered defeat in his home territory Wednesday when the Liberal party won the Conservative seat in Roxburgh.

The election outcome was certain to heighten agitation for Douglas-Home's replacement as leader of the party.

FILM AWARDS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three motion pictures have received the first awards to American-made movies by the Broadcasting and Film Commission of the National Council of Churches. They are: "Becket," produced by Paramount; "Fate Is The Hunter," a 20th Century Fox production, and "Fail Safe," produced by Columbia Pictures.

"Becket" was cited for its treatment of a religious subject "with accuracy, pertinence and moral value." The story of the investigation of a plane crash in "Fate Is The Hunter" was commended for its depiction of moral courage in the face of possible loss of personal gain. In "Fail Safe," the Commission saw a worthy study of the "predicament but also the hope of man."

LEOPOLDVILLE — Windmills will be erected in the Congo.

PRODUCTION MEETING — Attending the Quality Chekd Dairy Products Association production and marketing conference in Chicago last week were William MacEnulty and John Keating of the Sinton Dairy Company and William Barber of William Barber and Company, Sinton's advertising agency. The local men were among 375 dairy representatives from all over the U.S. and Canada who set the association's marketing and production plans for the near future. The Sinton Dairy was recently admitted to membership in the association by virtue of its consistent record of top quality. The association consists of more than 150 of the outstanding dairies in the two countries.

29 From Springs On CU Dean's List for Fall

Twenty-nine Colorado Springs residents are in the superior category of the University of Colorado's College of Arts and Sciences dean's list for the fall semester.

The 7,947 students in arts and sciences last semester posted an average grade of 2.36. A year ago the average as 2.35. In CU's grade system, a "C" is 2.0, a "B" is 3.0 and an "A" is 4.0.

The overall first semester University average was 2.4.

Urges Schools Participate In Peace Corps

ESTES PARK (UPI) — A Wisconsin educator Friday told representatives of more than 50 universities that schools should become involved in international relations through the Peace Corps.

Dr. J. Martin Klotsche, chancellor of the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee branch issued the plea.

He spoke at the three - day "Conference for Peace Corps Contractors," made up of universities and agencies which train Peace Corps volunteers.

Klotsche said universities must give higher priority than ever before to international affairs.

The conference is being sponsored by the Office of International Programs at Colorado State University.

Love Signs Bill On Foreclosure Land

DENVER (AP) —Gov. John A. Love has signed another bill passed by the Legislature, the 59th during the current session.

It is sponsored by Sen. Fay DeBerard, R-Kremmling, and provides that any lands acquired by the state by foreclosure become school land under the Land Commission with income going to the school fund.

Minister Charges Selma Officials Were Negligent

Injustice in Semla, Ala., could have been avoided by authorities there, a Colorado Springs minister said here this week.

"Injustice and bitterness has resulted in Selma. It could have been avoided with creative handling of the problem of race relationship by the community," The Rev Robert M. Bowman said. "The problems might have been resolved earlier and all trouble avoided if those in authority had not been negligent. They refused changes, feeling that ignoring of the problem would settle events. As a result, the situation existing there expanded and it became necessary for outside aid, which built additional tension."

Rev. Bowman, new minister of the All Souls Unitarian Church, made the comments after participating in the integration movement in Selma last week.

"The lesson learned here for any community is that is incumbent upon local leadership to take a long hard look at local relationships and use wisdom to take the necessary steps to alleviate strained and unjust situations," he said. "If this is not done, what happened in Selma could happen anywhere. We must be willing to honestly deal with the situation and take a forthright look at our community and make the necessary changes. This responsibility falls to the leaders and clergy of the community."

Rev. Bowman last Sunday joined an interdenominational Selma caravan from Denver including laymen and representatives from the United Church of Christ, Presbyterian, Baptist Churches.

"I was in Selma as an individual and a minister," he said. "As a matter of conscience I am deeply distressed by the violence in that community. I want to be of what assistance I can to those who are attempting to reaffirm the rights and dignities of all those who are chilcren of god."

As to events occurring, he continued, "On arrival, we were briefed and oriented on the techniques of nonviolent protest and the matter of self-protection. I was impressed with empnasis placed not on helping oneself but on the management of helping your brother under such circumstances."

"Some of us went out into the county areas to speak at gatherings and meetings. Those of us who remained behind joined with citizens of Selma in a special walk to the Dallas County Court House. We sang, prayed, and listened to addresses in the rain. The addresses emphasized citizenship and the right of these people to claim the court house theirs as well as any citizens. The march was under court order authorization."

"The previous evening was spent at an outdoor rally, in front of a Negro church, singing and listening to speakers. The singing was for the brutality demonstrated in Montgomery on the previous day. We were surrounded by state troopers. It was a very tense situation. Strict discipline was upheld and provocations ignored. It was all sane and peaceful with no violence displayed."

Rev. Bowman's group was there several days. They arrived early Tuesday and left late Thursday.

Reflecting, he said, "The important thing is that our group was just there. The Selma people have faced it alone and silently for a long time. The people of other parts of the United States should be with them at this time, just to let them know that they are not alone in this thing. We were housed and fed by the people of the movement and found it very touching. Many had lost their jobs. We came away with a deep respect for the Negro people there."

Doctor Disarms Gunman After Wild Ride

Police cornered the robber's getaway car on a dead end street in Rome and arrested James P. Davis, about 37, of Chattanooga. The hostage, Dr. Robert Demos, 45, of Chattanooga, Tenn., escaped unharmed.

"Please don't do anything to make it sound as if I'm a hero," Demos told The Associated Press. "I just drove with a gun at my head and grabbed the gun when I had a chance."

Demos said he threw the gun out of the car after taking it away from Davis as police cornered the car. Demos then jumped from the car yelling, "Don't kill him. Don't kill him."

State Trooper J. P. Smith smashed the right door glass with the butt of a shotgun hit Davis on the face and the hand with the gun because he said he couldn't determine what Davis had in his hand and then dragged him from the car. Davis then dropped the coke bottle he was carrying.

Shortly after the arrest, Davis was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Robert Swords and held in lieu of $100,000 bond on charges of bank robbery and kidnapping.

The doctor described the long drive through parts of two states with as many as 16 police cars in pursuit this way:

"I was coming home from treating a patient. On a street near home there must have been a hundred cars and I asked somebody what happened. A man said they had just captured a bank robber, so I drove on home."

Demos said he then drove home and found another car parked beside his wife's car. "I thought it belonged to a friend of either my son or my daughter," he said.

But when he got inside he found that Davis was holding his family hostage.

"My wife was the noblest woman I ever saw," Demos said, explaining that she remained cool through the entire incident.

He said police came to the door and asked if the bandit was there. "Of course with his having the gun, I had to tell them no, but I winked several times so they would know he was."

Demos said police later called his home and talked with Davis, promising leniency. However, Davis told them he wanted to die anyway because of an ill-fated love affair.

Later, Demos said Davis told him one of the family would have to go with him if he went. Thus Demos and Davis left the Chattanooga home and headed south into neighboring Georgia. They passed through several small towns, stopped at Cartersville for gas and then headed for Marietta.

At Marietta, a Cobb County sheriff's deputy stopped the car, but Demos warned the officer and the other 15 carloads of men in pursuit to leave the chase — saying his life was in grave danger. Marietta is 80 miles south of Chattanooga and 15 miles north of Atlanta.

Most of the police cars dropped out of the chase at this point and Demos headed the car to the west toward Dallas, Ga., and Alabama. Somewhere along this route, Demos talked Davis into letting them head back toward Chattanooga.

"God must have been on my side because we went down a dead end street and about 20 cars came in behind us," the doctor said.

Demos said he was not frightened because Davis told him "Now, Doc, I'm not going to kill you."

Algeria, with an area of 920,000 square miles, is larger than Texas and Alaska combined. Its population numbers 11 million.

Guggenheim Fellowship Goes To AFA Cadet

Frist Academy cadet to win the highly coveted study grant is Orvin H. Ramlo Jr., son of Col. (USAF Ret.) and Mrs. Orvin H. Ramlo of Santa Ana Calif.

An outstanding scholar, Cadet Ramlo also won a National Science Foundation Graduate Fellowship and an Atomic Energy Commission Fellowship.

At the Academy, Cadet Ramlo has, each semester, been named to the Dean of Faculty's List for academic achievement. He is majoring in Engineering Science and taking part in the Astronautics Master Degree program.

Cadet Ramlo graduated from Tustin Union High School, Tustin, Calif., in 1961.

He "lettered" two years as a member of the soccer team and also made an outstanding scholastic record receiving life membership in the California Scholastic Federation earning the Bank of America Award for Mathematics and Science, and competing as a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholastic Qualifying Tests.

CC Senior Gets Danforth Fellowship

Merle Calvin Ricklefs, a senior at Colorado College, has won a Danforth Graduate Fellowship for advanced study for the Ph. D. degree. The fellowship provides tuition and living expenses for four years of study in preparation for a career of college teaching.

Ricklefs, a history major at Colorado College, is the son o Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Ricklefs of Mason, Iowa.

Elected this year to Phi Beta Kappa, the national scholastic honor society, Ricklefs is one of five Colorado College seniors named a Woodrow Wilson Fellow for a year of graduate study.

He plans to study southeast Asian History at Cornell University.

Trial Run Set For System

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gordon Allott, R - Colo., announced Friday the Defense Department will try out an advanced data distribution system developed by an Englewood, Colo., firm.

The system is designated to make readily available information previously recorded on microfilm. It is called engineering data retrieval system and was developed by Information Handling Service, Inc., of Englewood.

Allott said the Pentagon will conduct a test of the system under a $120,000 contract with the company. It will then evaluate its effectiveness to decide whether it should be adopted throughout the Defense Department.

TO CONFER

ROME (AP) — Premier Aldo Moro will go to Washington to confer with President Johnson April 20-21, Moro's office announced Friday.

Serious Crimes Through America Continue Rising

By RUSSELL KIRK

In this year's preliminary report on serious crimes, the Federal Bureau of Investigation finds that violence and other serious offenses continue to increase, in this land of liberty, far faster than does population. At elast one out of every 100 people was the victim of a criminal last year; the average rate of increase of crimes was 13 per cent, in one year's time.

Cases of forcible rape increased by 19 per cent in 1964! Shameful offenses against women have been the most dismal aspect of criminal increase for the past several years. Evidence suggests, incidentally, that the astounding mildness of some judges toward the sexually violent is one reason for this national disgrace. In a number of notorious cases during 1964, the courts merely placed on probation convicted ravishers.

The increasing flood of pornographic and quasi-pornographie publications too, does something to augment sexual violence. When lubricity and lust seem to meet with no obstacle in print or films, psychopaths' appetites are inflamed by constant vicarious sexual stimulation; and juvenile delinquents' morbid immaturity becomes focussed on sexual aggression. It is some small consolation, incidentally, that responsible newspapers increasingly decline to publish salacious movie advertisements.

Aggravated assault has increased nearly as alarmingly, in the past year, as has the crime of rape. "Racial" agitation and hostility are among the principal causes of this latter violence, and account in lesser part, it appears, for the increase of rape.

The new sprawling suburbs suffer most in this triumph of criminals — in part, because there are fewer pedestrians and patrolemen to interrupt marauders. Rural areas are least troubled, and the North-Central states are more law-abiding than are the other principal regions of America. Yet everywhere, crime marches on.

President Johnson proposes to Congress a series of measures to deal with the diseases of violence and fraud. But no amount of expenditure from the federal treasury can, of itself, effectively reduce the scope of crime; and merely decreeing new "federal" offenses is small deterrent to criminals.

As this commentator has suggested repeatedly in recent weeks, only a revival of duty and some courage among average Americans can effectively deal with the human predator. If most Americans behave like sheep an F.B.I. with a hundred thousand agents cannot save them.

In North Philadelphia, a few days ago, a young girl was dragged along the subway tracks by a gang of juvenile brutes, beating and attempting to ravish her. Ten men stood by, pretending not to notice the awkward little incident. A young sailor from Georgia, however, did come to the child's assistance; and though he was horribly beaten, he contrived to summon police, who caught the thugs.

The most fundamental of civil rights is the right to safety at home and in the streets. And no one can maintain this right except its beneficiaries.

TIME READING PROGRAM — The Time Reading Program now in its third year, has issued its 17th set of books. This package of four soft-cover titles is published by Time Inc., New York. The special editions include:

EASTERN APPROACHES, by Fitzroy Maclean, with a new introduction by Charles W. Thayer. 422 pages.

THE BIG SKY, by A. B. Guthrie, Jr., with a new introduction by Walter Van Tilburg Clark. 350 pages.

Charles W. Thayer, a close friend of Fitzroy Maclean, author of Eastern Approaches crossed this colorful figure's path during some of his more bizarre exploits, and so is qualified to risk the criticism that "...Maclean has modestly condensed those original accounts far more than they deserved." In his introduction to Eastern Approaches, Thayer notes that "in its original American edition, this book was called Escape to Adventure, which was a misleading title. For it is not a book of adventures . . . MacLean was engaged in business — often deadly serious collecting information, stalking rebels in Persia, harrying the Germans in the desert or driving them back out of the Balkans.

"Eastern Approaches is more than entertaining and informative. It is a lively illustration of that ancient obligation of the Highland gentleman — to serve his country wherever he may be needed and in whatever capacity, whether as soldier, statesman or scholar, all of which Maclean has proved himself to be."

"The originality of Memento Mori is that it is a book about the great suppressed and censored subject of contemporary society, the one we do not care to face, which we regard as indecent: old age," writes Great Britain's foremost critic V. S. Pritchett in his introduction to this special edition. Originally published in 1959, Memento Mori a tale about the tedium and apprehension of waiting to die, was Muriel Spark's third novel but the first to gain wide critical attention.

Memento Mori, the Latin words meaning "remember that thou must die," deals with an original subject, V. S. Pritchett ovserves. "For some generations we have now practiced the cult of eternal Youth; economically it is a market, medically it is a prospect, chemically it can be introduced into glands and skin." Of Mrs. Spark's severe approach to the subject, he says: "One respects human courage all the more after her scientific inspection, because one has been delighted by her acceptance of human shadiness and folly."

Alfred Bertram Gutherie's The Big Sky is a genuine historical novel, if fidelity to historical records is the necessary criterion. But it is also a perceptive psychological study of a violent, inarticulate, uneducated mountain man who lived in a rugged American era that lasted barely a generation. Walter Van Tilburg Clerk, the distinguished writer and critic, calls The Big Sky, ". . . the only full-length portrait factual or fictional, of the mountain man, the only account of how he came to be, how he lived and what for, and how and why he passed." This assessment, including an attempt to give The Big Sky its proper place in frontier literature, is made in a new introduction to this edition. The mountin man has been excluded from the roster of American heroes, but Clark believes "That state of things can't last. . .Only Heroes born in verity (like Boone Caudill of The Big Sky) can give a nation a soul, and only Heroes who give a nation a soul can find a place in its enduring pantheon."

1965 — In the sweep of modern history, the year 1964 will stand out as one marked by events both dramatic and far-reaching in their consequences. In the United States, there was the presidential election and the passage of the Civil Rights Act. Elsewhere, we saw a change of leadership in Russia and a new government in Great Britain. The Chinese for the first time exploded a nuclear device. In the field of science, announcement was made of new anthropological findings that may revolutionize man's thinking about his early development.

These and many other events are relieved in the pages of The 1965 World Book Year Book, the annual supplement to The World Book Encyclopedia.

In its Year of File section, the volume contains over 450 articles covering the major events of 1964. Its Special Reports — articles written in depth by leading authorities on subjects of lasting significance — keep the reader abreast of some of the most important developments of our time. Nobel laureate Pearl S. Buck describes the challenge man faces in developing the good earth and how he is meeting it. Pulitzer Prize-winner Allen Drury author of "Advice and Consent," writes of the great civil rights battle of 1964. His article, entitled, "Congress Makes a Decision," is an inside, objective report of how the legislative processes of our government worked to being about a major social readjustment in our society.

Reporting on another aspect of the human scene, The Year Book includes a series of three interrelated features on the development of man, his habitat and the universe in which he lives.

World-famous anthropologist L.S.B. Leakey tells of finding fossils of "Homo habilis" and how these and other discoveries have challenged long-established theories of anthropology. This year's Trans-Vision unit depicts in vivid color, with the aid of a transparent overlay, the development of the life and land of the North American continent throughout 600,000,000 years of geologic time. Exploring another aspect of our mysterious universe, Year Book Senior Editor Mark M. Perlberg, in "The Unfolding Universe," writes on the science of cosmology with particular emphasis on the quasars which are revolutionizing our concept of the structure of space.

The Year Book's board of editors has written a group of interpretive Focus articles analyzing the significance of major developments in 1964 in various categories of human endeavor. The Belgian statesman Paul-Henri Spaak writes on world affairs; Pulitzer Prize - winner James B. Reston on national affairs; columnist Sylvia Porter on the economy; and former Astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., on the space program. Other Focus articles carry the well-known bylines of Isaac Asimov, Alistair Cooke, Lawrence Cremin and Red Smith.

The summary and conclusions of the Warren Commission's investigation into the assassination of the late President John F. Kennedy are included in The Year Book. Another service to readers is the dictionary supplement which lists new words and phrases from the 1965 edition of The World Book Encyclopedia Dictionary. A 20-page cumulative index insures ease of use and ready access to all material in the book.

If you understand the need for a biography of Lewis without Clark, Dillon's volume is more than a satisfactory book.

It is carefully done by the head librarian of San Francisco's Sutro Library, a competent historical job.

If you consider Lewis and Clark as Damon and Pythias, stay away. Dillon does not so consider them.

Although he goes out of his way to be fair to William Clark, the author makes it plain that he thinks Lewis the bigger man. As he puts it, "If any one man deserves to be considered as the person who opened the Far West, it is Lewis."

Most historians and biographers have not held Dillon's view. Neither did Lewis. But in this volume of 364 pages, Dillon makes a point for his views and even if the reader does not agree, it still makes for good reading.

The best parts remain the 1804-06 trip of Lewis and Clark up the Mississippi and Missouri, on across the Rockies and down the Columbia River to the Pacific Ocean.

As with others Dillon can describe that trip well mainly because he can fall back on the journals kept by Lewis and Clark. The men come alive as they write.

Other parts of Lewis' life remain sketchy and probably always will. Why he took so long to assume his new duties as governor of the Louisiana Territory is not satisfactorily explained.

Nor do we get a satisfactory explanation of his tragic death. Dillon, of course, cannot be blamed for that. Whether it was suicide or murder is an open question. Dillon thinks it was murder, but can't prove it. He does show that the case for suicide is unconvincing.

This books tells just about all that is known concerning Lewis. It arouses a desire for more knowledge. — E. H. Sprunger

DEAR BELLE, Letters from a Cadet and Officer to His Sweetheart 1858-65. Edited by Catherine S. Crary. Wesleyan U. Press. $5.95.

"DMEAR Belle" is not an ordinary collection of wartime letters. It is not an ordinary collection of Civil War letters. It is extraordinary in any classification.

In the first place it is not merely an array of letters with inevitable dead patches of monotony and trivia. Thanks to the skilled hand of Dr. Crary, instructor in history at Finch College, the book is a smooth-flowing, lively narrative. It even has a plot in the uneven romance of Tully McCrea and his cousin, Belle McCrea.

Tully McCrea was a West Point cadet in the years immediately preceding the Civil War. Historically, his letters are most important for their revelations of cadet life in that tense period, their detail on the staff regiment which produced leaders of armies both North and South. Tully did not submit tamely to discipline, most of his academy troubles traced to his rebellions against it, but he was sensible enough to see the value of the lessons it taught.

McCrea was an artillery officer in the Civil War, served with distinction, suffered a wound at Olustee Fla., which lamed him for life. He retired as a brigadier general in 1903. Bruce Catton offers in his foreword this eulogy: "He never became famous but he did become one of the solid, reliable, dedicated young officers without whom the war could not have been won." — Robert D. Price

The everyday relationship between the government and the governed comes alive in "The Great Experiment," as the reader is taken on an amusing guided tour of the paper jungle sprawled on the banks of the Potomac.

The book is a lively, comprehensive account of the workings of the federal government. Its theme is taken from a warning issued by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower: "The American system, we must remember, is still an experiment; it is even today being tested."

The federal bureaucracy, as seen by the author, is a strange world inhabited by anonymous men and women working at an astonishing variety of tasks, ranging from the preparation of low-fat cookie recipes to a search for the cure for cancer.

"This strange, teeming territory is relatively unknown to most Americans," Weaver writes. "They may be on friendly terms with a rug-peddler in the souks of Tunis, but have never heard the names of the Federal Power Commissioners whose rulings affect their monthly gas bills."

A native Washingtonian who has served a tour of duty in the bureaucracy, Weaver writes about the federal government as though giving a character sketch of a rich crotchety and much - misunderstood uncle. — Stanley M. Swinton

FUN IN A CHINESE LAUNDRY. By Josef von Stemberg. MacMillan. $6.95.

In the early glory days of filmland, Josef von Stemberg stalked the Hollywood - Berlin circuit with fiery zeal. Hot artistic argument flared, his temperamental splendor was notable. And as every cinema buff knows, he invented Marlene Dietrich.

Now the venerable dragon speaks his testament with a few rumbles of ancient ardor and some regurgitive burps. The narrative starts with his Viennese boyhood, but within a dozen pages the stream-of-consciousness has meandered around some far later events, and so it goes through his 300 pages.

The movies that made him renowned — "The Devil Is a Woman," "The Blue Angel" and "Shanghai Express" — as well career in yo-yo turmoil — are examined in hop-skip style to keep the reader thumbing to-and-fro to retain any sense of time-and-place continuity.

There are nuggets for the curious and quite possibly for the student of cinema technique and creative aesthetics in the heavy dumpling account. But it is best digested in brief stints. A group of photos touching on scattered bits of the von Stemberg saga are included — William Glover

CORONATION. By Jose Donoso. Knopf. $4.95.

All the elements of the Faulkner school of writing are there: a decaying mansion, presided over by a half-mad nonagecarian; a 50ish bachelor grandson living on inherited wealth while deluding himself that he is a man of letter; servants devoted equally to their masters and their religion; a tragicomic love affair involving a master and a servant.

And above all there is an air of tragedy that makes it obvious that the remnants of this once-distinguished family are rushing toward oblivion — the question is how and when.

Donoso has a style of his own, however, and there is more to distinguish this book from what sometimes is called the Southern Gothic style of the novel, than the differences in names, setting, nationality and race (the servants are of Indian stock rather than Negro).

The U.S. edition is a translation by Jocasta Goodwin. The novel was published in Chile in 1957 under the titel Coronacion. — Joseph Benham

Apart from Britain's three most recent male monarchs, there probably is no English king about whom Americans know so much as George III. Most remember him as the chief adversary of the American Revolution, and many know he was insane for the last 10 years of his long life.

Trenchas book is a detailed account of the first major onset of the king's madness, in 1788-89, which played an important part in the decline of royal authority in Britain.

There is no question that George was sick for about four months in late 1788 and early 1789. Opposition politicians who already were grooming his eldest son for the post of regent (which he finally achieved in 1811) argued that he was incurable.

Trench, drawing extensively on two heretofore-unpublished diaries and speaking modern medical language, suggests that the king's manic-depressive attack probably was no more serious than what we would call a "nervous breakdown" today.

The ingenious political maneuverings of the younger William Pitt held off the creation of a regency until the medical skill of Dr. Francis Willis, a preacher-turned-physician, restored the King's mental health.

George resumed the throne after he was cured, but he no longer tried to exercise detailed control of the government. The fall of the Bastille, with the pressures it created, and the playboy habits of the prince regent (later George IV) contributed to the fall of the British monarchy.

"The Royal Malady" is an interesting and extensively documented report on a turning point in British history.

Forest Fire Bill Faces House Vote

DENVER (UPI)— The Colorado House gave tentative approval Friday to a bill making the state responsible for the control of forest fires.

The measure will be up for a final House vote Saturday before being sent to the Senate.

Rep. Ray Black, R- Loveland, was the sponsor of the measure, which would modernize the state law regarding fires on forest lands. At present, county sheriffs hold the main responsibility for controlling forest fires.

Dairy Industry Seeks to Avoid Competition

By KEN ROBISON
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — A bill sponsors said is intended to protect Colorado dairy processors from "unfair competition" in Nebraska and Utah won preliminary approval Friday in the Colorado House of Representatives.

The vote Friday was 37-17 despite a spirited attack by Rep John R. Mackie, R-Longmont, who said the bill gives the commissioner of agriculture power to fix milk prices and other regulatory powers that violate the state and federal constitutions.

Rep. Everett Cook, D-Canon City, a dairy farmer, led the fight for it. He said inferior milk from other states has flooded the Colorado market in the last ten years and driven half of the state's milk processors out of business.

The bill gives the commissioner power to set minimum milk prices in one or more Colorado marketing areas, based on costs of out-of-state milk and forbids milk dealers to offer retail distributors rebates or gifts such as free milk coolers as an inducement to sell.

An amendment offered by Mackie was voted down. It would have required simple posting of the cost of out-of-state milk. He said this would accomplish what the sponsors wanted without giving unconstitutional regulatory powers to the commissioner.

Cook said mild graded as Class 2 under the federal marketing order is worth about $3.10 per hundred pounds in the Hastings, Neb. area. Shipped into Colorado, it sells for as much as $5.29, the same price as top quality milk.

He said 40.4 million pounds was shipped into Colorado from outside in 1963 and 73.9 million in 1964, cutting sharply into the market for milk produced within the state. Cook said the number of Colorado dairy plants has shrunk from 174 to 76 in the past ten years, and the number of Grade A dairy farms has declined by two-thirds.

"Since 1961 we have lost three dairy plants in Canon City, four in Pueblo, three in Colorado Springs," he said. "They were forced out by larger chain operators. That forced our producers to move their milk further to market. The prices are the same or lower than in 1961 while costs have gone up."

The bill, by helping the in-state processors, would help the farmers, he said. Cook said fluctuations in price caused by the milk imports work to the disadvantage of the dairy farmer.

Mackie said powers given the commissioner are similar to those declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in invalidating the National Industrial Recovery Administration law in the 1930s. The same kind of powers under the Colorado Lettuce Marketing Act have been declared unconstitutional by a district judge in Alamosa, he added.

He said the bill provides "that you can't sell at an unreasonably low price. Who decides who is an unreasonably low price. The Kingdom of agriculture. It's a price-fixing bill."

Rep. Hubert M. Safran, D-Denver, said an assistant Colorado attorney general had approved the bill as constitutional.

Pueblo Is Against Shorter Work Week

PUEBLO (UPI)—City Manager George H. Fellows has asked the city council to oppose a legislative bill which would limit firemen to a 56 hour work-week.

Fellows said passage of the measure would cost Pueblo $100,086 for the last half of 1966 and $222,978 for 1967. It also would require the hiring of 37 additional men.

Pueblo firemen now work 67.2 hours per week on 24-hour shifts

Springs Cadet Is Awarded AEC Fellowship

Academy success in placing 11 Fellows the first year cadets entered the AEC competition stems from inauguration of a physics major at the Academy last fall, officials said.

Cadet Creamer has been named to the Dean of Faculty's List for academic achievement each semester he has been at the Academy and, in addition, has been selected twice for the Commandant's List for military proficiency and the Superintendent's List for academic and military proficiency.

Another Record In Earnings Is Being Forecast

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For every company whose profits in the early weeks of 1965 are trailing year-ago figures there are four who are making more money this year — many of them lots more.

Early returns point to a record high total for 1965's first three months when the data is all in. And many companies are expected to report their biggest after-tax earnings for any first quarter.

So far, reports from 125 companies whose fiscal year starts earlier than the calendar one, and estimates by top executives of some other companies show only 24 making less than in their 1964 first quarter. Three of these were operating in the red.

Industries prominent among the gainers include rubber, food, textiles, paper, appliances, farm equipment, electronics, retail, metals, chemicals. But the losers also came from some of these industries — paper, electronics, farm equipment, food store chains.

Annual reports show business as a whole had its most profitable year in 1964. After-tax profits rose to $31.7 billion, a $5 billion gain over 1963.

In the first two months of this year corporations paid out $2 billion in dividends, 11 per cent more than in the like 1964 period.

Among corporations already reporting first quarter earnings higher than a year ago were such well known ones as Firestone Tire & Rubber, International Harvester, J. P. Stevens, National Tea, J. C. Penney, and West Virginia Pulp & Paper.

Among those slipping below their 1964 profits are J. I. Case and Deere, Kimberly-Clark and U.S. Envelope, Continental Motors and American Photocopy Equipment.

Record steel production and sales, and a real boom in the auto industry, make it all but inevitable that leading companies in these fields will have highly profitable if not record first quarters. Rising backlogs of orders in the tools and machinery industry assure top production, sales and earnings. Many appliance makers are riding a crest of customer demand.

And with gross earnings thus fattened, the lower corporate income tax rates this year will help many a company executive assure his stockholders at upcoming annual meetings that net profits are indeed heartening.

EXTERIOR VIEW — With construction about half-finished, this exterior view of the new Western National Bank, at Circle Drive and Uintah Street, shows part of the building's unusual design. Architect Marvin Knedler, of Denver, is responsible for the structure's uniqueness. Construction is being handled by Ray Frost, Inc., general contractors. Completion is expected around May 15, some 15 days later than the original target date. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Western National Bank Building at Halfway Mark

By DAVE OSBORN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Construction on the new, $225,000 Western National Bank, at the corner of North Circle Drive and Uintah Street, has reached the halfway mark.

Ray Frost, president of Ray Frost, Inc., general contractors for the project, reported that the construction job had, however, fallen about 15 days behind schedule due to the recent inclement weather. This will move the target date for completion to May 15, according to Snow.

The Western National, which bank President Willis P. Fischer says will be one of the most unique banking facilities in the region, will be built with moss rock, cement block, steel and stucco. The building, which was started shortly after Jan. 1, was designed by Denver architect Marvin Knedler. Don Alvarado, also of Denver, is handling Western's interior designing.

Floor space in the new bank will total 9,600 square feet, including 4,800 square feet of actual banking area and some 1,600 square feet of leasing space. The bank will also contain a community room, with a capacity of 100 persons, kitchen facilities and an employes' lounge, all located on the garden level.

* * *

Wall - to - wall carpeting will be featured in the banking section, along with indirect lighting and complete soundproofing.

Besides three drive - in and one walk - up window outside, the Western National will have some of its interior space set aside for a bank officers' section, with the rest devoted to teller lines. Parking capacity around the building will total nearly 80 spaces.

The Western National, with assets totaling $1.3 million, was first opened in temporary quarters last September. The temporary site, which is actually a mobile home, is located just south of the new building.

Formed by local business and professional men, the bank's directors are all local residents, with Leo H. Ververs ,a local contractor, land - developer and rancher, serving as chairman of the board.

The bank is a member of the Federal Reserve System and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., with the latter insuring all deposits. According to Fischer, the bank is equipped to handle all types of credit transactions and deposits.

Fischer, who has been a banker for 35 years, believes Western's new building "will be one of the most attractive banking facilities in the area." He adds, "It will be a little different than any other bank in the region."

"We fell we are long on service," continues Fischer, "and that the greatest asset a bank can have is its service to the public."

Western has been noted, since its opening day, for its hours, which are anything but typical "banker's hours." While at its temporary trailer location, the bank is open from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Bank officials plan to continue the hours, with only slight modifications, when they move into the new facility. The only change, according to Fisher, will be the actual bank's closing time, but the outdoor windows will stay open during approximately the same hours as now.

"Colorado Springs has been very good to us," related Fischer, "and we feel we have done very well in the short time we have been in business here."

A grand opening has been planned for a date shortly after the new facility opens. The exact day has not yet been chosen by bank officials.

WORK AT THE TOP — Construction work on the $225,000 Western National Bank Building, at the corner of Circle Drive and Uintah Street, is nearing the halfway mark, according to Ray Frost, general contractor. At this point the roof is about half completed, along with sections of the lower level. The bank building will contain some 9,600 square feet of space, with 1,600 available for leasing. Local Man Will Speak at Insurance Meet

Donald C. Smith, associated with Connecticut Mutual Life, has been invited to be guest speaker at the Omaha Life Underwriters Association, meeting in Omaha on April 15.

Smith's speech, entitled "Building for Growth," is based on the responsibility of the life insurance agent in building his profession in sound financial advice, as a family's financial future is dependent on the recommendations of their insurance agent.

Smith qualified for the 1965 Million Dollar Round Table for the second consecutive year. In April, 1964 he led the Connecticut Mutual for the country in individual life insurance policies placed in force.

In 1963, the local agent was runnerup in sales volume for first year agents, receiving Connecticut Mutual's Norris E. Maffett award. At the Connecticut Mutual Leaders Conference in Hollywood Beach, Fla. (April 4-7) he will receive the D. Ross Osborn Award for leading the company among second year agents in number of policies put in force.

He graduated from Colorado College in 1956 with a degree in business administration and banking and has lived in Colorado Springs since then. He was in the jewelry business prior to becoming associated with Connecticut Mutual in September, 1962.

Smith is a member of the Episcopal Chapel of the Holy Spiirt where he serves as a lay reader. He lives with his wife Karen and their two daughters, Stacy 6, and Stephanie 4, at 2024 Collier Ave.

AT WORK — Members of the Ray Frost, Inc., construction team are busy working on the roof at the new Western National Bank, located on Circle Drive at Uintah Street. Frost, general contractor for the job, has set the completion date at May 15, about 15 days later than originally planned, due to the recent inclement weather. The building will be of stucco, cement block, steel and moss rock construction. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Alaniva Realty Adds Two New Salesmen

William Alaniva, owner of the Alaniva Realty Co., 7 E. Bijou St., has announced the addition of two salesmen to the staff, George H. DeChow and Charles A. Foster.

DeChow is a retired Army veteran who elected to make Colorado Springs his permanent home. He attended the University of Wisconsin from 1936 to 1940. He has a degree in business administration from the University of Maryland.

In addition to his Army career, DeChow has had a wide variety of business experience, concentrated in the business management, personnel and executive management areas. His wife, Marijane, comes from Washington, D.C. His daughter, Linda, attends Cheyenne High School, and his son, George, Cheyenne Junior High School.

DeChow first came to Colorado Springs in 1956, and even after leaving to continue his career in the service, he was a frequent visitor in Colorado Springs. He is a veteran of both World War II and Korea. Locally, he is a member of the Valley Hi Country Club, the Cheyenne Mountain Lions Club, the Colorado Springs Tipsters Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Foster, a native of Colorado, attended Fountain High School and was a student at Colorado State University. He is presently taking a course in real estate at Colorado University Extension Center in Colorado Springs.

He has spent two years in Washington, D.C., and one year in Germany with the Nike missile project.

Realty Clinic Registration Sets New Record

Previous to the current clinic meeting, registration was held to a 200 registration total which included top real estate brokers and salesmen of a specific region.

The regional institute is one of 14 divisions of the National Association of Real Estate Boards throughout the nation. This meeting embraced a four state local area.

The clinic gathering is set on an annual basis with four to six such meeting held throughout the nation each year.

Milton J. Conway, Denver, general chairman of the regional brokers institute, said: I feel that this clinic emphasized in both sessions of the two-day meet, service and responsibility of the realtor to the public."

At the morning session, Daniel F. Sheehan Sr., St. Louis, past president of the institute, told the group that the "knowledge of realtors and their sales people in the sale and purchase of homes is one of our greatest assets."

His keynote speech was followed by a panel discussion of four members who discussed the projects of raising your sights in the field of real estate selling.

The afternoon session was keynoted by Clifford A. Zoll, Chicago, member of the board of governors of the National Institute. Zoll said: "In the buying and selling of real estate, more people rely on the realtor than on any other source.

"This is further exemplified by the whole hearted acceptance of realtors by large corporations in our country who need this service due to transfers of personnel in the industries."

He indicated with proof that real estate investment in both commercial and income categories will yield a much higher income to the investor than any other form of investment.

A panel discussion followed his talk which was devoted to ideas of selling commercial property and commercial property ideas.

Allen Bearings Opens Colorado Springs Office

Allen Bearing Supply Co. has opened a Colorado Springs office, at 1403 S. 8th St. Allen now has 21 offices in the Rocky Mountain west, with its Colorado main headquarters in Salt Lake City.

The local Allen outlet which opened Monday, is housed in an office formerly occupied by Rocky Mountain Distributors.

Allen Bearing Supply receives most of its business from industrial firms, construction companies and just about any business that relies on motion for its livelihood. The company carries a complete stock of ball bearing, roller bearings and power-transmission equipment. The latter includes belts, chains and hose for transferring power.

Its bearing supply runs from the minute in size to ones large enough for a man to walk through. The latter type, however, must be ordered in advance of delivery.

Raymond Purington, who has been selling Allen products for more than three years in the region, is now sales manager for this region. Jerry McDowd is in charge of the internal operation of the new office. He has been with Allen for three years and in the bearing field for some 14 years.

Allen has other Colorado outlets in Denver, Grand Junction and Greeley. The company was first organized more than 20 years ago.

The office was opened in Colorado Springs due to the growth of industry in this area and, thus, the growth of Allen's sales here, according to McDowd.

Insurance Service Co. Constructs New Building

James L. Johnson of the Johnson Insurance Agency, and Claire Snell, of the Smartt-Snell Insurance Agency, have announced the construction of new facilities to be located at 3737 E. Palmer Park Blvd.

Both Johnson and Snell are participating members and officers in the Insurance Service Company.

This permanent headquarters building will provide administrative and technical support to the operation of individual insurance agencies.

Ivan Swanson is the president, and Ardis Reamy is the secretary of Isco. This combination of insurance executives represents 67 years of combined experience in the field.

Plans are under construction for 3,500 square feet of air-conditioned office and administrative space located on two levels. An all-glass conference room high-lighted by a massive stone fireplace represents the confidence, warmth, and cordiality by which these insurance agencies are known.

During the past 27 years he has served as past president of the Mutual Insurance Agents of Colorado, New Mexico, and Wyoming. Johnson was also president of the Pikes Peak Mutual Insurance Association of Colorado Springs.

Claire Snell is a past president of the Mountain States Mutual Insurance Agents and presently serves as vice president of the national organization. Many occasions arise when Snell must go to Washington to participate in the solving of commong problems found by insurance agents throughout the entire country. He has practiced insurance counselling for 15 years and is from Salt Lake City, Utah.

Both of the above men are well known for contributions of time and service to the Presbyterian Church and the Church of The Latter Day Saints, respectively. Johnson serves on the General Council for the Presbyterian Synod of Colorado. He is an advisor to churches throughout this synod in the selection of new ministers. He has served as an elder and on the Board of Trustees for Faith Presbyterian Church and is presently active on the Building Committee for his church.

Ivan Swanson became president of Isco in November of 1963. Prior to this time, Swanson held an executive position with a large West Coast casualty insurance company.

Ardis Reamy is an officer in the Johnson Insurance Agency and has had over 10 years' experience in the insurance business, as well as being a licensed agent in the State of Colorado. Both Swanson and Mrs. Reamy have participated in insurance conferences in the states of Colorado and Utah.

Lorne Hinkle is the third general agent being serviced by Insurance Service Company. Hinkle is recently from Vanwert, Ohio, and has established himself as an agent and community leader in Colorado Springs. Rulan Frandsen., of Beneficial Life Insurance Company, and Al Eden, associated with Bankers Life of Nebraska, will also occupy this building.

Construction is anticipated to take 60 days, with Scurr Messenger & Associates acting as general contractors. Higginbotham, Nakata & Muir were the architects for the project.

Future plans call for two additional buildings in 1966-67. The building is designed to accommodate the latest data processing equipment, as well as the most up-to-date filing and policy processing equipment.

ADDITIONAL AREA — Western Services, at 503-511 S. 29th St., has added an additional 6,000 square-foot all-metal building (center) to its main plant. The additional area allows Western to consolidate a number of its other outlets in the city under one roof. The firm deals in the manufacture and maintenance of home and office furniture. Western Service Groups Operation Under One Roof

Western Service, Inc. has consolidated its previously scattered business under one 11,200 square-foot roof at 503-511 S. 29th St.

Before the recent consolidation, the region's largest furniture - making and upholstery firm had three outlets in Colorado Springs: at 2425 W. Cucharras St., in the Pikes Peak National Bank building and at the 29th Street site. The latter location had two buildings, set about 60 feet apart, which have now been joined together with square-foot, all-metal building in the middle.

What is actually three buildings joined together will now serve as an assembly line at Western Services, according to President Millard D. "Swede" Sansen. This type of operation has been set up to conserve man hours and make the job easier for the 20 or more employes of Western Services.

The left portion of the building (503 S. 29th St.) will now house an office, upholstery shop and a fabric storage area, with the latter two located in the rear of the building. In the newly constructed center portion Sansen plans to have a shipping and inspections section along with a display area, in the front quarter, with the rear three-quarters of the building set aside for manufacturing furniture.

The third building will serve as a "finishing" department, with a shop for final preparations before finishing, a finishing room and an area for assembly and final checking of the furniture, included in the plan.

Construction of the new building was handled by Farmers Constructors of Pueblo. The center building, which measures 60 feet in width and 100 feet in depth, took about three weeks to build. The interior features an all-cement floor, with metal walls.

Western Services, now six years old, was started by Sansen at its present 20th Street location. Its business encompasses the maintenance and manufacture of both household and office furniture. This includes reupholstery or all types of furniture, restoring antique furnishings and rebuilding and refinishing home and office furniture.

"We specialize in complete office modernization," says Sansen, "using either the present furniture or equipping the office without own custom-made furnishings." Besides custom designing and manufacturing furniture Western also makes fixtures for restaurants, hotels, stores and other public accommodations.

State Residents Paid $8 Million By Insurance Co.

Claims totaling $8,344,235 were paid to Colorado residents in 1964 by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

This was disclosed by a spokesman at the company's Denver office who reported on The Travelers 1964 financial results at both state and national levels.

In Colorado, The Travelers employs approximately 160 men and women who last year earned more than $929,200 in salaries. The company is also represented by numerous independent agents and brokers throughout the state.

Premium income in the state in 1964 totaled $11,003,411, a 5.3 per cent increase over the preceding year.

By the year's end, the company had a total investment of $35,987,856 in mortgage loans outstanding in Colorado.

On a company-wide scale, operating gains in 1964 were $48.9 million compared with $44.6 million in 1963.

Total written premiums and policy benefits were at record levels. Written premiums in 1964 totaled $1,572,981,000, an increase of more than $99 million over 1963. At the same time, The Travelers paid $1,232,344,000 in policy benefits. This sum included benefits paid under all forms of insurance policies and reserves set aside for future payment.

The strongest gain was noted in the individual life insurance field. Individual accident and health lines together with combined group lines also showed gains greater than in 1963.

Casualty-fire lines — especially automobile — experienced underwriting losses despite a record high in total written premiums. But the over-all picture was brighter in 1964 than in 1963. Loss experience, which was severe during the first half of 1964, showed marked improvement during the final six months of the year.

Combined assets totaled $4,667,352,000, up by more than $224 million compared with 1963.

WORK TILL 65, LADIES

CHICAGO (AP) - Retirement plans allowing women workers to retire at an earlier age than men may run afoul of the equal employment opportunity section of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Commerce Clearing House says the section goes into effect July 2 and makes it unlawful for an employer to discriminate against any employe because of among other things, an employe's sex.

A ruling by the Federal Wage-Hour Administrator after the Civil Rights Law was enacted indicated the choice of an employer in fixing a different retirement age for men and women is not within the scope of the wage-hour law.

Wyoming Papers Sold To Former Coloradoan

LINGL, Wyo. (AP) — Joe Acklin, former public relations man for the Colorado adjutant general's office, has purchased two Wyoming weekly newspapers.

They are the Guernsey Gazette and the Lingle Guide-Review, both of which are printed in Lingle.

The former publisher of the two papers, Edwin Lebsock, has been named acting postmaster at Lingle. In that position he succeeds Mrs. Roxanna Smith, who is retiring after 19 years.

Security East Building Begins to Take Form

Construction of Security Savings and Loan Association's new Security East building at Platte Avenue and Union Boulevard passed the halfway mark this week.

Installation of structural steel is virtually complete on the 18,000 sq. ft. building. Laying of the grey brick rear wall and front columns also is completed.

"We're now aiming for an early summer opening of the Security East offices although an exact date hasn't been set yet," Arlie Moore, Security Savings president, said.

"Security East reflects the growth of Colorado Springs and our intention to grow with the city," he added. "We believe the completed building will be one which both we and all Colorado Springs residents can look upon with pride."

Security East was designed to blend into the residential atmosphere of its neighborhood. Tall shade trees on the property have been preserved to become part of the landscaping.

The front wall will be of solar bronze glass with grey brick columns and two entrances defined by concrete umbrellas with circular glass vestibules beneath. The grey brick north wall features two drive-up windows for customers.

A long, curved balcony, holding offices and a computer room, overlooks the lobby of the building. Beneath it will be the tellers' counter, vault, insurance department and closing rooms.

The basement houses a community room seating about 200 persons which will be available by reservation for public functions. The basement also holds a vault and employe facilities, including a kitchen.

Circular, cantilevered stairways connect the three levels at each end of the building. Landscaped gardens, visible from the interior, will be enclosed by continuations of the north wall.

Security Savings and Loan, a locally owned and managed association now in its 10th year, has grown in assets from more than $1.7 million at the end of 1956 to more than $24.6 million at the end of 1964.

Downtown offices of Security Savings at 111 E. Pikes Peak Ave. will remain open after completion of Security East to give the association two convenient locations in Colorado Springs.

Security's board of directors includes Moore and Mark W. Baker, Security vice president and secretary. Earl H. Schwab, chairman, Everett Conover, Guss D. Hill, W. S. (Bill) Marshall, and Dr. Roy J. Wasson.

Sno-White Wins National Citation

Sno-White Laundry and Cleaners, with six Colorado Springs locations, last week won national recognition for "meritorious progress in community service." The citation came from the National Institute of Dry Cleaning at Silver Springs, Md.

The local dry cleaning and laundry firm, which has its headquarters at 2515 W. Colorado Ave., was cited for a series of advertisement offering free cleaning of stuffed toys to be delivered to Christmas Unlimited. The cleaning establishment subsequently was loaded with hundreds of stuffed toys and dolls, which they either picked up themselves or received from Christmas Unlimited.

Sno-White Sales Manager George Brickell prepared the ad series titled, "Make Some Unfortunate Child Happy This Christmas," which ran in the Gazette Telegraph during November, 1964.

Printed slips, included in each of Sno-White's finished laundry and dry cleaning packages, tied in with the advertising campaign, according to Brickell.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to ir readers so that they can better promote and preserve their wn freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only han man is free to control himself and all he produces, can a develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a poical grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor narchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be conistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as he Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The Lytle School

We have received a letter from an old friend whom we have not seen in some time and who lives in the Lytle School District, southwest of the Springs and adjacent to the Ft. Carson military reservation.

The letter is a personal one and not for publication, but we are taking the liberty of quoting from it a few paragraphs anent the Lytle School.

The school building burned down about a year ago and a new one was built last summer to replace it, "all paid for, too," our friend says. But in the new move to acquire 79,000 more acres, the Army is taking "our new school building and somewhere near half our district. They are not offering near enough to rebuild, or any other remuneration or help."

He can get no information, either from the Army or from public officials as to what the future will be for the Lytle School. He seems to think there is some sort of deal going on whereby they may eliminate the school and force them to consolidate with another, or something like that.

He says, "We want and expect to keep our district. There is a lot of local pride in our district. We have had a lot of military - connected children to take care of without any help whatever. We have been able to help them considerably.

"As you can readily check, we have been able to keep our mill levy rather low for the County, even if we did have to help the big districts with the 'equalization fund'."

The Lytle school has long been a pesky fly in the educationists' ointment. Its record for turning out better than average, education - wise, students has been unsurpassed for many years. But while the citizens of the rural district are able to "point with pride" to the outstanding accomplishments of the only small school left in a large county, the school administrators, state and local, have regarded it with scorn and not a little contumely. It refutes successfully the educationists' claim that hugeness is a good thing for its own sake. That the kids are better educated in the great consolidated districts where they are hauled back and forth for many miles like so many sacks of potatoes.

Naturally, those who believe "the bigger the better" are not going to let little Lytle stay in business if they can prevent it, because it can show them up.

We hope the Lytle district can keep going as it has in the past, but we are fearful for its future, now that the Army is grabbing half its territory and its school building.

Why Indeed

We have received a clipping in the mail from an anonymous contributor that contains a quotation from District Judge Lester H. Lobel of Helena, Montana, which points up a point we have been arguing for years. We quote the Honorable Judge Lester:

"If a youth is old enough and tough enough to topple a tombstone, wreck a church, hold up a service station, snatch a woman's purse or beat up an old man, he's old enough and tough enough to have a public trial with his parents in the front row and full newspaper coverage."

As the clipping sender says, "Why should the delinquent hoodlums be protected?" This question is echoing across the land today, "Why?" And it is getting some results. Juveniles are no longer protected from public exposure in Montana, and they should not be protected anywhere, nor should their parents, who have received protection because the names of the juvenile offenders are so seldom made public.

The parents are solely responsible (or were until the do-gooders took over) for their offsprings' behavior and for any damage they might do. Publicizing the crimes and holding the parents responsible, would go a long way toward reducing the juvenile delinquent "problem" to manageable proportions.

Government Schools And 'Cerebricide'

Through the years in which government has slowly increased its stranglehold on American education, the notion has insensibly emerged that "belief" has to do with religion and that education has nothing whatever to do with belief.

This fact has taken some time to penetrate, but the writer now sees it, with at least some of the implications starkly revealed.

In other words, in the politically oriented matrix of American intellectual training, belief, conviction, and commitment were somehow sneered at and down-graded. In this context, belief, conviction and commitment were somehow equated with blind faith, a province wholly removed from fact-gathering and knowledge.

Thus, the product of our tax-supported institutions tended to develop a cynical disregard and a supercilious disdain for anything resembling total acceptance of anything. Skepticism and doubt, themselves useful attitudes in the search for truth, were elevated to sainthood in the shrine of intellectual development. It was not merely enough to challenge age-long beliefs and every new development, it was necessary to adopt skepticism of everything except skepticism itself. In such a climate, cynicism is easily mistaken for intellectual integrity.

But cynicism has enormous limitations. While it presumes that all men are mistaken and that each man has his price, it denies the higher nature of man and overlooks the fact that for progress to occur, either individually or at community or national level, there must be purpose. The cynic, after all, is merely a hurt idealist who covers himself with skepticism in order to avoid future pain.

This nation and this people have had greatness, not through cynicism, but through self-confidence and self-commitment. And in a world struggle for the minds of men, the socialist and communist have a belief — a faith, if you will — which, however mistaken, can kindle the enthusiasm of cohesion.

To oppose this enthusiasm, this belief, this commitment toward socialist goals, the American educational edifice has offered either massive skepticism or somewhat begrudging approbation and approval of socialism. While it sneers at faith, per se, it is swept into emotional support of socialists and communists who have a faith.

Faith and belief are not the same, nor are they necessarily limited to religious fervor. Even a professed atheist can have a profound faith and belief in truth, in honor and a workable relationship with nature's laws.

But with our cynical, supposedly objective hostility toward any kind of commitment, we are in danger of losing the intellectual war. A search for truth is vital. But a commitment to truth once it has been found is far more impelling. We will not defeat socialism by abstract cynicism, whereas we can defeat socialism by a commitment to and a belief in human liberty:

We have seen it again and again in our supposedly hallowed halls of learning. The teacher, in order to wear the cloak of the academy, poses as a remote, impartial mentor. And because example is more potent than a thousand arguments, he induces emulation and the supposition that to believe nothing is to be pure.

But the chill which emanates from such icebergs breeds death. If there is to be no joy, no fire, no delight in learning AND BELIEVING, why bother to learn? Why, indeed bother to live? The cynicism so often elevated to worship in our government-dominated classrooms is an invitation to mental suicide. Perhaps a word for the malady is in order. We suggest cerebricide.

We must seek truth. Of course. But having found it, let us love it and commit ourselves to it. We are in sorry need of both a national and personal dedication to a cosmology of freedom. This was the basic spark and ember of our beginnings, and if we lose it, we have lost the very soul of our existence.

Our existing governmental edifice of education, so-called, is but a sorry travesty of what we could have were we to understand human liberty and obtain a commitment to it. Without belief in what we are doing, without a reason for our actions, we are at a tremendous disadvantage. The teacher who is dedicated, not only to truth but to a belief in truth, can inspire as well as inform.

It is this quality of inspiration that is lacking. But we can find it and develop it in private and independant schools if we have the courage to try.

QUESTION: Should Colorado have daylight saving time?

Tony Raskob Joan Sweatt

TONY RASKOB, 622 Pioneer Lane, "My feeling is that if the legislators pass such a law, it'd be going against the will of the people. In 1960, people defeated a referendum vote on the issue . . .They should put the issue on a ballot, and let the people vote on the thing . . .it's something the people can understand. . .I personally don't care one way or the other."

JOAN SWEATT, 226 Willow, "I think it would be more convenient for travellers and visitors here. . .get it closer to the time of the rest of the nation."

Susan Byers Frank Rogers

SUSAN BYERS, 2428 Meade, "I think it's fine. . .you can get off work earlier and thus have an hour's more daylight for fun and picnics and stuff. Why not have it?"

FRANK ROGERS, 1608 Shenandoah, "No. . . well. . .I don't know. . .I guess it wouldn't hurt . . . it didn't hurt anything in California when we were there . . .I guess I oppose it because everybody else does."

Jesse Smith Cheri Behrns

JESSE SMITH, 2861 Jon. "Yes, I think so. . .it'd give the working man more leisure daylight hours. . .give the tourists more daytime for getting up and out and seeing things. . .I think it would be a real good idea."

CHERI BEHRNS, 1414 W. Platte, "Yes, I really think so . . .I lived in California for 4 months and it worked out real well. . .I guess I'd rather play tennis after work instead of before."

A Million Here, A Million There

By RUFUS L. PORTER

$50 million, $63 million, $16 million, $6 million, a million here a million there, millions scattered everywhere. Who ever thinks the whole area is not undergoing a rapid period of growth had better take a second look, read the newspapers, or take a Sunday and drive around and visit all the new housing developments. It will take you all day, maybe two, if you stop to have a look at the model homes in each area. And they are well worth looking at. You may not be ready to buy a new home yet, but you surely know somebody who is. Somebody out of state, for instance, who is planning on moving out here.

If this is the case, cruise around, take a look at the excellent model homes in nearly every price range, get the promoters brochure and any other literature on each of the developments and mail the information to your friends, adding your own ideas about their settling here. But don't overdo it. Don't tell them the sun shines EVERY day, just say nearly every day. Don't tell them this is the grandest place in the universe, some think Heaven may be nicer. Don't even say it's the greatest place in the world. Just say North America, 'cause there might just possibly be a nicer place on some other continent, although they'd have to show us.

When I was talking of housing developments in a recent column, I included out the $63 million promotion of Steven N. Arnold, former AFA officer, and his fabulous area for family living and enjoyment out near Monument. Arnold dreamed a dream when he became acquainted with the region way back in 1957, and he kept that dream alive by purchasing 60 acres of land in one of the nicest sites in the Black Forest area. Over the years, he acquired more acres and when he retired from the Air Force in 1964, he bought up more land until he now holds 2000 acres in the spot.

Then he set about making his dream come true (the only way, incidently, that dreams ever come true) by platting and preparing and subdividing the land into large, country-size lots for home building. And homes are being built and families are already moving into one of the most beautiful areas for the enjoyment of living to be found anywhere.

Woodmoor, as Arnold has named his sylvan retreat, will have its own golf course, its own country club, its own schools (three are already planned,), its own shopping center, which will be available to other nearby communities, and miles of beautiful bridle paths.

So much for one man's dream and the way he has of making it come alive. Many of us just dream, and dreams are okay. But a few have the determination to work hard enough to make a big one take shape in reality.

We read just the other day of another proposed housing development closer to town, one that will be annexed to the city, out northeast of the present city limits. This one is still unnamed, but the promoters say it is a $50 million dollar project and work will be started on it in the very near future. The Pikes Peak Region is on the move as it never has been before.

New businesses spring up almost over-night, and still they can hardly keep pace with the population growth. As for "faith in the community," how about the new theatre going up on Chelton Road, and the new one being planned by the Westland (Chief theatre) group: And how about the J. C. Penney and the Denver Dry Goods Companies who may plan huge new shopping complexes in the area. And the Western Federal Savings that is going to build a grand new office building in the downtown area. And the Antlers Plaza people, they don't act as though they think the downtown area is dying.

Faith in the region? Lots of it, and why not? the Springs area is second in the nation in rate of growth. I don't remember which ranks first, but it had better hurry or the Springs will pass it before long.

Lesson From History

From The Christian Economics

During the span of recorded history more than a score of civilizations have arisen, prospered for a time, and disappeared. Improved armament, food supply, leadership and various challenges have entered into the vast changes. Without discounting these we wish to present two other considerations.

Some nations have been authoritarian and tyrants have exploited the people causing great unhappiness and suffering. Such people have eagerly looked for some means of overthrowing those who have oppressed them. This has doubtless caused the disappearance of many ancient and more recent civilizations.

Other countries have enjoyed more freedom and more self-government. When the moral standards undergirding these happier situations have declined and the people have become selfish and grasping in their efforts to get more for themselves from the production of others, they have brought forth a type of politician who in return for votes would seek changes in the form of government that would enable them to dispense more and more patronage to the strongest pressure groups. This has gradually worn away the safeguards that have been instituted for preserving freedom until finally authoritarian government has reappeared.

A two-pronged remedy is, we believe, the only hope. One, a return to the moral law of God so that people will not selfishly seek to profit from the labor and work of others and, two, widespread economic education so that people will be able to understand the problems with which they must deal.

If government be confined to a few functions and kept simple, the people can understand it and vote intelligently. But if the powers and functions of government are unduly expanded, the people do not understand it and vote more and more power to the central government because they hope these officials, who have the experts with technical knowledge to guide them, will be able to do a better job than the people can do for themselves. This continual enlargement of the function of the central government finally erodes away freedom and brings a return of totalitarian authority.

To The Point

Is 'Brave New World' Nearly Here?

By RUSSELL KIRK

You may have noticed a startling recent dispatch from England: "Sheffield University's student health service has started issuing birth - control pills to reduce the number of illigitimate births among students." Nothing is being done, apparently, about their moral health.

This suggestion of virtual promiscuity is a far cry from the character and conduct of British university students of yesteryear. Even a dozen years ago, when this writer was a graduate student at St. Andrews University, in Scotland, almost the only "fast" students were army veterans — and not many of them. I never heard then of any occurrence of illigitimate birth, though British students had far more freedom from the university's supervision of their conduct than American students enjoyed.

In Aldous Huxley's anti-utopian novel "Brave New World," girls wear cartridge-belts full of contraceptives, handy when required. This is one symbol of the degradation of human character in a monotonous, uniform, affluent, mass society, where all appetites are indulged, but no high hopes remain. We seem to be moving fast along the road to "Brave New World," or else to Orwell's totalist "1984." Even those super-movies called "feelies," in "Brave New World," are technologically close to achievement.

What American university will rejoice in the distinction of being our first institution of learning to issue a ration of contraceptive pills to its student body? Writing about the current campus doctrine of "freedom" and "permissiveness," the editors of "Town & Country" comment, "But where is the administrator who will not acknowledge that it has produced an increase in illigitimate pregnancies on campus?"

So this country, like Britain, falls into moral disorder. Some of the wisest recent words on this subject have been uttered by Dr. John A. Logan, Jr., president of Hollins College.

"At the center of this problem," he writes, "is the generally sorry condition of the American family as a focus of moral authority. Haunted by ill-digested Freudian strictures against parental repression, bedeviled by the 'progessive' cult of self-expression, urged toward permissiveness, and beguiled by false doctrines of family democracy, parents have too often abdicated their responsibility for setting standards of behavior and limitations on their children's freedom of action. Afraid of inducing trauma, or of being unpopular with their children or their children's friends, they have yielded to demands for privileges and liberties that are clearly harmful."

Unless there occurs a healthy public reaction against aimless indulgence, and in favor of decent discipline, "Brave New World" may be upon this society before the ominous year of 1984.

SAVE THE CANAL

To the Editor:

Thirty-five hundred Americans who have devoted lives to service in Panama are being penalized for stating that they think the Panama Canal is being sacrificed to the ravenous International Conspiracy to placate the communist mobs and Panama's unclean politicians. The U. S. is surrendering their rights to very valuable property after having for years divided the income from the canal, that was bought and paid for by the U. S. and all the improvements in that yellow fever infested country were put there during the long tough building years. We bought the place and built the canal, and saved all that section of their country from the tropical diseases that infested it, and it cost many lives and much treasure. No one that did not live at that time knows the hardships our workers endured. The modern earth-moving machinery was unheard of. Our miracle man Mr. Leturno was a small boy when it was finished. He could do it now in half the time, and would not be bothered by all the former diseases that cost many lives.

Governor Fleming who is in charge of the canal seems to have the design to surrender the canal and his design seems to be working.

In 1903, under the vigorous leadership of President Theodore Roosevelt, we signed the treaty with Panama, obligating us to build the Panama Canal. Its language was plain. In return for building the canal, and a payment of ten million dollars, the Republic of Panama ceded to us a ten-mile-wide "zone" in which we would excercise "all the rights, power and authority . . . as if the United States were the soverign of the territory . . . to the exclusion of the exercise by Panama of any such sovereign rights, power or authority." It was stipulated that the zone would revert to Panama only in the event that the United States ceased to operate the canal.

The treaty of 1939 and the Eisenhower treaty of 1955—did not in any way abridge the fact of our original sovereignty.

It was not until World War II that the rumblings of the present controversies became resonant. At the same time as the appearance of communism in Panama as an important factor, and the starting of the United Nations. Alger Hiss seems to have provided the first efforts to take the canal from the United States. As first secretary of the U. N. and Director of Political Affairs for the State Department, Hiss began to develop his unhealthy interest in the status of Panama. Hiss made a sneak effort to bring the Panama Canal under U. N. jurisdiction. He actually turned over official Canal Zone papers to the United Nations on the ground that the Zone was "occupied Territory." Recognizing this as an effort to torpedo U. S. rule over the zone, through the intrusion of the U. N., Spruille Braden,, Assistant Secretary of State, blocked Hiss's crude move and thus preserved the Canal under United States sovereignty.

Hubert Humphry, Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, and Wayne Morris all proposed giving it to U. N. Had this bunch of left-wingers not spoken in favor of it, there would probably have been less agitation among the communists of Panama. They thought that a powerful political faction in the U. S. was ready to approve a sell-out by the U.S. Presidents Truman, and Eisenhower, and Kennedy and Johnson have all been lenient to the Panama agitators whenever they have raised a quarrel. They should have held up the payment of the millions they have been paying Panama, until they settled down.

The canal has made whatever values there is in that country. We bought the land, built the canal, and anyone that tries to give it away will be a betrayer of his country. We need that canal for commerce and navy.

LICENSE PLATES

To the Editor:

Twenty - five cents too much to pay for a pair of reflectorized license plates? I recall when the JC's charged $1.00 for a strip of Scotchlite tape on rear bumpers! I believe one now can buy a strip for 50 cents — —$1.00 for front and rear. So the extra for such plates looks like a bargain to me.

However, as far as reflectorized plates preventing rear end collisions — that is, in the vernacular, a lot of "hooey," "balogney!" The contributing cause of night rear - end collisions, especially in stormy weather, is the inability, or at least difficulty in distinguishing between moving and stationary vehicles because of the ridiculous law requiring red tail lights on vehicles whether moving or stopped.

Common sense would indicate red lights ONLY for stopped (parked) vehicles, with flashing red when brakes are aplied. Green lights showing on moving vehicles, with a yellow light showing when starting up and/or slowing down would make it possible for a following driver to understand what is going on and handle his vehicle accordingly.

Before we worry about reflectorized plates we should worry about getting them up out of mud - spash and dust. Cars should be built so that plates can be installed from inside hoods and trunk lids, thus avoiding possible loss and preventing thievery of them. I have suggested this location (about 3½ feet above the road) as being an improvement and because I doubt the manufacturers would want to go to the trouble of locations above windshield and rear window, where they could be much more easily read. At present, the rear license plate location makes it unreadable when pulling a trailer. I think we have a law prohibiting the obscuring of plates but it doesn't seem to be enforced.

STRANGLING LAWS

To the Editor:

The number of cells in a human organism is about sixty trillion. Each of these has a function to perform — each has work to do as an individual. The well-doing of each group of cells depends upon the well-doing of all other groups in the organism, — e. g. when the cells in the gastro parts do their work well all other groups are well nourished. Note please, all cells work cooperatively and each works individually. Each cell is independent yet all are dependent. Where in nature can a more profound design be found?

A basic fundamental of the classical economists is in harmony with this natural design as it demands considering the long-range well-doing of all groups of people. In government many laws are enacted to give one special group of individuals advantage over other groups. So the other groups suffer as a repressive or killing effect ensues. In the long run every one is affected adversely.

Law makers, jolt yourselves alert. What about the thirty five million laws we have? Can't you repeal some of these that have a throttling, killing effect on all of us?

What Is Patriotism?

By ROSALIE M. GORDON

A great deal of questioning has been going on of late among thoughtful people, the general gist of which is 'What's Wrong with America?" Generally, it refers to the strange stance of a great, free, powerful nation which seems to cringe before every trouble-maker in the world. For example, National Observer asked pointedly not long ago: "What is the matter with the nation of the Alamo and Chateau-Thierry and Bataan and Pork Chop Hill that it no longer recognizes that there are things from which there is no easy way out? When it really accepts such a peculiar extreme of reasoning that there is nothing between nuclear war and surrender — when it cannot remember such a simple human principle as stand fast in defense of your rights, stand fast and fight?"

INSTINCTIVE PATRIOTISM.

It is entirely possible that Dr. Max Rafferty, the well-known schoolman who is now superintendent of the public educational system in California, hit on the answer in a speech he made called THE ELEMENTS OF PATRIOTISM. As Dr. Rafferty says, it is an unusual thing to try to analyze patriotism. He points out that it is something our parents and grandparents knew by instinct — the meaning and elements of love of one's own country — and they would have been amused or irritated at anyone trying to analyze it.

ANALYSIS NEEDED

But today it is obvious that too many Americans, and expecially too many readers in all fields have forgotten, or were never taught, what patriotism is and what it means. This is not entirely their fault. In the liberal intellectual atmosphere of recent decades — an atmosphere that had its most serious and weakening effects in many of our educational systems—it became the fashion to sneer at anything or anybody who suggested that here in America we had something unique in the world, that we should love, respect, admire — and defend it, with our very lives if necessary. And so, if we are to find our way back from the devious and dead-end paths down which we have wandered, a searching analysis of true patriotism is essential. This is what Dr. Rafferty has provided in THE ELEMENTS OF PATRIOTISM with eloquence, understanding and a stirring call for action. His fine address has been reprinted as a public service in an 8-page folder by the non-profit, educational organization, America's Future, Inc. They will be happy to send up to ten copies of THE ELEMENTS OF PATRIOTISM without cost to anyone who requests it — write America's Future, Inc., 542 Main Street, New Rochelle, New York.

Wit and Whimsy

A governor was on an inspection tour of the state penitentiary. He questioned a number of the prisoners as to the cause of their being incarcerated. He was much interested in the profession of innocence the prisoners made. Some blamed their conviction on the prejudice of judges; others upon the perjury of witnesses or the tricks of bad companions. At lenth he came to a sturdy, closely-fettered prisoner, and said:

Governor: "I suppose you are innocent too."

Prisoner: "No, Governor, I am guilty and richly deserve all I get."

Governor (calling to the warden): "Here, come and turn out this rascal quick before he corrupts this fine lot of innocent and abused people that we have here."

Uncle: "Congratulations, Jim, my boy! I hear that you're engaged to one of those pretty Smith twins."

Jim: "Yes, I am."

Uncle: "But they look exactly alike, how do you ever tell them apart?"

Jim: "Heck, they're both pretty, aren't they? Why should I try?"

A lady with a huge brown-paper parcel came out of chiropodists' establishment. She was furiously angry and said to the friend awaiting her:

Newspaper advertising makes things happen.

There's something about the very nature of the newspaper that stimulates buying action, whatever the product. Maybe it's because the newspaper has an atmosphere of action and urgency. Maybe it's because its pages are full of what's going on right now...right here...today.

Whatever it is, it gives the newspaper's advertising something extra and makes it more immediate, more compelling. That's why advertisers invested $3.7 billion in newspapers last year to generate buying action among the 100 million readers who shop the newspaper day after day.

Hinkle Named To Faculty of CU Center Here

Regents of the University of Colorado this week appointed former Texas radio and television executive Charles L. Hinkle as associate professor of marketing in CU's Colorado Springs Center.

Hinkle, who also has taught at Northeastern Boston and Baylor Universitties, will be active in planning and guiding the CU School of Business graduate program in Colorado Springs.

He received a Ph. D. degree in business administration from Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration last year. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration and economics fro Baylor.

While at Baylor, Hinkle was associate professor of marketing and finance and organized and conducted a course in marketing research and a graduate seminar.

He lectured on marketing research, marketing management and sales management at undergraduate and graduate levels at Boston and Northeastern Universities in 1963 and 1964.

Hinkle served as general manager of KXII-TV and KWTX radio in Waco, Tex., from 1948 to 1961. During the Korean conflict he served in the U.S. Army and he was a U.S. Merchant Marine staff officer on cargo ships during World War II.

From 1959 to 1961, he served as a member of the board of directors of KXII-TV and had duties which included re - financing, reorganizing, staffing and directing the sales force.

He worked directly with manufacturers, wholesales, retailers and advertising agencies in marketing programs. He directed station operations of KWTX radio from 1954 to 1959, after serving as an administrator, salesman and news and sports broadcaster from 1948 to 1952.

Hinkle has a private pilot's license and also includes hiking, oil painting and carpentry in his list of personal interests.

Hinkle, 39 is married and has two sons.

The two - year appointment will be effective next September.

G-T Story Is Erroneous

It was erroneously reported in the Gazette Telegraph March 20 that Cecil Trembley, a 7-11 Store employe would be tried for the Jan. 31 stickup of the store. Trembley was the victim and Michael R. Allen, 20, 1511 N. Wahsatch Ave. will be tried July 6.

Allen is facing two separate charges of aggravated robbery and conspiracy and has pleaded innocent to both.

The first accuses him of holding up the 7-11 Store where Trembley works and escaping with $100. The second count alleges he conspired with Lee Rumsey, 21, 2828 N. Arcadia St. and Jerry Lee Vandel, 20, 30 W. Dale St.

Rumsey and Vandel will be tried May 25.

The second chargge states Allen made an assault upon Eugene D. Apodaca and Frank J. Foster, employes of Michaelis Drive In, Feb. 4 when approximately $250 were stolen. Count two alleges he conspired with Rumsey and Vandel.

This case was continued until July 13 for trial setting. Rumsey will be tried May 11 and Vandel May 18.

NEW ATTACK

MOSCOW (AP) — Chinese students in Moscow are trying to organize another attack on the U.S. Embassy in defiance of Soviet warnings that they will be punished.

Under Peking's orders, they are seeking a showdown on the angry turn in Soviet-Chinese relations caused by the last stone-throwing demonstration against U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

'No Hurry' On Conference for Billboard Law

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP)—The six-man conference committee appointed to work out differences on billboard legislation between the Colorado House of Representatives and Senate appears in no hurry to meet.

It probably will not get together until the first of the week and may not complete its work for several more days, says Sen. Floyd Oliver, D-Greeley, sponsor of the version of the bill which would ban billboards from interstate highways, freeways and scenic areas on other main roads.

The reason for the committee's leisurely pace Oliver said, is that there still is a possibility at least two senators will change their minds and agree to support the strict billboard ban.

If this were to happen, the Senate could ask for the bill from the conference committee, then vote to concur in the House version thereby passing the measure. The Senate has approved only a diluted billboard bill which simply would restrict the signboards on all roads.

Proponents of the strong bill had 16 votes on a test vote taken Wednesday after House passage of the measure. Eighteen votes are required for passage in the Senate.

The Greeley senator said he had been approached by a representative of the billboard lobby about a possible compromise on the issue but that there has been no agreement.

Oliver is one of the three Senate conferees. The others are Sen. Edwin S. Lamm, R-Grand Junction, who favored the stiff measure, and Sen. Fay DeBerard, R-Kremmling, who opposed it. All three House members of the committee supported the strong version. They are Reps. Richard Gebhardt, D-Boulder; Pat O'Brien, D-Durango; and Tom Jordon, R-Englewood.

The Senate Finance Committee reported favorably Friday afternoon the Long Appropriation bill drawn by Republican Sens. Harry Locke of Hartsel and Joe Shemaker of Denver. It calls for expenditures of $184.6 million next year from the state general fund—which Republican Gov. John A. Love and the Democrats claim is insiffucient for colleges, institutions and schools.

The action came at a five-minute meeting of the Finance Committee, headed by Locke. He announced the voice vote was 11 for the bill and 7 against. There were 11 Republicans and 7 Democrats at the meeting. Democrats protested but were unable to stop the maneuver. Locke adjourned the meeting and the Republicans walked out after the vote.

The Senate completed passage of the freeport bill to reduce taxes on merchandise stored in the state for shipment elsewhere. It was the first item in Gov. Love's program to be enacted. The bill is now awaiting his signature.

The Senate gave quick approval during the week to compromise bills raising maximum workmen's compensation and payments for disability caused by occupational disease from $43.75 a week to $49.

The Senate wrote a major amendment into a House - approved bill to place Colorado on daylight saving time. The change would require a vote of the people at the 1966 election before anything can be done. Then the Senate shelved the bill until next Wednesday before attempting any kind of a vote.

Maneuvering began immediately to get two bills—in calling for enactment of the daylight bill for this year and next and the other calling for a popular vote whether to continue it thereafter.

The House of Representatives passed a new plan for state takeover of property unclaimed for 12 years.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Star Caywood D-Walsenburg, estimated it would bring in between $3 million and $5 million the first year and half a million yearly thereafter.

The House approved a bill for regulation of land subdivisions, aimed at fraudulent promoters, and killed a plan to tax camper trucks $7.50.

The bill authorizing distribution of birth control information and devices by welfare departments remained locked in the House Rules Committee. It has been passed by the Senate.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

Washington, — The Administration's case for use of nonlethal gas in South Viet Nah would have been much more effective if it had been presented months ago when the "riot control agents" were first introduced as a useful war weapon.

Instead, there was a deliberate effort to suppress the facts. The vomit gas was used definitely on Jan. 27 to clear a Meking Delta village of the Viet Cong, but this information did not leak out of Saigon until Monday.

If the gas is as humane as both Secretary of State Rusk and Defense Secretary McNamara are now saying in their defense of its use, why have these two Washington big-domes waited so long to speak their pieces?

The entire vomit gas matter has obviously been stuipdly handled. There is general admission here now that this is so.

The hindsight view is that three months ago the world should have been told what we had in mind. There might have been a slight ripple in some Allied capitals, but nothing comparable to the international controversy which has now churned up.

All we would have needed to say then is just what we are saying now, namely that a decision had been made on an all-out effort to halt the Viet Cong and that in some instances humane-type gas would be used so that villagers would not be killed in U. S.-aided attacks on Red seized hamlets.

Certainly if this kind of official statement had been made in advance it would have shown that the Administration did not feel it had to apologize for intruding a comparatively harmless weapon into the war, but rather was acting for high moral, humane reasons.

Their Accent on 'Riot Control Agents'

But by clearly trying out the gas weapon surreptiiously, as if there was hope we wouldn't be caught, the natural impression is left in some world capitals that we were acting furtively from the start and with a bad conscience.

Unintentionally, both McNamara and Rusk, in their elaborate if hasty efforts — a little on the late side — to explain the situation, act like defendants hailed before the court of public opinion.

McNamara Tuesday and Rusk Wednesday, in suddenly called press briefings, kept accenting the business about the gas being nothing more nor less than the kind in general use as "riot control agents" and how humane it is with its victims hors de combat only temporarily.

This "riot control agent" line is only a half truth, and they know it. The fact is that for years the Pentagon's limited war plans have involved use of nonlethal gas against the enemy in certain tactical situations.

It is also somewhat less than the whole truth for the White House to say that authority for use of nausea-producing gas has for years been delegated to area military commanders.

The fact is that gas of the "riot control" variety is standard equipment for the military police.

Sleep Gas Available for the S. Viets

It is up to area military commanders to decide when the MPs should use it, but obviously it would be for the purpose of breaking up a mob or quelling a riot. It goes without saying that the introduction of gas of any kind into a war involving nations requires a high policy decision, and an area commander who acted on his own would be stripped of his stars.

It should be noted that the Administration's spokesmen are most obtuse when it comes to describing the kind of "riot control" gas available and in use in South Viet Nam. McNamara referred to two types of vomit gas, apparently with tear gas ingredients. Rusk today preferred a reference only to tear gas. For what it is worth, some Administration sources report that there is also a supply of sleen gas available for the South Vietnamese.

The kinds of gas of nonlethal variety we have in our chemical arsenals are most varied. A few years ago a special report of the House Science and Astronautics Committee described "incapacitants" which "produce temporary effects without permanent damage."

"In this respect," the report said, "they more nearly resemble riot control gases or some deliberately not killers. But in another respect, they are quite different. They act swiftly, and their arrival may not by heralded by any human sense, except as the effects are realized."

A Scientist's Views on Nonlethal Weapons

A fact sheet isued in 1961 by the office of Maj. Gen. Marshall Stubbs, then chief Army chemical officer, pretty well spelled out the policy for the advantageous use of nonlethal gases in a limited war on the Viet Nam type.

"In an area containing mixed friendly and enemy personnel," the document said, "people can be incapacitated, and while in this state, a separation can be made. The friendly population recovers the enemy finds himself in a prison compound."

Prof. William H. Summerson, a top scientist in chemical research for the Army's Research expressed similar views in a 1962 speech. In a limited war, he said, "nonlethal weapons" could be of real significance in stamping out aggression "with minimum loss of life and property."

Summerson said there were plenty of "mechanisms" of the gaseous type which could be most effective. Those that had been developed were capable of causing "controllable narcosis or sleep - inducement, elimination of the sense of balance, persistent lachrymation, vomiting or temporary convulsive spells."

The nation's most outstanding theorist today on how to fight a limited war effectively is Gen. Maxwell Taylor, our ambassador in Saigon. Taylor thinks that even tactical nuclear weapons could be used in limited hostilities without too much risk of escalation. It is generally admitted that he pushed, more than anyone else, the present "riot control" gas type of warfare.

TO SPEAK

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has accepted an invitation to be the main speaker at opening day ceremonies April 21 for the second season of the World's Fair. President Johnson was the principal speaker last April at the opening of the billion-dollar exposition.

Grissom, Young Go to Florida For Vacation

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Applauded, decorated and toasted as heroes, Gemini astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young left the fanfare behind today for a weekend in the Florida sun.

But there's more acclaim ahead for the two men who last Tuesday piloted the first manned maneuverable spacecraft on three orbits around the earth. They fly to New York Monday for a tickertape parade.

They may have had enough already. Even before their day in the Washington limelight began, a friend said Grissom and Young didn't relish all the publicity.

"They said they had more trouble after the flight, with all this rigmarole, than they did during the flight itself," Air Force Maj. Raymond Lee Koenig said.

Koenig, once a flying mate of Grissom, said he chatted with the astronauts at Andrews AFB, Md., soon after they arrived from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Friday.

President Johnson decorated the two space pilots at a White House ceremony. Both men received the space agency's Exceptional Service Medal. And Grissom was awarded a cluster for the Distinguished Service Medal he received after a suborbital mission almost four years ago.

Then, escorted by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, they drove to the Capitol. Thousands of people, many of them schoolchildren who got the day off, cheered them on their way.

In a dark-paneled reception room near the Senate chamber the astronauts and their families had a steak luncheon with leaders of Congress.

Grissom, an Air Force major, and Young, a Navy lieutenant commander, munched brownies, posed for photographs and shook hands all around. The brownies were on hand because Young mentioned Thursday they were the best item on his space flight menu.

The astronauts had tentatively scheduled a visit to the Smithsonian Institution where the first manned U.S. spaceship, the Mercury capsule piloted by Navy Lt. Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., is on display. They skipped that stop, and took a breather at their hotel.

Then they moved on to a congressional reception given by House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass. The House recessed in the middle of its debate on President Johnson's education aid bill so members could shake hands with the astronauts.
